SLIDE KILLS 4

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Four children, all from the same family, were killed early today when a landslide pushed four houses into the harbor at Harbour Breton on Newfoundland's south coast.

Dr. M. C. Sharma, director of The Cottage Hospital in the fishing community, said three other persons were in the hospital, not for treatment of injuries but because "they have nowhere else to go."

Dr. Sharma said in a telephone interview from Harbour Breton the four children, all under the age of 10, were the only persons killed when a rainsoaked cliff slid into the houses around 3 a.m.

He said all other persons had been accounted for.

Three of the houses were occupied and one was under construction beside the harbor.

Stephen MacDonald, one of several residents awakened by a loud roar, was among the first at the scene and said he helped recover the children's bodies.

2-Cent Gas Hike Looms

Imperial Oil is expected to increase gasoline and fuel oil prices two cents per gallon in B.C. this month following similar hikes announced Tuesday for eastern Canada.

Imperial also announced it will immediately begin to pay 1.14 cents per gallon more for the western Canadian crude oil it uses to produce gasoline.

Retail price increases in western Canada are expected to come into effect when the company judges that it has begun to refine the higher-priced crude oil.

In Vancouver a company spokesman said the increased cost of crude oil would have to be recovered but the company could not say when the price would go up.

Other sources indicated it would be within the month.

Imperial operates a retail outlet at Hillside and Shelbourne. At present the gasoline prices are 52.9 cents regular, 57.9 cents premium.

These prices are would go to 54.9 and 59.9.

The company charges 26.3 cents for fuel oil in Victoria. This is would level out at 28 cents even.

The company warned that this would not be the end of price increases, because of the rapidly rising world price for crude oil.

Imperial, largest oil company in Canada, imports Venezuelan oil for its refineries in Quebec. The price of western Canadian crude is altered to match the Venezuelan price to keep wholesale gasoline prices about equal in the company.

The company said new royalty rates which come into effect today in Venezuela would produce even more increases in the price of crude oil in Canada.

The company would not speculate on the effects over the long term, but the development suggested retail price increases in September could be expected to follow the two-cent hike expected this month.

The last national retail price increase was in May, when it went up one cent across the board.

No Bomb Halt

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall refused today to order an immediate halt to U.S. bombing in Cambodia, although he hinted he might do so if the decision were his alone.

With the court in summer recess, Marshall said he felt he had to take a broader view to reflect the over-all position of the entire court which in the past has sidestepped a direct ruling on the legality of the Indochina War.

Marshall acted on an appeal by Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, (D-N.Y.), and four air force officers who won an order in a federal district court in New York last week for an immediate bombing halt, but then saw an appeals court suspend the order.

The Holtzman group still did not give up after Marshall's ruling, saying they would talke their case to another justice, William O. Douglas, who they presumably felt would look more favorably on their effort.

They were asking Marshall to set aside the appeals court stay of the district court judge's order for an immediate bombing halt — rather than on Aug. 15 as scheduled.

Marshall said that if the decision were his alone, he might well conclude that U.S. military operations in Indochina were unconstitutional, as the Holtzman group contends.

But the justice made clear that was the extent of what he was ruling on — whether the appeals court decision would be vacated. He concluded, "I would exceed my legal authority were I, acting alone, to grant this application."

Rail Union Hits Western Rebels

Times News Services

A vice-president of the striking rail union is on his way West today in a bid to force rebel workers taking part in a wildcat strike against Canadian National Railways back to work.

Union spokesmen in Montreal Tuesday night angrily decried the walkout by about 5,000 workers after their "legal" strike ended, saying it is wrecking plans for selective strikes against the two national railways in various parts of the country.

"There is no indication we are losing control of the situation. In fact, there is some indication the strikers in Vancouver and Edmonton may be reconsidering their position," one union man said.

However, continuing effects of the strike were felt in widespread areas not directly hit by an authorized Quebec walkout Tuesday and today.

On Thursday the strikes will move into Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

In Prince Edward Island, provincial officials attempted to resolve a dispute that threatened to cut ferry service to the province, a service that unions agreed earlier would be maintained.

Switchmen employed by Canadian National in Winnipeg decided to begin a 48-hour study session today to protest layoffs resulting from the rotating strikes.

The railway said between one-third and one-half of the Winnipeg local's 300 members have been laid off since the strikes began.

About 900 persons are out of work in Canada because of strikes elsewhere.

The railway companies say the layoffs are necessary because of reduced work loads, brought on by the regional strikes.

The unions have said the layoffs are unjustified, and that the railways are "antagonizing" the workers in an attempt to precipitate a national strike, which the unions fear could bring on a federal back-to-work order.

This method has been used twice in the last 25 years to end national rail strikes.

In Vancouver, a union official at strike headquarters said the attitude among the workers was that if they were not "going back together, we'll stay out together."

More than 1,000 workers at Vancouver and an undetermined number at other B.C. points remain off the job and other workers refused to cross picket lines.

Union spokesmen in Vancouver said 80 per cent of CP Rail workers returned to work Tuesday and some were to be laid off until freight volume built up again.

$150,000 A DAY FINE

NEW YORK (UPI) — International Business Machines Corp., today was fined $150,000 a day for contempt of court until it turns over to the federal court documents demanded by the Justice Department in order to press an anti-trust action.

Judge David Edelstein found IBM guilty of contempt and ordered the fine in a pre-trial proceeding.

Justice Department lawyers had asked for a fine of 5 per cent of IBM's daily earnings, an estimated $177,000 a day. The company's lawyers had suggested a token fine of $100 a day.

Edelstein's order stated flatly that the court would not issue any stay of the order and attorneys in the case said a civil contempt order against a corporation in a pre-trial action cannot be appealed.

Beef Pinch In U.S.

Times News Services

Major wholesale beef suppliers in New York city followed a national trend and closed for the day today because of a shortage of beef.

Elsewhere thousands of meat packers were out of work as the shortage spread across the U.S.

Panic buyers hoarded meat in home freezers, meat distributors reported they were sold out by Tuesday, butchers turned away customers — and even the White House was turned down by its beef supplier.

The U.S. consumer was faced with prospects of eliminating from family menus hamburger, steak, meatloaf, meatballs and roast beef — and eating instead cheese, pork, fish, poultry and lamb chops.

One agricultural expert said the big cities will "suffer like hell."

New York appeared to be already suffering. The major wholesale suppliers of beef to the city' supermarkets

Money Reform Prospects Good

By HOBART ROWEN
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A new international monetary system to replace the one created at Bretton Woods 29 years ago emerged as a real prospect Tuesday at a friendly and cooperative session of the free world's finance ministers at the International Monetary Fund headquarters here.

Several responsible sources indicated that basic details could be drafted and approved by the spring of 1974.

Moreover, the new system might be put in place by a totally new treaty or agreement which would leave the door for membership open to Soviet Russia, the Peoples Republic of China, and other socialist countries.

Many intricate problems of substance and negotiation still lie ahead, including the role of gold, and how to define (and perhaps re-name) the Special Drawing Rights which will become the standard of the new system, replacing the dollar.

But a new mood of compromise was clearly emerging. French Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing said that "the recent monetary crisis appears to have convinced everybody of the need for more co-operative action. There is no longer the inclination to let things get settled by themselves."

Rally Violence Just 'Great'

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — H. R. Haldeman said today he accepts responsibility for a memorandum last February that said "we should tie all 1972 demonstrations to McGovern and thus to the Democrats as part of the peace movement."

Haldeman, the former White House chief of staff, conceded that he wrote "great" and "good" on a 1971 memorandum informing him that violent demonstrators were expected at a Charlotte, N.C., appearance of President Nixon and Rev. Billy Graham.

The two memos were disclosed at the Senate Watergate hearings by Senator Lowell Weicker (Rep.—Con.) who said:

"We need to get our people to put out the story on foreign or Communist money that was used in support of demonstrations against the president in 1972," it began.

"We should tie all 1972 demonstrations to McGovern and thus to the Democrats as part of the peace movement.

"The investigation should be brought to include the peace movement which leads directly to McGovern and Teddy Kennedy. This is a good counter-offensive to be developed."

The references were to Senator George McGovern (Dem.—N.D.), the 1972 Democratic nominee for president, and Sen. Edward Kennedy (Dem.—Mass.).

This was the second time in two days Weicker and Haldeman had clashed.

Tuesday, the hundreds of people crammed into the hearing room fell silent all at once as the senator and the witness regarded one another in something less than mutual admiration.

Across that breath-holding hush, the glare exchanged bespoke what more than 5,000 pages of transcribed testimony has not quite captured — the deep divisions carved by the scandal and the clash of philosophies it has come to represent.

"Who set the example for what happened?" Weicker

VITAMIN A, D ON DRUG LIST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Food and Drug Administration ordered today that high doses of vitamins A and D be placed on a prescription-only basis. It also laid down plans for other general restrictions on sale of vitamins.

The order on vitamins A and D takes effect in 60 days. The FDA issued a final order on the matter, the most controversial of its proposals. The other restrictions will take effect at the end of 1974.

The FDA said there was evidence that vitamin A in heavy doses can cause pressure inside the skull that may mimic the symptoms of a brain tumor, and may also cause retarded growth in children. Vitamin D in high doses has also been known to retard mental and physical growth in children, the agency added.

The other major rule says that any vitamin, food supplement or food containing more than 150 per cent of the recommended daily allowance of any vitamin shall be classified as a drug.

Once classified as drugs such products may continue to be sold over the counter the way cough medicines and aspirins are now. But they will be subject to review by the FDA as drugs and some may later be put on a prescription basis or banned entirely.

'The Little Chief Will Fight'

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

Frank Calder said today he was fired from the provincial cabinet for "something political" rather than for personal reasons as outlined earlier by Premier Barrett.

In an emotional statement to the press this morning, the former minister-without-portfolio who looked after Indian affairs, said an incident last April in which he and his girlfriend were picked up by Victoria police is not justification for firing.

"I can't figure it out. There must be something deeper than that. I would size it up as something political — it is not personal," he said.

The incident has been blown out of proportion by the premier, he said, adding that "the Little Chief will fight," if the issue continues to be blown up.

Calder's statements followed a special press conference called by the premier, in which Barrett described the reasons and sequence of events which led to Calder's firing Tuesday.

He revealed the tough stand he has taken on the matter of cabinet ministers' personal lives.

"On July 4, I had heard a rumor that Mr. Calder had been involved in an incident," Barrett said.

(The incident, revealed in Victoria police reports, occurred in the early hours of April 27 when a Calgary woman was charged with being "in the care or control of a motor vehicle while impaired." Calder, a passenger in the car parked on Menzies Street, was held overnight by police for being in a state of intoxication in a public place, but was not charged.)

On July 5, Barrett said, he telephoned Calder and asked if the rumor was true. Calder said no.

"I then received a report from the attorney-general — because I had asked him to check out the rumor — that the rumor was indeed true," said the Premier.

"I made appointments for Mr. Calder to come to my office on July 20 and July 27. He didn't show on either occasion."

Barrett said Tuesday was the first time he talked to Calder directly about the incident.

"I made it very clear to Mr. Calder that he could resign. There was no response. Rather than delay, I made it very clear to him that I would be asking for his resignation — if that was not forthcoming, then we would pass the order in council.

Calder told reporters the reason he had denied the incident during Barrett's telephone call, was because he was in a room with close personal friends from his Atlin constituency.

"If I had said yes, I would have had to explain in front of these people," he said. "When I said no, I did not lie. I had to say what I said because company officials were there. I had to get back to Victoria to explain things."

Shaking with anger, Calder said the reason he had not shown up for the appointments with Barrett was because he was in his constituency.

"I went back there for 26 days," he said.

Barrett stressed he hadn't announced the reasons for Calders firing Tuesday because "it is essentially a matter for him to define in his own life."

"Now I've told you as quickly as I can, my side. I want the public of B.C. to understand very clearly and very simply what brought me to the course of action.

"As long as I am premier, I have no intention of being responsible for any individual in cabinet who does not come to me and honestly tell me exactly of any incident or any occurrence that may hamper the government, or hamper his work as cabinet minister."

"As Mr. Calder has said, he is a personal friend of mine and he remains a personal friend. But personal friendship will not stand in the way of doing my job."

Barrett said once a person becomes a cabinet minister, it is impossible for him to have a private life.

He said he told his cabinet ministers the day they were sworn in "that they would be allowed one mistake and that would be it."

"That goes for the premier too," he said.

Calder would not say whether he is considering resigning as MLA. He said he "loved" his constituents and that "a lot of people there loved the Little Chief."

The incident, he said, "was not a criminal act, it's not Watergate.

"It doesn't involve public funds — I paid for my girlfriend's fine with my own money.

"Dave is my good friend — I'm a Barrett supporter," Calder said. "Maybe I was wrong not reporting to him."

Calder denied any suggestion that he might cross the floor. "The CCF and NDP have been good to me.

"If they want to fight me," he added, "by God, I'll fight him."

Pension Promised French Mothers

PARIS (UPI) — The French mother who spends the best years of her life raising children and caring for her man can look forward to something more than wrinkles and rheumatism at old age. The government has promised retirement pensions for all mothers, whether married or not.

"I will make sure that in the future mothers will enjoy a true social status, and that they will get a pension," according to Public Health Minister Michel Poniatowski.

Health ministry officials said draft legislation spelling out conditions under which a French mother will receive regular income from the state pension fund will go before parliament for approval at the year's end.

The pensions will be paid only to mothers, whether married or not, who devoted themselves to family duties and had no regular money-earning work, officials said.

"Now, my husband will no longer chide me that equality of sexes is all right, but he will be the one who keeps our household going when retirement age comes," said Mme. Nicole Clavier, 47, a Parisian housewife. "I will have my own pension," she added, laughing.

had demanded a few moments earlier.

"I don't believe that anyone has to set an example . . ." replied Haldeman, who until last spring was regarded as the most powerful man in Washington next to Richard Nixon himself.

"Because I still stand four-square behind the statement that this was the most outstanding, most dedicated and most able group of people with whom I have ever been associated and with whom I ever hope to be associated."

"But Mr. Haldeman," Weicker protested. "I think that in light of the facts that are coming out that both you and I would agree that this went far beyond just a few men breaking into the Watergate. But rather it's revealed . . . A situation both in the Committee to Re-Elect the President and within the White House whereupon everything that was touched was corroded."

"No, sir, I will not in any way, shape or form accept that allegation or contention," he said.

"There is no way that any man in this country can establish and make the case that everything in the White House, or everything that the White House touched, was corroded. And I think that does a great disservice to this country to even state it . . ."

"I would only say this," Weicker shot back. "That the real problem is that your definition as to who does a disservice to the country has always been far too broad a definition."

Sen. Joseph Montoya (Dem. N.M.) raised again the so-called "enemies list" first made public by ousted counsel Dean in today's questioning of Haldeman.

"There was a program of drawing up a list of those who in prominent public positions were believed to be expressing opposition to administration policies and therefore should not be receiving these courtesies," Haldeman said.

The courtesies, he said, were such things as invitations to the White House and appointments to honorary boards.

People on the list included some who were vocally and publicly opposing administration policy on the Vietnam war, he added.

Later, Montoya asked whether the FBI has a file on every American who is known publicly.

"I think they do, yes," Haldeman said. "I haven't been through their files."

Under questioning from Senator Howard Baker (Rep. Tenn.), Haldeman said he could not recall ever authorizing any 24-hour surveillance of Sen. Kennedy.

But he said "there were times when there was very definite interest in the activities of Sen. Kennedy, some political, some not political at all but in relation to trips on early release of PoWs, contacts concerned with ending the war."

He said he knew nothing of any surveillance of Kennedy by either John Caulfield, a former White House aide, or Anthony Ulasewicz, a privately paid investigator for the White House.

Asked about a report that Ulasewicz set up an apartment in New York with the aim of compromising friends of a young woman killed in Sen. Kennedy's auto accident in 1969, Haldeman said he knew nothing about such a plan.

NEW MONEY PLAN

C-20 chairman Ali Wardhana, Indonesian minister of finance said the meeting was "a significant step forward. We have reached a point where the over-all shape of the reform is sufficiently clear to allow for intensive debate on the key issues, and that debate is well underway."

Conference sources sketched out this "realistic" reform schedule for the future: There will be "a significant new step" taken at the Nairobi annual meeting of the IMF in September, probably the definition of the SDR in terms of a "Basket" of currencies.

This will be followed by a meeting of the C-20 deputies to work on such technical subjects as the rate of interest on SDRs. Then, there will be a meeting of ministers in the spring of 1974. According to Giscard d'Estaing, "this will be decisive.

The French minister and some others favor a wholly new treaty, rather than an amendment of the present IMF charter. "If we are organizing a system for the next 20 or 30 years," he said, "we need a new document — a new treaty for a new era."

Ratification by various national legislature among the 125 member countries of the IMF could take a year or more beyond that.

Meanwhile, the IMF board of executive directors unanimously approved the appointment of a former Dutch government official, H. Johannes Witteveen, 52, as managing director to succeed Pierre-Paul Schweitzer of France, who retires August 31.

This settles a year-long controversy, sometimes bitter, over the U.S. opposition to renaming Schweitzer for a third four-year term. Schewitzer's outspoken suggestions for a U.S. devaluation in 1971 caused a rupture in his relationships with the Nixon administration.

Canada's Finance Minister John Turner said Tuesday that wage and price controls would not stem soaring inflation in Canada because the country is caught up in an international phenomenon of rising prices.

Speaking at the close of the Washington meeting Turner said that only a concerted international effort could solve the problem of spiralling inflation.

Turner told a news conference that he called upon his foreign counterparts to commence research on possible ways to stem inflation. Without such action, he noted, it would be impossible to work out a new monetary system.

FOOD PRICES

closed today because "the remaining supplies of beef do not warrant a five-day operation," according to the greater New York Association of Meat and Poultry Dealers.

Association president Alfred Mayer said beef supplies were "less than half of normal and dwindling."

In New Jersey, "beef is almost non-existent at this point," according to Gerald Gilligan, director of the meat division of the Wakefern Food Corp., a state-wide group of grocery stores.

In Baltimore, Paul Diamond, head buyer for 10 Food-A-Rama supermarkets, said beef suplies are 60 per cent below normal.

In Detroit, Edward Deeb, chief of the Associated Food Dealers of Michigan said the shortage would get critical within a week.

Deeb urged President Nixon to lift the retail price freeze on beef before Sept. 12, the date announced in the president's Phase IV economic plan. Ranchers and beef packers have complained that with all other costs rising, the fixed grocery store price of meat keeps them from passing inflation on to the consumer, and means they can no longer make a profit.

As a result, ranchers are keeping livestock on the range and packers are closing down.

In Washington, Bernard Goldstein, who has been supplier of beef to the White House for 16 years, said Tuesday he turned down an order for 15 pounds of filet mignon and New York strip steak.

Nixon should not order the finest beef for himself since it was his action that caused the shortage, Goldstein said.

"Supplies are tight, but it's a matter of principle," he said. "I asked them not to order items which they have caused to be critical. What they want is the finest. I asked them not to order these. I asked them to order lamb, and pork — anything not covered by the controls."

Dr. Reid Grigsby of Louisiana State University, an agricultural expert, predicted consumers could be paying $1.50 for a hamburger with a quarter of a pound of meat in it by the end of the price freeze "and be delighted to get it."

But he said prices will stabilize by December because "the American farmer can't stand prosperity."

"They'll breed everything that'll breed. We'll have hogs running out our ears," he said.

The bid — $51.30 for 100 pounds of prime Alberta steer, on the hoof — is a sign of continued price increases at supermarket meat counters, said Charlie Kennedy, president of the Alberta Stockyard Co.

"It was inevitable," he said.

In 1971, the high price for choice beef on the hoof was 35 cents a pound.

Canadian meat processors also are buying U.S. cattle to be resold later in the United States at a substantial profit.

The cattle, shipped to Canadian plants where they are slaughtered and processed, can be resold in the United States at high prices since meat imports are not controlled by the retail price ceiling.

In Los Angeles, Norm Mafit, of the Western Meat Packers Association, said U.S. beef processed in Canada is selling in the Los Angeles area for about 92 cents a pound, 18 to 20 cents a pound over the ceiling on U.S. packers.

On other food fronts, eggs are becoming more expensive in Canada.

Grade A large eggs are expected to pass 90 cents a dozen and egg producers are apparently selling off any surplus eggs to sub-markets to keep the prices up.

John Hyde, administrative assistant for the Ontario Egg Producers Marketing board said producers were "determined to get a reasonable return on investment."

This was the first week in three years in which egg producers have earned a profit, Hyde said.

Part of the problem for the high prices of both meat and eggs can be traced back to the scarcity of feed and its subsequent high cost.

Strikers Shoot

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Striking truck drivers, firing revolvers and hurling firebombs, Tuesday battled riot police who tried to seize their vehicles. At least three persons were wounded.

the weather

Little change is expected today and Thursday although a weather system now near the weather ship threatens to spread cloud to the north coast. However indications are the system will weaken to the point where only a few bands of cloud will drift across the north coast.

WINNING AGAINST CANCER

Until recently, drugs were used only to ease cancer's pain. Today, in at least 10 cancer types, drugs are producing normal life expectancies for many cancer patients. Few people appreciate the degree of success achieved by anticancer drugs. Used alone or in combination with other types of therapy, these drugs are demonstrating that most cancers can be cured — if detected early enough. Read the facts. Find out why a prominent specialist now says, "Cancer is an essentially curable disease." Read CANCER CHEMOTHERAPY COMES OF AGE — one of 33 articles and features in the August Reader's Digest. Million Slated For Airport Job

Close to $1 million will be spent on improving facilities at Victoria International Airport during the next five years.

Announcement of the proposed federal government expenditure was made Tuesday by Allan McKinnon, Conservative MP for Victoria.

The improvement plan is to be carried out in several stages. They are major dollar expenditure items stemming from a long-range plan for the airport.

A new sewage plant, estimated to cost $100,000, will be built in 1974.

An estimated $350,000 is to be spent in 1975 on a new instrument landing installation.

Around $500,000 will be spent between 1976 and 1978 on the expansion of the passenger terminal building.

Constructed in 1963 and completed in 1964, the building is now too cramped for the escalating numbers of passengers using it.

Since the runway was extended in 1972 to accommodate passenger jets terminal facilities are overloaded most of the time.

Airport manager Jack Knowland reports that the number of passengers arriving and departing from the airport this year will jump to 400,000, compared with 180,000 a few years ago.

He says the overcrowding of airports is an over-all problem.

"All airlines make projections," he said, "They've all been proven wrong. The unexpected and unprojected increase in air travel is beyond all forecasts the experts have made."

The only other improvement carried out at the airport since the runway was extended was the installation in February of a new navigational aid, giving more sophisticated guidance to pilots on their approach to the runway.

AMIN
. . . no show

Gen. Amin Regrets . . .

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Ugandan President Idi Amin will not attend the Commonwealth conference "due to other state preoccupations at home," he informed conference officials today.

Commonwealth Secretary-General Arnold Smith interrupted a news conference to read the Amin message, which ended weeks of speculation and conflicting reports from the Ugandan president about his conference plans.

The volatile president, who asked Smith Tuesday for a plane to Canada, conveyed his "best regards and good wishes" to the delegates attending the meeting.

Several weeks ago Amin made it known he would not come to Ottawa for fear of what he called Zionist conspirators. Later reports indicated he may have changed his mind.

Amin, who expelled several thousand Asian Ugandans last year, would likely have had a rough reception had he come to the meeting.

One British observer here described plane demand as insolent and viewed it as an easy excuse for Amin not to attend the conference.

He said Amin could tell his people he couldn't attend because no one could help him with his transportation problems.

There are good reasons for Amin not to attend. It was during the Singapore Commonwealth Conference in 1971 that he overthrew Milton Obote in a military coup.

Obote or others might have been tempted to copy the tactic during Amin's absence at this conference.

Hearing Aids Subsidized

REGINA (UPI) — The Saskatchewan government announced today the start of a subsidized hearing aid plan, the first in Canada.

Health Minister Walter Smishek said hearing aids would be sold at cost to anyone with a valid Saskatchewan medical and hospital card.

It means that virtually everyone in the province will be able to get a hearing aid through the program if they need it.

"Cost of the units will range from a low of $10 to a high of $110, with the average between $75 and $85," Smishek said.

The program also includes a travelling clinic which will visit each of the province's health regions once a month providing essentially the same services which will be available at two permanent clinics, one in Regina and the other in Saskatoon.

The clinics will provide testing by audiologists and technologists, fitting of hearing aids, and minor repairs.

The minor repairs will be done at no cost by the staff at the clinic, while major repairs, Smishek said, "will be done by the manufacturer of the hearing aid at his cost."

Accessories such as batteries will also be available at cost. All normal styles of hearing aids will be available including on the body, in the ear, behind the ear, and eyeglass aids.

A Move for Quiet Life

It set forth proposed rules for reducing noise from trucks and outlined in more general terms what it hopes to do about making planes and airports quieter.

"This is a milestone," said Alvin Meyer, head of the Environmental Protection Agency's noise control office. Noise is "emerging as a major national environmental problem," he said.

EPA put the cost of the curbs at between $10 million and $38 million for the whole trucking industry.

IRAN ROLE MOOTED

Times News Services

SAIGON — Iran, an ally of the United States, has agreed to replace Canada on the Vietnam truce-observation commission, some sources reported today.

They said the issue hinges on whether the Communists will accept the Iranians. (See also Pages 13, 34.)

However, Reuters news agency quoted a South Vietnamese foreign ministry spokesman as dismissing the report.

"As far as we know this is just press speculation and there is nothing official yet on Canada's replacement," Reuter quoted the spokesman, Nguyen Bich Mac.

Meanwhile the United States granted a development loan of $50 million to South Vietnam today, the first assistance to that country for postwar economic reconstruction.

The loan will be used to purchase industrial machinery, spare parts and other manufactured products.

Fifteen persons died in more post-truce fighting across South Vietnam today, however, including 10 soldiers on both sides in a predawn Communist mortar attack, the South Vietnamese government said.

VOYAGEURS HEAD EAST

A group of 20 high school Voyageurs will be setting off for points east including Ottawa and Timmins, Ont., this evening as part of a 12-day federal-provincial sponsored get-to-know Canada program.

The students, from Sooke, Saanich and Saltspring Island, will take a school bus to Vancouver, where a charter flight will transport them to Ottawa for five days.

Leader of the group, John Forge, a teacher at Claremont Senior Secondary, said the students were chosen according to citizenship, qualities, interests and whether or not they had done any travelling in Canada.

DRY CONVENTION FACES WORKERS

TORONTO (CP) — The speeches may be flowing but the liquor won't be when 850 delegates to the six-day convention of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union arrive here next week.

The delegates, together with their wives and families from throughout Canada, the United States and Puerto Rico, haven't yet learned that the hotel they're booked into has had its liquor licence suspended for one week beginning Monday—the day the convention opens.

The licence was suspended by the Liquor Licence Board of Ontario (LLBO) because the newly-built Four Seasons Sheraton Hotel overlooking City Hall violated provincial liquor regulations at a singles festival in the main ballroom June 22.

An estimated 10,000 persons attended, and James Mackey, LLBO chairman, said Tuesday that some fire exits were blocked by furniture and liquor was consumed in unlicensed rooms.

Joe Downey, assistant to the hotel manager, estimated the suspension will cost the hotel between $75,000 and $100,000.

He said the festival was overcrowded because "we weren't the ones who sold the tickets."

"They swarmed in on us," he said, "but because we rented the space it was our responsibility."

About 200 employees will be laid off during the week the hotel's five bars are closed.

Strike Threat Fades

The threat of a strike against White Spot restaurants in B.C., including two in Victoria, receded today and a union spokesman was optimistic a contract settlement may be reached this week.

Frank McRae, president of the Canadian Food and Associated Services Union, said from Vancouver that labor and management negotiators met Tuesday and agreed to resume bargaining Thursday morning.

"With a little bit of luck" the union may have a tentative agreement to take to members by Thursday night or Friday, he said.

The union represents 1,100 employees at 18 White Spot restaurants and has been seeking improved wages, a new overtime policy and clarification of job responsibilities. There are 130 employees in Victoria.

The White Spot chain is owned by General Foods Ltd. The union served strike notice last week and has been free to strike since Sunday.

Watersheds for Some

On surface indications it might be argued that the NDP provincial government doesn't think much of its candidate's chances in the forthcoming South Okanagan byelection. It has called the opening of the Legislature for September 13, and the official announcement of the September 7 byelection results will not come until September 19. Whoever wins will miss nearly a week of the session.

On the same line of reasoning it might be assumed that the government doesn't think much of the province's municipalities. The House opening falls right in the middle of the three-day annual convention of the Union of B.C. Municipalities in Prince George. MLAs who are also mayors will miss out on one or the other, and cabinet ministers who were invited to Prince George will be unable to attend.

But barring these administrative hitches — contrived or not — both the Kelowna byelection and the legislative session promise to be of top interest.

Bill Bennett, son of the former premier, will be a candidate for the Social Credit nomination. He will have some opposition for that, and if he later enters the byelection race, there will still be some hurdles to jump. The seat his father held for 32 years as Conservative and later Social Credit member is less safe than it was, and a recent poll claims a falling away of traditional Bennett support. If elected, Bill Bennett would be in line for nomination as party leader in November. The success of his launch from the South Okanagan pad is therefore crucial.

For another byelection candidate, Mr. Derril Warren, the still unseated Conservative party leader, the contest is equally a boom-or-bust event. Defeated at the last provincial election, Mr. Warren will likely relinquish the leadership if he fails to win a seat on this attempt. A loss would probably lead to his retirement from the political scene.

The South Okanagan activities will therefore carry more than usual interest for members gathering for the session, which itself should generate wide interest. The government has some unfinished business to complete and may have new surprises for British Columbians. Some existing legislation, such as the Landlord and Tenants Act, requires amendment, and the topic of the B.C. Telephone Company will no doubt get some attention.

The recently announced program of development for Prince Rupert and the B.C. Railway should be under discussion, while the opposition parties will unlimber their guns on takeovers, future danger of coastal oil pollution, operation of the greenbelt and agricultural land legislation, and provincial banking plans. Implementation of the latter, of course, must await federal legislation next year.

Some interesting weeks ahead; and, as is to be expected, it will be the unexpected that provides the fireworks.

". . . I wanted to see you about a sizable loan, Dave." "Wonderful, Dave, it's a pleasure to do business with you."

Good Start to Stop a Bad End

With giant tankers ploughing through the Strait of Juan de Fuca a future possibility, the federal government introduced an 87-page bill last week which will eventually replace the Canada Shipping Act and related navigation laws. The Department of Transport says the bill represents only the first two steps in what is intended to be a five-book maritime code.

In essence the first book extends federal authority to shipping accidents on the high seas if such an accident might result in damage to Canadian beaches or environment. While this legislation may result in some unprecedented legal tangles it serves notice that the government is serious about enforcing maritime environmental measures.

But writing new sets of laws is not enough. They should be tested and augmented with increased patrols, radar tracking and more beacons when the large tankers become a reality. The federal authorities have made a good start in avoiding a bad end. However, when the first supertanker from Valdez makes a hard-a-port turn into the Strait we must be prepared for the worst.

An Old Problem Laid to Rest

With many Metchosin-Colwood sheep farmers suffering grave economic loss from maruding dogs, the provincial government's ammendments to the Sheep Protection Act come none to soon. Under the new regulations an authorized official of the provincial department of agriculture can capture any roaming dog. Unlicensed dogs will be disposed of in a humane manner; licensed dogs will be taken to their masters who will be charged with letting them run loose.

Despite the scores of sheep killed this year by dogs, some owners took no action to curb their pets so the government had to act. Under the old law sheep farmers and the RCMP could not act unless the dogs were caught in the field harassing domestic animals. It would be preferable if some of the unlicensed marauding dogs could be returned to their owners for proper control and tagging rather than being destroyed. But stern measures are justified, considering the wanton killing that has been a problem in the area for many years.

BRUCE HUTCHISON

Canada's Fundamental Change

The recent convention of the New Democratic Party in Vancouver would have amazed the late J. S. Woodsworth. Perhaps it would have saddened him, too.

That great and saintly man, who gave Canadian socialism its first political home, had no hope of winning national office for himself or his infant Co-operative Commonwealth Federation. He would have failed as prime minister in any case because he was not made for the grimy business of government. But as a critic of the existing social system, a prophet of things to come and an inspiration to his heirs, he was a magnificent success.

The modern NDP has very different aims. As its convention showed, it is attempting to make itself a truly national party and for that purpose must pay a high price. Doubtless no one understands the price better than David Lewis who, unlike Mr. Woodsworth, is no saint or innocent abroad but a practical, ambitious and skilful politician.

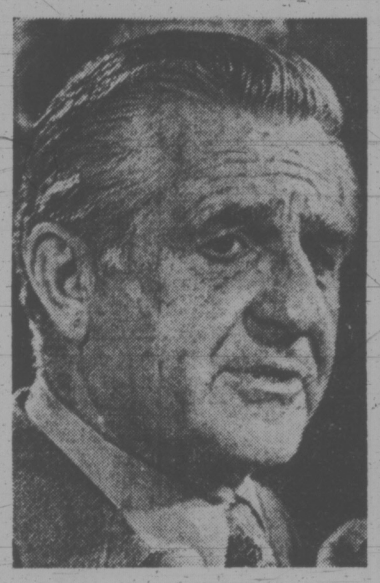
Masquerading

No national party can afford the consistency, the clarity, the specific objectives and lofty ideals of a protest movement like the old CCF and the early NDP. In a diverse nation like Canada such a party is, and can be, nothing more than a coalition and amalgam of contradictory views, masquerading in public as a single organism.

So long as the NDP was satisfied to remain a protest movement, looking at government from the outside without any of its responsibilities, it could advocate hard, explicit policies. It could put its ideology ahead of its electoral votes. It could proclaim a noble vision without the need to make it work.

As Mr. Woodsworth once said to me, when I was too young to appreciate the grandeur of his spirit, he knew that things were terribly wrong with the country, then in the depths of the Great Depression, but he did not know, in more than vague terms, how to set them right. It was impossible to know, he said, until socialism had taken office, studied the problems from the inside and devised the proper solutions. He had no definite plan, only a passionate hope for mankind.

As he also knew, that hope was unlikely to be achieved in his lifetime. Meanwhile, if he could not overthrow the existing system he could change it marginally and he, or the forces of history, did change it, almost beyond recognition.



DAVID LEWIS
. . . no innocent abroad

And though his career in politics was destroyed by his solitary vote against the Second World War — an impractical act but one of supreme courage — the social changes were not repealed. On the contrary, they continued at accelerating speed and are moving still faster now.

When three western provinces elect socialist governments, when the NDP holds a balance of power in Parliament and coerces a minority government day by day, it is absurd to imagine that nothing fundamental has happened in our society.

It is equally absurd to say that the NDP has yet become a national party when clearly it has not. But it is trying desperately to look like one and, to this end, is changing its outer garments if not its inner mind. It is muting its socialism, blurring its blueprint, promising impossibilities and building, if possible, a coalition of opposites like the old parties.

Thus, for example, the Vancouver convention solemnly protested the evil of inflation without mentioning its chief factor, which is wages. It demanded that food prices be rolled back without any limit on the income of the farmer or the worker in the distributing chain.

With still greater irony, a socialist party which was once the friend of all humanity, the champion of the poor and downtrodden everywhere, resolved that Canada's wealth must be kept at home while the rest of the world went short of necessities. This is called socialism now-a-days but it is only good old-fashioned conservatism, Macdonald's national policy under new trimmings with even stronger protectionist weapons and harsher anti-Americanism.

Alarm the Squares

Or again, Mr. Lewis warned his followers against talking too much about their socialist ideals lest they alarm the "squares" who form the nation's voting-majority. Policy "albatrosses", he said, should not be worn publicly around the NDP's neck. Mr. Lewis knows what he is doing, or trying to do. He is transforming a spongy ideological exercise into a cutting instrument of politics.

While rather dizzy with success, he knows, however, that his tasks may well be a failure for an obvious reason: no matter what social benefaction he promises the old parties will match his bid, or enough of it to satisfy the public. Just as Mackenzie King moved leftward sufficiently to outflank Mr. Woodsworth, so Mr. Trudeau will outflank Mr. Lewis while Mr. Stanfield, attacking socialism, proposes that the government control the entire economy, at least for the time being.

The two old parties understand that one of them must die before a third can come to real national life and neither is reconciled to suicide. And so, with all his momentary power in Ottawa, Mr. Lewis must see that his task has hardly begun yet, that he may be a very brief candle in North America's dark bourgeois night. No wonder he has no stomach for an election.

C. L. SULZBERGER

A Dream and a Nightmare

"Finlandization" has been a code word for years in West Europe. It implies gradual neutralization, largely precipitated by bilateral superpower dealings, which would reduce American defence strength on Europe's side of the Atlantic and implicitly weaken the degree of U.S. commitment to protect that area.

For West Europeans "Finlandization" means that it would ultimately expose them to pressures from the nearby Soviet Union while the U.S. inched back toward neo-isolationism.

Finland is chosen as a symbol: a democratic country over whose politics, nevertheless, Moscow brandishes some kind of veto; a country with a free market system, capital and labor unions, nevertheless, a country tied to the U.S.S.R. on all crucial international matters.

This is a status no West European land wants, whether it is allied to the U.S. or whether it is neutral. "Finlandization" is an unacceptable formula. But such is not at all the case for East Europe. Indeed, for East Europe "Finlandization" is the only logical goal.

More Independence

The most important political movement in that region is a quiet search for more and more independence from the Soviet Union. This is even somewhat true of Yugoslavia which opted out of satellite status in 1948 and started a non-aligned political position envied by the rest of East Europe ever since.

The Yugoslavs know that when their 82-year-old hero, Marshal Tito, dies they may face difficulties resulting from centrifugal forces inside the country and Soviet pressures outside it. They are therefore trying to prepare for a stable continuation of Tito's policy and administration but this is far from easy to accomplish.

Today all Governments in the outright pro-Soviet part of East Europe are joined in the Warsaw Pact headed by a post-war generation. Their leaders are nationalists and were not brought to power by Russian tanks in 1945.

They have in common an urge to move in any field where it is possible to gain more economic, social and military independence so they can speak with their own voices, not as echoes. But they have dramatic actions.

There has been a long sequence of lessons teaching what can happen when any one of them goes to far or too fast — Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia. Despite all the East-West detente, the famous Brezhnev Doctrine asserting Moscow's "right" to intervene in any "socialist state" has never been officially abandoned.

MARSHAL TITO

Thus East Europe knows it must progress slowly, patiently and if possible invisibly, if it is to approach any semblance of independence. And for East Europe the very best example to ape is that of Finland. For these reasons, "Findlandization" means a quite different and more hopeful thing to East Europeans than it does to West Europeans. It means reducing rather than increasing the degree of Soviet influence.

It took a long time before the word "Finlandization" was coined among Westerners, a time during which Finland itself pushed hard on Moscow's behalf for the European security negotiations which have now been started, the first round having significantly met in Helsinki. And the word "Finlandization" has not yet even been coined among Easterners, although they know what it implies to them.

What is a nightmare in the West is a dream in the East. But in each case the concept, whether geographically detested or geographicaly coveted, has assumed more life as a result of the series of Nixon-Brezhnev negotiations.

No Consultation

In West Europe there is a dislike for the fact that Washington and Moscow have discussed — if not agreed on — issues affecting European security without consulting West Europe in advance, although informing it afterward. In East Europe there was no ambition for consultation but thehre is a craving for information. In each case there is somewhat of a feeling that Europe is being shunted aside on crucial matters — although the East is used to that.

The big fear in the West is that Washington will eventually reduce its forces there and water down its commitments. The big hope in the East is that there will be sufficient mutuality of accord on this between the superpowers to insure the Russians will also pare their troops and lower their profile.

All Europe is now gaining increased interest in the mirage of "Finlandization" which means two contrasting things politically, a fear and a hope. This could never prove a basis for true continental unity. Mixing nightmares and dreams produces schizophrenia.

Editorial Correspondence

Following Blindly

Recent news ushered in another black week for Victoria. City Council announced it has almost reached agreement with C.I.L. (Bapco Paint) for the new proposed Miami-type hotel apartment complex. Anglo Canadian Limited informs us of a new shopping centre plan approved (Douglas—South of Saanich Municipal Hall). We need both like a hole in the head!

Victoria Council's announcement indicates a brazen contempt for people's wishes and public hearings. There has been no public hearing as yet. Or is it all cut and dried and the future public hearing a mere nuisance formality? Was there a public hearing on the new shopping centre?

Gradually, the charm of our lovely city is being frittered away. We will become more and more stereotyped, emulsified and homogenized like most "look alike" American cities.

Why, if we are so aware of the failure of the American culture must we follow so blindly? Why do we continue to use our priceless Rembrandt paintings to wrap up fish and chips? Why, when we see the havoc and ugliness wrought in Vancouver, Nanaimo and Duncan — even in parts of Victoria, must our councils follow the dictates of heedless commercial interests?

May I offer a solution? Councils, planners and citizen advisory boards may be divided into three segments: those favoring commercial expansion (the U.S. type); those opposed; and those neutral. It follows that some of the neutral and opposing members are going to be prevailed upon by the arguments of the developers and their lawyers. Therefore, since the overwhelming evidence, manifest in the blight around us, proves planners and councils cannot stand up to pressure, adversary procedures should be introduced immediately. The general public must be represented when the developer makes his pitch!

We are a nation, separate and sovereign. Yet our councils are foisting upon us the U.S. blueprint and the foredoomed Pepsi tinsel culture. Perhaps we are the only nation in the world that does not have any recognizable identity. Do we not have brains enough in Canada? Do we not have national pride? Or are we forever fated to wallow in the wake of the American way of life? — Monte Vanton, 4351 Gordon Head Rd.

Friendly Drink

I was walking down Johnson Street the other day, hot and tired and I saw a sign beside a dish of water — "For my dumb friends." It made my day. Because I had never really stopped to think, where do animals get a drink in "a hot busy city" — not the ocean; really nowhere. Wouldn't it be nice if more people would think of our dumb friends in this simple way. This was a simple sign, hand-printed on a piece of cardboard, certainly sincere and not an advertising gag and there was plenty of water in the dish. — Friend of dumb animals.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of Aug. 1, 1913:

Recognizing that it is impossible to attempt any municipal work during carnival week, the special civic committee which was appointed to look into the case for annexation of Ward Two of Saanich municipality, has decided not to assemble until a week from Monday at 10 a.m. The committee's function will be to prepare a case on behalf of the city to be adopted by the council, and to be presented to the meeting of ratepayers of Ward Two on August 14. At a recent meeting of the Ratepayer's Association three alternative were discussed: annexation, separation into a new community, or a continuance of present conditions, the last named being resisted on account of the little sympathy the residents have for the idea.

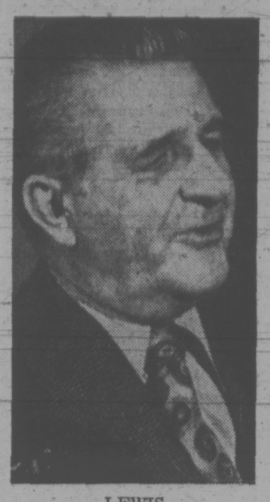
REGIONAL CONFERENCES UNDERMINE SYSTEM

'Another Nail in Federal Coffin'

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — The word "opportunities" is pleasing, if rather innocuous. It was in the title of the Calgary gathering last week: The Western Economic Opportunities Conference.

Usually, opportunities are wholesome chances to be seized and taken. Who can quarrel with them, particularly when they are considered by such a distinguished cast of elected leaders, each using such splendid words as "historic" and "destiny" and "watershed"?



LEWIS

DIEFENBAKER

Something Failed

If indeed this conference represents an event that is a watershed in our history one wonders what it means in the further diminution and failures of the party system in Canada and the Canadian Parliament.

This conference, if it is important and a precedent to be followed, is another nail in the coffin of the federal system at the federal level. Let's not be mysterious. Our elections send representatives from the whole country to Ottawa. Since Confederation, every part of Canada has had representation in the Commons and generally in the ruling ministry.

Since Confederation, two of our parties, Liberal and Conservative (and, since 1961, three of our parties) have represented themselves and been seen as national organizations with a responsibility to develop policies, candidates and a continuing input into federal politics from all parts of the country.

What has happened or, better, what is wrong with this system of parties and Parliament? Something has to have failed if it has become necessary for such unusual "historic" extravaganzas as the WEOC in Calgary.

Such a gathering, so much like a gathering of heads of states from countries in the preliminary stages of a treaty process, makes us conscious that the MPs from the Prairies and the federal parties on the Prairies who choose, back and elect them are largely redundant. Functionally, they will only seem to come into the process down the road as rubber stamps from whatever consequences issue legislatively from this gathering of the regional titans with the Prime Minister.

This heads of state "stuff" is one reflection of the decreasing usefulness and influence of the federal parties and the federal MPs. Another trend is even more pervasive. It is the system into which the tentative conclusions or agreements of Calgary are likely to be directed. For more than a decade, a structure and process of liaison and negotiation between federal and provincial officials has been developing.

Bureaucrats' Work

This proliferation of largely unseen discussion, negotiation and agreements is somewhat more correct constitutionally than the "historic" gathering at Calgary. However, its significance is the same for the MPs and Parliament and the parties.

The real work of policy development and representation of interests is not in the federal parties or in Parliament. It is in the bureaucracies at Ottawa and the provincial capitals and in meetings of heads of provincial states with the prime minister.

When literally hundreds of federal officials have continuing, working arrangements with provincial counterparts, when the really major initiatives on policy directions take place at the summit gatherings of prime minister and premiers, then we have an apparatus for both policy and decision for which the Constitution, in either its written or unwritten parts, does not provide or limit. Meanwhile, back within the bypassed institutions of the Constitution, the Federal MPs and their Parliament become more and more a gathering for an "after-the-events" discussion and approval.

Mr. Trudeau illustrated the inadequacies of representation by MPs and the role of the Commons and Senate in his recent remarks in Vancouver. He has been mocked, for example, by Premier Barrett and David Lewis, for suddenly discovering the facts of Western reality, with his recognition of Western culture, attitudes and symbols.

Mr. Trudeau has been on the Ottawa scene as an elected person for 10 years. There have been literally hundreds of speeches and thousands of questions put in that period by Western MPs. Seemingly, none of it touched him. He never heard John Diefenbaker and Harry Hays and Pat Mahoney and Tommy Douglas and Hazen Argue and that brisk aggregation of Alberta sounders such as Jack Horner, Marcel Lambert, Jed Baldwin and Bud Olson. They spoke "ad nauscash" as individuals and as party spokesmen representing Western interests and so elected.

Nothing New

The fact is, as one listener and reader of such parliamentary performance sees it, almost nothing of what the Western premiers said before this conference, in their proposals, and in their opening statements, is new in form and content to what has been expressed in Parliament by Western MPs. Indeed, one of the soaring irritations of big city MPs from the east has been the weight and persistence of such stuff in debates and considerations of house committees.

None of it all got through to Mr. Trudeau or to his senior advisers until October, 1972. With the Throne Speech in January and its announcement of this historic gathering in Calgary, it became clear that it never will get through and be responded to in Parliament. The means and the instruments for discerning Western "opportunities" is largely to be found outside Parliament and the federal parties.

At the very least, Western MPs of opposition parties and party leaders like Bob Stanfield and David Lewis should recognize the failure of their parties and the institutions of Parliament.

Anyone Can Make a Million But They Can't Buy Booze

(From proceedings of the Ontario legislature. Mr. Shulman is a doctor of medicine and stock market expert and author of Anyone Can Make a Million.)

Morton Shulman (NDP, High Park): I want to tell you about the Liquor Control Board because I had a wonderful experience with them last week.

Some Hon. Members: Shame!

Mr. Shulman: I represent one of the two dry areas left in the province. I think Owen Sound is still dry. And the member for Grey-Bruce (Mr. Sargent) and I have decreed that we are going to fight to keep our two areas dry as long as we can — and certainly I am fighting it a little harder than he is — but in all fairness and all honesty my area is dry and I hope it remains dry. It is one of the few oases in the city that is like that. But despite the fact I don't like them selling it out there I like bringing some home occasionally to drink.

I made the mistake of buying some brandy. I made the mistake of not buying it through the Liquor Control Board. I saw an ad for some brandy over in England and I bought 24 bottles.

There is a law in this province that you may not import any liquor or any wine unless you do it through the Liquor Control Board. That's reasonable. They want to get their cut too. So I phoned up the Liquor Control Board and said: "What do I do?" The man said: "Well, just have them send it to us and we'll look after it and when we get it, you can have it — once you pay a little squeeze."

So fine, I sent a letter to the firm in London and they sent me a letter saying they were shipping the stuff airmail. Three months went by and I received a lovely letter from the Liquor Control Board saying: "If you will come down and pay us" — and the sum was a little more than I paid for the original brandy — "you can have it." I thought, that is great. After all, they have to live too.

So I made out my cheque and said: "I was wondering, if it is all right if I bring a cheque?" they said: "Yes."

I said: "Okay, I'll be down shortly after 12."

I said: "Why?"

"Well, it's siesta hour."

"What do you mean, siesta hour?"

"We all take lunch together."

I said: "You've got to be kidding."

"No, we close at 12 every day. From 12 to 1, that's siesta time."

So, I don't know; they have that in Mexico. I thought maybe the Ontario government had decided this was the way we should live — that we should bring it here, to Ontario. It's not a bad idea.

So I phoned the premier's office — I was curious about this — and I said: "Are you bringing in the siesta? Is this the new thing? We are now going to work from 9 to 12 and we'll siesta from 12 to 3 or something, and then we'll work from 3 to 8? It works fairly well in the hot countries, I am told. If they want to bring it here I am not going to fight it hard, I just like to get the rules straight."

The girl in the office said: "No, I wasn't aware of this." I said: "Well, one government department is, the Liquor Control Board." She said: "No, I don't think so."

So I phoned back to the Liquor Control Board. I said: "Are you sure this is the policy because the premier's office doesn't know about it?" He said: "Well, that's the policy here. We all like to take our lunch together." So I said: "All right, if that's the policy, I'll be down at a quarter to 12." He said: "Oh, you'd better come before that." I said: "Well, why should I come before that?" He said: "Well, you see we all like to be out at 12 sharp, and if you only arrive at a quarter to 12, somebody might have to stay behind and we all like to take our lunch together." So I went down, and I had a rather interesting experience there. Perhaps I should tell the House about it; it was enlightening.

It was on Friedland Street and I got there at 11:30 as I didn't want to be late. There was a huge parking lot but it was all filled. I thought: "My God, they must be busy in there." Actually I was the only customer. They have this big parking lot for the employees, but they don't leave any space for the customers because, well, what the heck, we know who's important in Conservative Ontario — the employees.

I went up to the third floor and I said to the girl on duty: "Where do I pick up my brandy?" She said: "Oh, that's down on the first floor. Leave the money here." So I gave her the money, and said: "Well, where do I get it?" "You go into the shipping department." So I said: "Where is the shipping department?" "Well, when you go down to the first floor, ask that fellow by the elevator where it is."

I said: "What if he won't tell me?" She said: "Of course he'll tell you — don't be ridiculous."

So down I went. I said: "Where's the shipping department?" "I won't tell you." Honest!

I didn't know what to do. I thought there was no use perpetuating this. I went outside, and there was a fellow walking by. I said. "Do you know where the shipping department is?" He said: "Oh yes, right in there." So I got in my car and drove over. I said: "Where do you pick up liquor?" And he said: "That ramp."

I backed the car up to the ramp, got out of my car and said: "Here's my receipt, I paid for it. Can I have my brandy?" Another official appeared and said: "Oh, no, you can't put your car there. Move it back to where it was before, and you have to enter the shipping department through the lobby." I said: "I don't know if they will let me." He said: "Sure they'll let you. You move your car back right where it was before beside the door and come in through the lobby."

★ ★ ★

So I moved the car back to where it was before, went into the lobby and said: "Where is the shipping department?" There were two of them now standing shoulder to shoulder. "Oh. no you don't! You're not going into the shipping department until the police arrive." At this point I thought I'd better go up and speak to whomever is in charge of this establishment, I couldn't use the elevator, so I climbed up the three floors again.

There are all sorts of offices all around the outside, and I wasn't sure which person to speak to, so I stood in the middle of the floor, and, at the top of my voice, I yelled: "who runs this madhouse?"

They all ran out — and several of them claimed credit for it! They took me back downstairs again, and a whole bunch of them escorted me bodily into the shipping department and gave me my brandy — all except three bottles which apparently had got lost between the time it arrived at the Liquor Control Board and the time I had gone to pick it up. They told me at the time that they had been broken on arrival. I opened the original cases but there are no liquor stains or broken glass; I guess they must have evaporated.

Mr. J. F. Foulds (Port Arthur): Glass and all?

Mr. Shulman: Glass and all. There is only one thing that really bothers me about this, Mr. Speaker, and perhaps you can enlighten me: Why do they all have to have their lunch together?

I looked, I went around the block a couple of times and there was nowhere to park. There was a public parking lot two blocks away, but there were two cases of brandy. I didn't see how I could carry two cases of brandy so far.

Finally, there was a tiny spot right beside the entrance, so I squeezed in there and got out of my car.

I went into the front office and said: "I would like to pick up my brandy. Here is the receipt for it." He said: "Is that your car?" I said "Yes." He said, "Well, you'll have to move your car first." I said, "Okay, where shall I move it to?" He said: "I don't care where you move it, just move it anywhere." I said: "But there is nowhere to move it to; you have all the spots filled with your employees' cars." "That's your problem."

I thought about that for a minute, then I said: "Well, what if I don't move it?" He said: "We will have the police tow it away." I said: "Okay, you have the police tow it away. I just want to pick up my case, and I'll be gone before the police arrive anyway." Where do I pick up the liquor?" He said: "I'm not telling you."

On the wall a sign shows where the various offices are; and I got in the elevator to push the button to go up to the third floor, which I presumed was where I was to pick it up. Another fellow came running out and said: "You can't use the elevator until you've moved your car." I said: "There is nowhere to move the car to."

I pushed the button on the elevator, and he said: "Oh, no you don't," and put his foot in the door to make sure the elevator couldn't go up. I thought this was a little strange, but I guess this is normal government civility. I said: "Okay, if I can't use the elevator, I'm willing to abide by the rules." So I walked up the three flights. I didn't want to get mad because they have rules — if you park in the wrong place you can't use the elevator.

WHY WAIT?

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

In Britain in the forties — or so the story goes — hospital space was so scarce that couples were warned to book a maternity bed 10 months in advance.

Health Minister Marc Lalonde would hardly regard the request as unreasonable. After all, he's been asked to consider a British Columbia suggestion that parents should be able to draw a 10-year advance on baby bonus payments to use as a down payment on a house.

Well, why not? And while he is at it, shouldn't the minister weigh the merits of retroactive baby bonus payments? Many Canadians were born too soon to qualify — why should they be denied their share?

What of other Ottawa benefits? If the old age pension could be made in advance — say at age 30 — beneficiaries would be far better equipped to prepare for their golden years. Why wait for a pension until a man's too old to enjoy it?

Unemployment insurance benefits? Why shouldn't we draw some UIC money now to help prepare for that rainy day? And why should all those veterans' benefits have to wait until we have a war?

Nixon's Sad Young Men

By WILLIAM V. SHANNON

WASHINGTON — They are Richard Nixon's children, these sad young men who come day after day before the Senate committee. They tell their stories of files neatly kept, of "talking papers" and "action papers," of trips in Air Force One and messages relayed on "secure" telephones, and of their gradual participation in crime. The end came so swiftly, so unexpectedly. In a few, unravelling months, they moved from the hushed corridors of power to the strained recollections of the grand jury room and the frantic bargaining for immunity.

The Nixon administration far exceeded any of its predecessors in putting young men in high places. Ronald Ziegler, John W. Dean III, Egil Krogh, Gordon Strachan, Dwight Chapin, and a dozen others were in their late 20s or early 30s when first appointed. For several of them, their jobs in the White House were the first jobs of any consequence they ever held.

Except for one or two who had the good sense to pull back from personal involvement at the last moment, they turned blind eyes to the wickedness going on around them or willingly participated in perjury, burglary, destruction of evidence and so on. Why were they all so susceptible? Why did none of them show any moral independence or backbone?

It is equally important to ask why the two senior men on the staff — H. R. Haldeman, 46, and John D. Ehrlichman, 48 — surrounded themselves with these much younger and unqualified aides.

One could reasonably conclude from the Watergate fiasco that only older, more experienced persons should be appointed even to middle level jobs in the White House. But that would be a generational slur on many able young men and women of 28 or 30 or 32 who could rise to the challenge of work at the White House. The Nixon young men, after all, were not prodigies, first in their class or editors of their law review or authors of promising books.

Why did Haldeman and Ehrlichman not chooose the best talent available? Did they want callow aides who would do what they were told even if it was illegal or unethical? Or was it only an accident that there were so many willing accomplices on the staff before and after the crime of Watergate?

As power monopolists, the Haldeman-Ehrlichman team did not want anyone around of comparable age or greater experience who might challenge their supremacy. Even a young man would have to have a certain pliancy to stand for the bullying that Haldeman inflicted on Gordon Strachan, telephoning him at 4 a.m. to bawl him out and requiring him to wear a "beeper" so that his whereabouts would never be in doubt.

Familiar from earlier Nixon campaigns with political "dirty tricks," both junior men had to find aides prepared to accommodate themselves to the chosen methods of their superiors.

The young men they selected come from comfortable and a few of them from wealthy family backgrounds. They are social "BMOC's," members of the campus fraternities, successful campus politicians and gentlemen athletes, swimming and playing tennis, suntanned and well-dressed.

There is, psychologically speaking, an interesting symbiosis between Nixon himself and these young men. The president, reared in poverty, physically graceless and socially awkward, who even now finds it difficult to make small talk, a classic "grind" from an obscure college, is in marked contrast to these generally good-looking, easily articulate, self-confident youths. They represent the kind of young man that Richard Nixon would like to have been, 30 or 35 years ago.

If these young men acted out Nixon's idealized daydream of himself, they also took their cues from him and his senior aides. Completely orthodox in their social outlook, ferociously ambitious, intelligent but not original or erudite or intellectually curious, these young men served only their own careers. They had no guiding ethic except to do what their bosses wanted.

It is no accident that two of their clichés are "at that point in time" and "in that time frame." None of them ever seems to have studied any American history or political philosophy.

Yet it is impossible not to be sorry for these sad young men, their hopes and in some instances their lives blighted. If they had served a president who by precept and example had shown them what is not done in the White House, what standards have to be observed, what sacrifices of political and personal self-interest are required by public service, they might have learned gradually and painlessly what Watergate has taught them so harshly. But who, knowing his record, would ever choose Richard Nixon as his moral preceptor?

Futures Market Really Risky Even for Ex-Prairie Types

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

You don't have to be born on the Prairies to play the Winnipeg futures market — but it helps.

"We only have a few customers who play the futures market," said an official of a major Victoria brokerage house.

"And I believe they are all from the Prairies. It helps if you know something about flax and barley and rapeseed."

But being an expert in agriculture is no guarantee of success in the futures market.

"Anyone can get lucky — or unlucky. It is a real market for gamblers."

While major Victoria investment houses have a man on staff who specializes in the futures market, there is no rush to recruit new business for that type of trading.

"In a sense we try to discourage people from the futures market. They can make a fortune quickly but they can lose quickly, too. We warn them that they should not consider the futures market unless they have at least $5,000 that they can afford to lose."

On the other hand, investors can take a flyer on the stock market with only a couple of hundred in their pocket.

For example, a miller might want a load of wheat in October and another load in December. However, the farmer wants to sell all his wheat at harvest time.

The farmer and miller would sign a contract, a futures contract, for the December order to be filled at a fixed price now, but the wheat would be stored in a mutually agreed neutral place until delivery date in December.

The farmer has his money and the miller has his guaranteed supply of wheat in December.

More frequently, however, a middleman will buy up the contract from the farmer at harvest time and sell it later in the fall to the miller.

The contracts often change hands many times between harvest time and delivery day.

The name of the game is to avoid having a futures contract in your possession on delivery date unless you are a miller.

The investment community tells stories about an investor who forgot about the futures contract in his drawer and came home one day to find a load of wheat on his front lawn.

In recent years, the more common situation is to receive a frantic phone call from a railway official wondering what to do with a full boxcar that must be emptied that day.

In most cases, investors are out of the market before delivery date, having sold their contracts to millers or other wholesalers.

The futures market is as much of a gamble as being a farmer. Hailstorms, rail strikes, demand, oversupply—all affect prices on a day to day basis.

To minimize the incredible gains or losses that can occur, future markets put limits on price fluctuations in any day.

For example, at time of writing the price of flax was $10 per bushel. In a day's trade, the closing price can be no higher than $10.20 or lower than $9.80 for a 40 cent range.

If the closing price was $10.20, the next day's range would be $10 to $10.40.

Because of this restriction, it takes at least three days to be wiped out.

A flax contract is 1,000 bushels.

At $10 per bushel, one contract costs $10,000, of which $500 in cash must be put up by the investor. The brokerage house pays the rest. If the price falls to $9.50, the broker sells the contract and gets his money back. The investor is wiped out.

Usually, a flax purchase will be 10,000 bushels, worth $100,000. The investor puts up $5,000.

As noted, it would take three days to lose all $5,000. Or he could double his money in three days.

Because the Canadian Wheat Board controls prices in this country, there is no futures trading in wheat on the Winnipeg futures exchange.

Winnipeg deals in barley, flax, rape, cattle and gold.

Hudson's Bay Oil

Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Co. Ltd. has reported net earnings of $16.8 million for the six months ended June 30, an increase of $4.3 million or 35 per cent from the same period in 1972.

Earnings per share were 88 cents, compared with 64 cents last year.

Net earnings in the second quarter were $9.6 million, or 50 cents a share, compared with $6.7 million or 35 cents a share for the second quarter last year.

Revenue during the second quarter increased 28 per cent over the same period last year and totalled $32.5 million.

Canada Permanent

Canada Permanent Trust Co. has reported net operating income of 95 cents a share for the six-month period ended June 30, up from 88 cents for the same period in 1972.

Assets grew by 9.4 per cent or $150 million during the 12-month period to the end of June, totalling $1,761 million.

A prepared release said higher interest rates could have an adverse effect on net operating income in the second half of 1973 but "a satisfactory increase in annual profit from 1972 levels is projected."

Union Gas

Union Gas Ltd. reports net earnings of $2.16 million or 14.2 cents a share for the first quarter of its fiscal year compared wih $3.13 million or 20.7 cents a share for the comparable period last year.

Sales for the quarter, which ended June 30, were $34.41 million this year and $32.17 million last year.

Rising supply costs and mild spring weather were cited as the main reason for the drop in earnings in the report to shareholders.

Canada Packers

Canada Packers Ltd. reports profit of $3.86 million or 64 cents a share for the 13 weeks ended June 30 — the first quarter in its fiscal year — compared with $2.8 million or 47 cents a share for the corresponding quarter of the previous year.

First-quarter sales totalled $343.83 million this year and $254.63 million last year.

Dofasco

Dominion Foundries and Steel Ltd. reports net income for the six months ended June 30 of $25,700,000, or $1.61 a share, up from $17,200,000, or $1.07, a year ago.

Sales during the period rose to $264,400,000 from $216,300,000.

Scott Paper

Scott Paper Ltd. reports net profit for the first half of this year at $969,904 or $1.21 a share compared with $928,025 or $1.16 a share in the first half of 1972.

Second quarter sales were $13,443,363 compared with $12,309,081.

Arthur Armstrong, president, said all the company's product sales increased in the first half, showing a growth in consumption of sanitary papers in Canada and an increase in Scott's penetration of the market.

Husky Oil

Husky Oil Ltd. of Calgary has announced net earnings of $7,696,000 or 77 cents per share for the first six months of 1973, compared with $4,274,000 or 41 cents for the corresponding period last year.

Husky Oil president James Nielson attributed the "significant improvements in earnings" to increased production levels with higher prices for crude oil and to improved volumes and profits from steel operations.

B.C. FIRM BUYS $2M ONT. LAND

MARKHAM, Ont. (CP) — Young Associates Ltd., a Vancouver property development firm that manages 10 shopping centres in Canada, has purchased for $2,060,000 — with a $20,000 down payment — the fair grounds in this community just north of Toronto.

The land, zoned for agricultural use, was owned by the Markham and East York Agricultural Association.

Ira Young, president of the Vancouver firm, said application would be made to the local planning board and town council for a zoning change on the 30-acre site that, since 1854, has been home to a three-day fall fair.

"It could either be for highrise apartments, commercial, residential, or a combination of both," he said.

The sale is not contingent on approval for a zoning change.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A Victoria man who is "oppressed, bewildered and emotionally deflated" was sentenced in provincial court to nine months in jail.

Judge William Ostler applied the adjectives to Jeffrey Hinchliffe, 22, of 1468 Fort Street and said he had no doubt Hinchliffe has a personality disorder.

Hinchliffe was charged with four separate counts of breaking and entering with intent to committ an offence, breaking and entering and theft, wilful damage and possession of hashish.

The break-ins happened May 15 at four Victoria businesses. A cash box was taken from one.

Hinchliffe also pleaded guilty to breaking a window May 15. Prosecutor Peter Birkett said the owner of the broken window caught Hinchliffe, but he bolted. Minutes later, Hinchliffe was arrested by police for possession of a small amount of hashish. When police took the man to the station, the owner of the broken window was there reporting the damage and recognized Hinchliffe.

Ostler said he would recommend Hinchliffe's sentence be spent in a forestry camp.

New Canadian immigration laws are designed to reserve Canadian jobs for Canadians, Ostler told a California man.

Charles Allan Lewis, 18, of Santa Rosa, was fined $50 for working in Canada without a valid employment visa.

Ostler said Lewis had admitted entering Canada as a tourist, but decided to stay longer. He got a job with a farmer on Salt Spring Island between April 3 to 7 and was working only for room and board. The judge said Lewis "reluctantly" accepted $25 from the farmer for the work.

"The statute immigration law) recognizes an economic fact of life — the fluctuation of employment figures — and provides that persons who enter the country in the guise of tourists and visitors will not unilaterally change their status and become members of the work force," Ostler said.

Defence lawyer Robert Edwards applied for an absolute discharge in the case, but was opposed by prosecutor Robert Buffam.

Ostler told Taylor if his previous record had been because of "dishonesty", the judge would have sent him to jail.

Taylor recently got out of jail after serving two months for a drug offence.

He told the judge all he wanted to do was "keep working and keep out of jail."

David Laws, 25, of no fixed address, was sentenced to two months in jail after he pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana.

Laws was searched by police on Langley Street Monday night and was found to have a paper bag containing the narcotic hidden in his pants.

Laws' previous record included three convictions for trafficking in narcotics and in a restricted drug.

Browne's high fine was due to a February conviction for impaired driving.

William Henry Warren, 34, of 167 Helmcken, was fined $350 for being impaired. Warren was stopped by police June 14 on Broughton.

In traffic court Dent A. J. Allan, 43, of 3230 Milgrove, was fined $350 and had his driver's licence suspended for three months for impaired driving March 19 at Burnside and Tillicum.

Pot Harvest On

OMAHA, Neb. (Reuter) — State police intercepted a battered van on a highway near here early this week, arrested its occupants and seized its contents. The act signalled the opening of the annual marijuana harvest in Nebraska. Marijuana grows wild in abundance in the eastern and central Nebraska and in neighboring states. The late summer brings an influx of thousands of harvesters, mostly young men and women in van-type vehicles. More sophisticated gatherers fly into Omaha or Lincoln, rent cars and head for the fields.

Astronauts Perky For First Time

HOUSTON (UPI)—Skylab 2 astronauts, feeling good for the first time after a meal, started all-important medical tests today to monitor their reactions to the strange world of weightlessness.

Alan Bean, Owen Garriott and Jack Lousma were eating up to six light meals and snacks today to avoid the stomach queasiness they have been experiencing at mealtime as a result of their long bout with space age seasickness.

"This is the first time we've been up here that after a meal everybody felt good," Bean reported after breakfast. "Maybe if we eat all these little meals we'll really start getting in good shape. Everybody feels real good right now."

Garriott, an electrical engineer who is serving as medic for the two-month mission, turned on medical equipment in Skylab's large experiment area and reported the instruments were in good shape after being inactive since the last crew left in June.

The medical tests had top priority today because they were expected to show how the astronauts were adjusting to the environment that has caused their longer-than-expected siege with motion sickness. Doctors wanted the information before committing the pilots to their first spacewalk. There were three medical experiments on today's schedule.

Subdividers May Pay for Wires

Subdividers should pay the full cost of underground wiring schemes, Saanich planning committee decided Tuesday.

But aldermen reserved endorsation of the proposal until they are provided with more information and recommendations from the planning department, including whether professional planners agree that all new subdivisions should have underground wiring.

The committee also would like to know more about prospective costs of achieving complete underground wiring for the possible effect on lot prices individual buyers will have to pay.

Ald. William Noel, who pointed out that he recently was involved in this phase of developing a small subdivision, suggested the works committee's premise of $400 a lot cost to a developer to install wiring below ground could in fact become $800 in practice.

In larger subdivisions this would mean a substantial amount of money, to be borne eventually by the individual owner. Noel did agree with the principle of underground wiring.

"But we're going to be in for some flak," he warned.

The existing means of paying for underground electrical service is to initiate a local improvement project with the developer, municipality and B.C. Hydro sharing the cost.

Ald. William Campbell, chairman of works committee, said the local improvement method involves the municipality in paying for a scheme in which it should not be responsible—and takes years to pay for it.

Yet, either way, the developer adds the cost to the price of the property, Campbell noted.

Municipal planner Tom Loney said the principle of underground wiring installed and paid for by the developer is concurred with, but he was unprepared to say which subdivision districts should be designated for mandatory subsurface installations.

He suggested more committee-level discussion and guidance.

Assistant planner Gil Laurenson said:

"Despite the cost . . . we have to look to the future where we will have no overhead poles."

The provision "might reduce the subdivider's profit, but at least there will be fully serviced, clean subdivisions," Waring said.

Campbell said he would not want to see the recommendation made mandatory for all subdivisions, only the better ones.

Laurenson said the aim was not to require massive underground wiring installations, but to seek quality.

In other business the committee adopted a recommendation that in order to comply with a Municipal Act amendment the practice of bonding subdivision contractors be instituted to replace the practice of accepting deposit cheques.

Police, Central Saanich Sued for Crash Damages

The driver of a car which collided with a Central Saanich police cruiser Dec. 12 has begun legal action against the municipality, former Police Chief John Gelling and dismissed constable Jim Earl.

Ruben Clark, 2141 Tanlee Cres. is claiming special and general damages for injuries suffered when his van collided with the police car, driven by Earl, on East Saanich Road.

Clark claims Earl was negligent in driving "recklessly," on the wrong side of the road, without due care and attention, and at an "excessive rate of speed" for the prevailing weather conditions.

Gelling is guilty of negligence, Clark alleges, in ordering Earl to drive the vehicle, knowing "that equipment on the motor vehicle in question was in defective condition and in particular that the tires were of a bias and radial type and did not match."

The statement of claim, filed in B.C. Supreme Court by Clark's lawyer Cecil Branson, states that Clark suffered "serious personal injuries" and is now "permantly handicapped to the extent that he may not in the future be able to carry on the same employment as he has in the past, and in addition, has suffered and will continue to suffer a loss of amenities and the enjoyment of life."

No date for trial has been set.

Nurse Hearne Dies

A true veteran of both world wars, former nurse Marnie B. Hearne, was buried today at St. Paul's Garrison Church.

She died Sunday at the Veterans' Hospital.

One of few Canadian nurses to serve overseas in both world wars, Miss Hearne was born in Brandon, Manitoba and later entered the Regina General Hospital's School of Nursing in 1912.

She graduated in 1916 and immediately signed up to go overseas with the Canadian troops at 22 by getting her father to swear an affidavit that she was 23 and of age.

She spent 39 months nursing troops in France, returned to Deer Lodge Hospital in Winnipeg between wars and was later reassigned to France during the Second World War for six years.

After 38 years of nursing she retired and became a resident of 1550 Begbie Street, later moving to James Bay Lodge.

Miss Hearne is survived by: two sisters, Mrs. A. R. (Alice) de Manby, of Toronto and Mrs. R. Dunlop of Foam Lake, Sask., her niece, Mrs. Hugh (Marnie) Ellis of Ottawa, a nephew, Charles de Manby, of Willowdale, Ont., and a cousin, Mrs. J. Littlehales, of Victoria.

Millions Flee Drought

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian relief officials launching a $1-million emergency African relief drive Tuesday heard a moving description of millions of people facing famine and fleeing the sun-scorched drought area.

"Lives are at stake," said Andre Coulbay, Senegal's ambassador to the United States and Canada.

"It is difficult to convey the dimensions of this natural disaster," he said, describing his recent flight over the parched African Sahel area where "sand and rocks are darkened by the intense heat . . . any water evaporates immediately and even the next rainfall won't do any good."

Buildings have turned red from wind-whipped hot sands lashing them, he said.

Coulbary came here from Washington, D.C., to attend he announcement of eight Canadian relief groups launching a $1-million appeal to Canadian citizens to aid the countries of Senegal, Mauritania, Mali, Upper Volta, Niger and Chad.

"Millions are facing famine, disease and even death," said Coulbary.

The dorught culminates five years of scant rainfall and "it is the worst of this century."

Canadian aid, along with relief from other countries, will "help prevent a disaster of monstrous proportions," he said.

"You can't imagine what it is to lack water," he said. Thousands, perhaps millions, are trekking southward out of the drought area, compounding the problem.

THE HOUSE OF Seagram

INTEGRITY CRAFTSMANSHIP

"OUR POSITION IN B.C."

To: British Columbians
From: The House of Seagram Ltd.

We regret that our products have been unavailable to British Columbians, because of a labour dispute, since the month of March this year.

The general situation arising from the labour dispute between our Company and our unionized employees has aroused concern beyond ourselves and the labour movement. It is a subject of interest to consumers and the B.C. public in general. For these reasons, The House of Seagram Ltd. feels it has an obligation to make its position in the dispute clear to all residents of the province.

1. History of Negotiations

The House of Seagram Ltd. operates seven distilleries in Canada, including the B.C. Distillery at New Westminster. Negotiations for a new master contract began in November 1972 with representatives from all our Canadian plants. These negotiations were satisfactorily concluded in April and resulted in agreement on a three-year contract that was acceptable to all parties except for Local 69 of the B.C. distillery. The new agreement took effect February 1st, 1973.

2. Strike Without Negotiation

During the course of these discussions with representatives from all our plants, the Company was suddenly advised of Local 69's intent to negotiate a contract separate from the national settlement. Up to that time, Local 69 had taken part in negotiations with the Company for a "master" contract with the Distillery, Rectifying, Wine and Allied Workers' International Union of America (D.W.U.)

Before any separate negotiations with Local 69 could take place, the B.C. local went on strike March 1st of this year. This put the Company in the position of having a strike on its hands without having had the opportunity to negotiate with the local.

3. Local 69 Negotiations

We started negotiations with Local 69 in the month of April. Progress was made even though the union's demands differed substantially from the settlement made with the six other Seagram distilleries in Canada.

At the Company's request, mediation services were provided in the dispute by a B.C. government mediator, and later, also by a former federal minister of labour, the Hon. Bryce Mackasey, M.P.

4. No Settlement

During negotiations in June the Company made further concessions to Local 69 in an attempt to meet their priorities but no agreement could be reached. A further meeting was arranged in July by the B.C. Government mediator. Unfortunately at this meeting, Local 69 again increased their demands and the Company has therefore reverted to offering the terms and conditions accepted in the "master" agreement by all its other Canadian employees.

5. The Company Offer

Terms of this offer would provide employees of the B.C. Distillery with a 10.4 per cent average wage rate increase per year for three years including a cost of living benefit in the second and third years. This offer compares with the latest B.C. Government figures published for manufacturing workers in larger industries, showing the average wage rate settlements negotiated in the last 12 months to be 8.8% increase per year.

In addition, in the Company's offer, there are significant improvements in vacations, holidays, sick pay, long term disability, survivor benefits and pensions, including improvements in early retirement provisions and past service credits.

We present this summary to inform the British Columbia public of the background and reasons why our products are unavailable at the present time.

Anti-TB Drug Tested on Cancer

By JEFF CARRUTHERS
Special to The Times

OTTAWA — BCG, the widely-used anti-TB vaccine, is being given a chance to prove its worth as an anti-cancer treatment starting this summer in hospitals all across Canada.

The Canadian Cancer Research Co-ordinating Committee, recently established by the federal government, has just launched a two-year test of the effectiveness of BCG against operable lung cancers.

In the wings are two more clinical trials involving BCG: one expected to start this fall, pitting BCG against cancer of the lymph glands: a second, expected to start next year, involving cancer of the colon. And there may be more after that.

All in all, the BCG trials should cost about $100,000 per year and last two years each. And cancer experts hope it will prove or disprove recent claims that BCG is effective in treating and controlling certain types of cancers, including skin cancer and leukemia.

The first trial, just started in July, involves surgical teams in hospitals and universities from Newfoundland to British Columbia.

By the end of the test, some 100 patients will have been given BCG orally, starting five days after surgery to remove a lung cancer tumor and lasting for 18 months or until the lung cancer reappears.

Another 100 patients will receive all the treatment but the BCG.

Dr. H. E. Taylor, director of the Medical Research Council's awards program and a co-ordinator of the BCG trial, explained Tuesday that the clinical trials will test the theory that BCG vaccine can stimulate the body's cell-mediated immune defences — the lymphocytes — to attack and control certain types of cancerous cells.

"We're going to be treating what we call resectable lung cancers," Dr. Taylor said — meaning lung cancers that look like they can be operated on successfully.

"We know that the two-year cure rate among these patients is only about 40 per cent," he said.

"We are trying to find out if BCG treatment will improve this rate" — that is, if the recurrence rate for lung cancers after surgery will drop among those given BCG after surgery. If the theories are correct, the BCG would trigger an attack to wipe out any remaining lung cancer cells, preventing them from spreading.

Dr. Taylor has cautioned that there is a danger that launching this type of a study might unduly raise the hopes of terminal cancer patients.

"At the moment, there is no firm scientific evidence that BCG is of any help in treating anything but some types of skin cancer," he said.

There have been studies, including one in Quebec, that suggest children given BCG seem to have fewer cases of leukemia than unvaccinated children.

The lung cancer trial involves surgical teams at the University of Manitoba in Winnipeg and at the University of British Columbia in Vancouver, as well as in Halifax, Quebec, Montreal, Kingston, Toronto, Hamilton, Saskatoon, Edmonton, and St. John's, Nfld.

Teams in Ottawa, London and Sherbrooke are expected to join later in the year.

NEW POISON KING

Special to The Times

OTTAWA — Valium the most widely-prescribed tranquillizer, has deposed baby aspirins as the king of poisons in Canada, according to the latest poison control statistics published by the health department.

And LSD and related psychedelic drugs have also made another dramatic jump in the poison ratings, coming in third behind baby aspirins, the 1971 statistics reveal.

But on the bright side of things, there is now evidence across Canada a significant decline in poisonings involving baby aspirins, adult aspirins, and pain-killer products containing acetysalicylic acid, ASA, generally.

The decline seems to be the result of a number of control measures initiated in recent years, including use of safety closures, packaging restrictions, and labelling changes.

With the dethroning of aspirin as poison king, there is another, perhaps more disturbing trend developing in Canada. Poisonings more and more are involving adults; and poisonings more and more are related to attempted suicides and to drug abuse.

In the past, when aspirin and Javex ruled supreme, the bulk of poisonings involved preschool children.

This more recent trend towards older age groups is also reflected in the fact that there are more deaths resulting from poisonings.

EIGHT GULP FROGS

DUBLIN (AP) — The contest was, to say the least, a little hard to swallow.

Eight men were vying for the title of champion frog-gulper of Ireland . . . with live frogs.

For two of the more queasy competitors at the first-ever championship in Ballycumber, County Offaly, during the weekend it ended, you might say, with a frog in the throat.

"We can't swallow the damn things" they croaked.

But the contest ended suddenly in a six-way tie. The surviving frogs, kept in a bucket, decided there wasn't much future in the sport and bounced off for a quiet pond someplace.

Stephen Fahy, one of the six winners, said later: "I never tried this before, but it's easy.

"The frogs just slid down my throat when I closed my mouth on them. I feel fine."

The idea for the contest apparently was based on the forg-comsuming habit of one Jack Capraini, a Dublin printer, who contended live frogs absorbed all the harmful acids in his stomach.

W. Germany Counter-Spy Acts by U.S.

WASHINGTON (WP) — The U.S. defence department has confirmed that it has conducted counter-espionage operations in West Germany in which it investigated groups allegedly encouraging American soldiers to desert their units.

However, army and Pentagon officials insisted that the spying activities were known to the West German authorities and conformed to United States regulations and German-American agreements.

They also stated that the activities would continue "as long as we have forces abroad, as long as their is concern about such things as sabotage, desertion, and theft, and as long as these things are done within the law."

The Pentagon statements were made in response to a detailed story in the New York Times in which the paper's Bonn correspondent relying on army military intelligence agents in West Germany listed examples in which local German civilians and organizations had been placed under surveillance.

Army spokesman Col. Phillip Stevens refused to confirm that West German civilians had been among those subjected to the surveillance, as stated in the newspaper's story.

"I am not aware of any German civilians being involved," he said.

Real-Life Soap Opera With the Laundry Set

These true confessions of The Laundromat Marauder are volunteered only in the hope that other temporary bachelors, in this month when many wives and children are at the summer camp, may be spared the same fate.

It shows, I suppose, the protected, chauvinistic life I've led, but I'd never been in one of these coin-operated laundries before and, so, when I found I was running short of fresh shirts, underwear, socks and pyjamas, I felt a certain apprehension about facing up to my debut.

"Nothing to it," I was assured by Bruce Obee, the reporter and a full-time bachelor, when I expressed to him my childish fears. "The directions are all on the machine. if you've any questions just ask the attendant. The only thing you need worry about is mixing the colored things."

There was, as it happens, no attendant when, summonsing every last ounce of savoir faire, I carried my basket into the smallest, most out-of-the way coin-operated laundry I could find.

There were, in fact, just two young women, wearing slacks and with pin-curlers in their hair, busy putting laundry into the machines. One of these matrons, I decided, looked more approachable than the other. So I put my basket on the adjoining machine and turned to her with my very best Uncle Jack smile.

"Hi, there," I said.

The young woman took a step backward. Did her nice blue eyes harden? Yes they did. Clearly this young woman was somehow under the impression that at last, just as mother had told her, she had come upon a real, live, dirty old man.

"Hi, there," I said, again, "I'm a . . . uh . . . batching temporarily and I . . . uh . . . that is to say, I'm not . . . uh . . . familiar with . . ."

The young woman darted a glance at her companion across the way who, I saw, was now eyeing me just as narrowly. I sensed somehow that both were wondering when to call the morality squad.

"I mean," I plunged on, "is it . . . uh . . . is it all right if I put these blue, polka-dot shorts in with these pink pyjamas?"

Suddenly I realized I had unwittingly established myself as a bachelor with blue, polka-dot shorts and pink pyjamas, obviously a monster preying upon innocent young women in the laundromats of the world.

The young woman muttered something which I took to be "Yes" and I emptied my basket into the machine, poured in the soap flakes (as Bruce had instructed me), and pushed in the quarter and dime. Miraculously, the machine began its work.

★ ★ ★

A hush now settled over the laundromat, broken only by the muted whirring and shuddering of the machines and the whispers of my two companions who, I saw, had retreated to a corner and were watching me furtively, perhaps wondering what my next move would be. I was wondering that myself.

Blindly, I reached for the one single magazine on the premises. It turned out to be "Cleaner and Launderer — Canada's National Magazine Serving the Fabric Care Industry."

With sightless eyes I began reading an editorial called "The Positive Approach," which began: "There's a good deal of 'hidden gold' in the fabric care industry if one is interested enough in searching it out and then claiming it." I know that because I read it nine times, wondering how in the world I was going to allay the obvious suspicions of my companions.

It occured to me that if I made some friendly comment relevant to our situation, such as "There's a good deal of 'hidden gold' in the fabric care industry," it might do the trick. But when I looked up, forming the friendly smile upon my face, I saw that both young women had disappeared. There was only me and the irritable machines.

They had still not returned — though I noticed that both their red lights were out — when my own light blinked off. I snatched the clean laundry, put it in my basket and made my escape.

I had planned on using the dryer, too, but, instead, I hurried home and put it all on the line and it all blew off in the night and I hope they're satisfied.

Myself, I only know that, as far as temporary bachelors are concerned, there's a good deal of 'hidden gold' in the fabric care industry. It's called the old-fashioned Chinese laundry.

RUSHING HOME to the arms of his family, Capt. Terrence Burt, left, has eyes for nobody else. Tears of joy well in the eyes of his wife, Paddy, right, as she and their two children, Christopher, five, and Kitty, three, hug him tight. (Photos by Bill Halkett).

Families First!

Wives and children come first, as high-ranking officers on hand to greet five Victoria servicemen on their return from Vietnam discovered Tuesday.

The men were returning from duty with the International Commission of Control and Supervision.

(See also Page 34.)

Dental officer Major Justin McNeil was oblivious to others as he greeted his girl friend, Bonnie Greening. He said he had "thoroughly enjoyed," his stay in Vietnam because it gave him an opportunity to study a new culture.

Paddy Burt had tears in her eyes as she rushed into the arms of Capt. Terrence Burt, their two children clinging to their parents.

Major Derek Bamford and Capt. Duncan Wain also had their families on hand for the homecoming.

Bamford, a seasoned soldier with 26 years of service to his credit, was the most articulate at the short press conference that followed the tarmac greetings.

Among those on hand for the arrival were Lt.-Col. R. L. Cowling, new commander *of the 3rd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Ca*nadian Light Infantry; Lt.-Col. Bill Harrington and Lt.-Col. Al Taylor.

Earlier in Vancouver, the 244 returning Canadians had been greeted by chief of defence staff Gen. Jacques Dextraze, who read them telegrams from Governor-General Roland Michener and Prime Minister Trudeau.

Pollen Raps 'Hidden' Firm

Mayor Peter Pollen today accused the giant Standard Life Assurance Company of "hiding behind the skirts" of developer Jim Mace over the Bay Village development in James Bay.

Pollen said the building permit issued to Mace last week, reported to be part of the total development package sold last Wednesday by Mace to Standard Life for $1.6 million, is not valid for the new owners.

"They (Standard Life) will have to come and see us about a fresh building permit," the mayor told reporters, adding, "I can see no reason for withholding it."

Pollen insisted he was misquoted last week in saying the city was "delighted" Standard Life had bought out Mace.

"I think it is somewhat reprehensible that a company of this size, substance and social responsibility should be, in the land development business, hiding behind the skirts of men who are essentially promoters," he said.

"I don't use the term promoters in a derogatory sense, but this is the second project the company has taken over after Mace has hammered it into shape" (a reference to the fact that Standard Life had bought the $4 million Roberts House highrise from Mace in late 1971).

Pollen said a substantial company like Standard Life should "discuss its projects with the city before it develops them and in the development stage."

Soviet Deserter Wants Good Life

A Russian seaman who jumped ship looking for a better life will find out this week if he deserves it.

Immigration officials in Victoria and Ottawa will decide if Mehailovich Chezkosow can remain in Canada.

In a preliminary interview Monday, Chezkosow told immigration authorities he had left his fishing boat, Opala Friday because he was "dissatisfied" with the politics and with his life in Russia.

"It seemed much easier to live here,' 'the seaman said in an interview from his Victoria jail cell.

Chezkosow said the Opala collided in late July with another Russian boat somewhere off the Oregon coast.

A Canadian boat came to rescue of the Russian seamen and towed the two boats into Yarrows dockyard in Victoria.

The crewmen were given a bus tour of the city and later that night Chezkosow made his decision to defect.

A description of the small, red-haired seaman was issued to all RCMP and police detachements and a search began.

Chezkosow turned himself in to local RCMP Monday, immigration official Douglas Cook said Tuesday.

Chezkosow apparently hid from police in a campsite at Goldstream until he was persuaded by a Czechoslovakian woman to give himself up.

The seaman was interviewed, through an interpreter and his application for political asylum was sent to Ottawa.

Until official word comes from Ottawa, Cook said, Chezkosow's status is that of a deserting sailor and he will remain in Victoria jail until that status is changed.

Cook said he expected to hear from Immigration Minister Robert Andras by the end of the week.

Politically, Chezkosow's situation is touchy.

Chezkosow said he has no friends or relatives in Canada and the only information he had on the country was gleaned from geography books he read while in Russia.

Russian officials in Ottawa have told immigration authorities Chezkosow stole money from his fishing boat, but the seaman denied the charges. He had $6 on him when he turned himself in and said the money was given to him by the Czechoslovakian woman who befriended him while he was in hiding.

The seaman's bid for political asylum is the third on the West Coast in a year and a half.

Lydia del Rio Turnino, a stowaway on a Cuban ship which arrived in Nanaimo harbor Feb. 8. 1972, was granted landed immigrant status and allowed to stay with a Nanaimo family which "adopted" her.

Soviet seaman Andrei Vlasov jumped ship in Nanaimo in late 1971 and told immigration authorities he was disenchanted with Russian life. He was also allowed to stay.

City to Province: Let's Talk About Your Precinct Plans

Victoria city council agreed Tuesday to try to establish regular channels of communication with the provincial government on all provincial planning matters affecting the city, either directly or indirectly.

The move came at the strong urging of Ald. Sam Bawlf, chairman of the transportation and land-use planning committee, who said it was vital to the city's future to have some kind of "on-going, structured dialogue" between the two levels of government on a number of key planning and development issues.

Bawlf said the provincial public works department is spending up to half its total number of man-hours on some aspect of Victoria, either in remodelling the legislative precinct itself or in planning the major expansion of office facilities dispersed throughout the city.

"It's vital for us to have some input into this process," he said, arguing that similarly the province would welcome the opportunity to become better informed on such major city projects as the Inner Harbor renewal scheme.

As an example of provincial interest, Bawlf said Speaker Gordon Dowding has suggested that during the fall session of the legislature, the city display the model of the Inner Harbor scheme prepared by Vancouver architect Arthur Erickson "for perusal by all the MLAs."

Bawlf's proposal was that the city attempt to set up a joint planning committee with the provincial authorities, which would meet on a regular monthly basis for an exchange of information.

The matter disposed of, council in its caucus session tried some initial grappling with the various Erickson proposals themselves, but without reaching any conclusions.

There was agreement on two of the fundamental problems — relocation of the Black Ball ferry terminal and elimination of sightseeing buses from the Causeway—but there was no agreement on how to solve them.

The matters were turned over to *two special subcom*mittees for study, with Bawlf a member of both. He will serve on the ferry committee with Ald. Alf Hood and Ald. Malcolm Anderson and on the bus committee with Ald. Bill Tindall and Ald. Clyde Savage.

The three options for relocating the Black Ball terminal are:

—Tiny Lime Bay, adjacent to the Songhees Industrial Reserve in Victoria West.

Of the three, Mayor Peter Pollen told aldermen he favors the Lime Bay site.

On another harbor issue, Pollen said a 45-minute meeting between himself and Premier Dave Barrett Tuesday produced a commitment the province would try to bring pressure on Ottawa to cooperate in moving the unsightly petroleum tank farm from the Songhees reserve.

EMPRESS CENTRE REVIVED

Together with Empress Hotel manager Bill Gray, Mayor Peter Pollen is trying to reactivate interest in a 1968 proposal to build a convention centre on the hotel's parking lot fronting Douglas Street.

At his weekly press conference today, Pollen said a previous city administration "withdrew from it under fire" because the development proposal involved as a direct partner "that monolithic giant CPR."

The mayor said his recent talks with Gray have been only exploratory in nature, but he feels there is a good possibility CP will donate the land to the city and the centre will be built with assistance from the provincial government.

He said the Empress grounds would be an ideal site for a convention facility as it would "give Empress Hotel continued viability for another 20 years."

To illustrate the city's pressing need for a conference centre seating some 2,000 people, Pollen said the lack of that facility was the reason why Victoria was bypassed in favor of "little old Penticton" as the venue for the 1976 conference of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

Diphtheria Traced to Reserve

Greater Victoria's senior public health officer said Tuesday an outbreak of 47 diphtheria cases in the Capital region since mid-March began with a visit by a resident of an Indian reserve near Tofino.

In a review of local experience with diphtheria this year, Dr. John Whitbread recommended children be prohibited from attending day care centres, kindergarten or grade 1 until they have been fully immunized.

The last of the 47 cases was uncovered 10 days ago and Whitbread said the outbreak is likely over. Almost all patients were treated in the isolation units of Victoria's two general hospitals where drugs quickly erased the infection.

Twenty-five of the patients displayed symptoms of diphtheria while 22 were so-called "carriers," harboring the infection in their throats but apparently unaffected by it.

Of the 47 cases, 26 were Indians. Thirty-three of the 47 patients were children.

"On reviewing these cases, the first introduction of diphtheria into the community was the result of a visit here by a resident of the Ahousat Indian reserve, near Tofino," Whitbread's summary says.

"We were able to trace many of the cases and carriers to the movements of residents of the Ahousat reserve to the Greater Victoria area, particularly to the Tsartlip reserve in west Central Saanich.

"Over half of the 47 cases resulted from visits to, or visitors from, the Ahousat reserve."

Nurses from the federal medical service took throat swabs of 300 people living on or visiting the reserve and found nine carrying the diphtheria infection. Two of these were visitors from Victoria.

"It should be noted that most of the carriers were fully immunized and it appears that, although immunization protects the individual from developing symptoms of diphtheria, this does create a danger to the population, particularly to those persons who are not fully immunized," Whitbread's report says.

"I have been informed by the medical health officer in the area of the Ahousat reserve that the sanitation on the Ahousat reserve is not considered satisfactory, and we are therefore wondering if by immunizing persons living in substandard sanitary conditions, we are producing sources of communicable disease.

"This might well apply to other diseases, in addition to diphtheria, for example, salmonella."

Five of the 25 people exhibiting mild symptoms had been fully immunized, as had 15 of the 22 carriers. Nine of those with symptoms had been partially immunized, as had four of the carriers.

In eight of the 47 cases there had been no immunization and the immunization status of six was not known.

Diphtheria patients in the Capital Region had spent a total of 677 days in hospital up to last Wednesday, for an average stay of two weeks.

Diphtheria, which is highly contagious, was a major problem during the early decades of this century, with mortality running about 10 per cent of cases. Children were particularly hard hit.

Treatment involves giving anti-toxin, where symptoms warrant it, and anti-biotics, penicillin and erythromycin. Many hospital workers and others in the health care field were given booster immunization during this year's outbreak in the Capital region.

Among Whitbread's recommendations:

—where an Indian reserve is apparently the source of an outbreak, all persons on the reserve should be quarantined until throat swabs are negative;

—all people with positive throat swabs should be held in hospital isolation until their condition is cleared up.

Whitbread noted that public health nurses followed up local cases on discharge from hospital and two of the carriers developed positive conditions and had to be re-treated.

Football: Edmonton Will Win the West

Nobody's asked me to put down the finish of the Western Football Conference, not since last year, but nonetheless the world hates a coward. Besides, it's my money and your lucky day.

Right off, Edmonton Eskimos will reign supreme; Saskatchewan Roughriders will force the pace; B.C. Lions will finish third, Winnipeg Blue Bombers will tumble all the way to fourth, and Calgary Stampeders, Grey Cup champions of just two years ago, will be alone in the basement. Boy how the mighty have fallen!

Why Edmonton? Well, the Esks shared first place last year with the Bombers (10-6), and were barely beaten out by the Roughriders when it counted most. It was something to do with a goal post, the width of it, that was the difference.

Surely you recall what fate befell the Esks. Placekicker Dave Cutler of our town hit the goalpost from 34 yards with the 'Riders leading 3-0. The ball bounced out. Placekicker Jack Abendschan of Regina hit the upright from about the same distance. The ball bounced through. The 'Riders won 8-6.

That was last year. This season the Eskimos haven't changed much; and even if they haven't been scoring many touchdowns in pre-season play — only three, I believe — they do have the depth, and a little more besides.

They have good quarterbacking, a capable one-two punch in Tom Wilkinson and Bruce Lemmerman, now recovered from a separated shoulder; they have strong running in Gene Foster and Roy Bell; and they have Cutler, perhaps the best field goal kicker in the West. If there is a weakness it could be on defence.

The People and the Riddle

Saskatchewan is the Grey Cup finalist and shouldn't be ignored. The new coach is John Payne, but that shouldn't hurt either. He knows his way around. And if the Riders have actually lost anyone of note it is only lineman Clyde Brock. There are others missing, such as Bruce Bennett, Bob Kosid and Ray Robinson, but with Payne moving people around up front, these may not be too much of a problem to replace.

The Riders also have a great backfield—Ron Lancaster, Bobby Thompson, George Reed, Tom Campana; good pass-catching ends in Bob Pearce and Gord Barwell. But they had all these people last year and only finished 8-8. And if Lancaster (34) and Reed (33) are a year older, they also may be a step slower. Any problem to either one and the Riders would be hurting — bad!

Now the yearly enigma — the B.C. Lions. Their pre-season record wasn't that great, until their final game. Power running Jim Evenson has gone to Ottawa. Ken Sugarman has retired from the offensive line and there are some troublesome injuries to key personnel—Dave Golinski and Wayne Matherne.

Still, they could be the sleeper of the party. Quarterback Don Moorhead is more solid than some observers believe and by running more this season, as he was doing in pre-season games, he could set up an explosive backfield of Johnny Musso at full, and Monroe Eley and Lou Harris at the running positions. Jim Young has few peers at flanker; and if Moorhead doesn't run enough, then Karl Douglas may get the chance to try. Trouble spot is the offensive line; if it doesn't hold up, too bad.

From the Top to Bottom

In Winnipeg, coach Jim Spavital has been looking for people to replace Mack Herron and Jim Thorpe, both Canadian All-Stars. He hasn't found them. The Bombers also have lost all-star guard Bob Leuck to retirement. All of which means the Bombers will have to throw more. That's Don Jonas' department, and he's as good as there is if he's got the running to go with it. The thought here is that he hasn't. Still don't eliminate the Bombers completely. They have a good defence, better than most, and if a runner can be found, the Bombers could make things interesting especially for the Lions and third place.

Coach Jim Duncan of the Stamps obviously is on a rebuilding program. You don't lose players like Wayne Harris, Jerry Keeling, Herm Harrison, Jesse Mims — the list is long — and not be looking toward youth and the future.

Harris is out, finished, on medical advice, and he was the heart of the Stampeder defence. Keeling was a defensive specialist before he quarterbacked the club to the Grey Cup win over Toronto, and now he is gone. Harrison was always one of the best pass catchers in the league, but he is among the unwanted. Jesse Mims tore up his ligaments earlier and can't run much at the moment.

Ah, but there is one bright spot. Quarterbacker Peter Liske is back — back from the National Football League, and back where he became famous. He can throw some, as they say in the vernacular, but can he connect often enough?

That is the Stampeder problem; that and their defence. Without Harris, it's no longer extraordinary.

So there!

ONE, TWO, CHA-CHA-CHA appears to be tune for practice by members of Polish national soccer team which meets Canada at Toronto tonight in what is biggest challenge ever for a Canadian team. Don't laugh, Poland won gold medal at Olympics and defeated England 2-0 this year. Two Victorians, Brian Robinson and Bruce Twamley, are on the Canadian team.

'Money' in Polish Means Quick Promotion

TORONTO (CP) — There's profit in winning, even for Olympic soccer players.

What, besides glory, did Poland's national team members get out of beating England 2-0 in a recent World Cup preliminary match and winning the gold medal in the 1972 Olympics?"

What they got, said coach Kazimierz Gorski through an interpreter Monday, was "... money, color television sets, cars and better jobs in their plants."

When Gorski was asked if taking money was not a violation of the Olympic code, he tried to take back his words.

"Don't say that, take the money out of my remarks," he said. "Let's just say that all of our players work in various occupations and, if they do good, they get promotions."

"We've got three players who work in coal mines and they've been promoted to senior executives because they are good at football," explained Gorski.

"That's the way it goes in our country. If you're a good athlete, you get quick promotion in your job."

Charn Dhillon Makes Things Go for Rocks

Charn Dhillon, the "forgotten man" of Victoria lacrosse, must take a lot of the credit for the fact the Shamrocks are in the Western Lacrosse Association playoffs.

Shamrocks play their last regular league game of the season tonight at 8 against Coquitlam Adanacs at Memorial Arena and start the playoffs Aug. 8.

Brothers Brian and Ivan Thompson, second and third behind Adanacs' Kevin Parsons in the WLA's individual scoring, have both had great seasons, particularly Brian who, says Kowalyk, began his workouts about two months before everyone else and is "in much better shape this year."

"But, in a club with several good goal scorers, Charn Dhillon tends to be overlooked," Kowalyk said Tuesday.

Dhillon, not too showy but a hard, steady worker, has scored 23 goals, had 37 assists and with 60 points is 10th in WLA scoring and, says Kowalyk, he's the best centreman in the league.

"He's certainly the best faceoff man in the league," insists Kowalyk. "He's consistent and makes everything go for us."

The coach also praised veteran Skip Chapman, who has not only been steady all season in goal but with 27 assists is 11th in the scoring out of the 27 players the club has used this year.

"We only lost two games badly, a 17-5 decision to New Westminster and a 16-3 score to Vancouver early in the season and ever since we have been in every ball game we've played," Kowalyk said.

Of the rookies, Kowalyk had high praise for Roger Dubyna who "has been steady throughout and particularly impressive recently" and Gordie Osinchuk, who played only about 10 games last season and "is doing really well this year."

Mike Beaulac, who Monday night missed his first game through work commitments after making 23 appearances this season, and Ken Alexander and Osinchuk, who were both nursing injuries Monday, expect to be back in action tonight.

During tonight's game, the club's annual player awards will be made.

Brenda Beaten In Junior Event

VANCOUVER — Top-seeded Mark Cox of Britain Tuesday made short work of Vancouver's Kostie Killas in the Western Canadian tennis championships.

Cox, who held clinics in Victoria recently as part of a province-wide tour, crushed Killas 6-2, 6-1.

Vancouver's Bardsley brothers both scored victories — Tony ousting Bill Fisher of Houston, Texas, 6-0, 6-3 and Bob beating Al Hernandez of Provo, Utah, 6-2, 3-6, 7-5.

Several international stars who will appear in next week's B.C. Open event in Victoria began well, in the Western Canada championships and in the B.C. junior clay-court international tourney, being run at the same time.

Manuel Castenada of Mexico, a men's singles finalist in Victoria two years ago who will play again there next week, defeated former-Victorian Don McCormick, now of Vancouver, 6-4, 7-5.

In the junior clay-court event, top-seeded Australian junior champion Chris Kachel of Sydney, who will play in Victoria, downed Kevin Cahoon of Modesto, California, 6-1, 6-2 and second-seeded Felix Riba of Barcelona, Spain, blasted Dave Maeser of Bellevue, Washington, 6-2, 6-0. Riba will also play in Victoria in the B.C. Open event.

Brenda Cameron was the only Victoria player in action Tuesday and she was beaten 6-2, 6-1, by Carol Carlyon of Bellevue, Washington, in the girls' under-18 event.

Kerry Bourdon of Campbell River, the only other Islander playing Tuesday, was downed 6-1, 7-6 by Alan Landau of Encino, Calif., in the junior singles.

Marathon Record

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — Shane Henson, 18, and Mark Ridler, 17, claimed a world record tennis match this week by playing continuously for 75 hours and 35 minutes. The recognized mark in the Guinness Book of World Records is 73 hours 25 minutes. The high school players began at 10 a.m. Friday and finished at 1:35 p.m. Monday, playing 1,385 games.

Veterans Throw Opening Sparks

By The Canadian Press

Tuesday night was veterans' night in the Western Football Conference as Edmonton Eskimos swamped Winnipeg Blue Bombers 33-22 and Saskatchewan Roughriders overwhelmed British Columbia Lions 21-5.

It was the opening day of the regular WFC season, and despite the usual plethora of new faces, it was the familiar names who provided most of the scoring punch.

In Winnipeg, the Eskimos took advantage of mistakes by the Blue Bombers, with experienced flanker Bobby Taylor grabbing a pair of touchdown passes. Gene Foster, also a veteran, got a third Edmonton major and place kicker Dave Cutler added four field goals and three converts.

Paul Williams, Tom Oberg and Stan Brown scored Winnipeg touchdowns, with quarterback Don Jonas converting all three and punter Wally McKee booming a 53-yard single.

In Vancouver, it was the George and Ronnie Show, with veteran quarterback Ron Lancaster firing three touchdown passes and George Reed rumbling for 135 yards along the ground.

HITS CAMPANA TWICE

Lancaster fired scoring strikes to running back Tom Campana and a pair to wide receiver Rick Eber. Jack Abendschan was good on all three converts.

The Lions could manage only a pair of safeties and a single off a wide field-goal attempt by Ted Gerela.

Mistakes hurt the Blue Bombers.

Three fumbles led to Cutler field goals and a pair of interceptions set up Taylor's touchdowns as the Winnipeg offence faltered.

Betrayed by a weak running game, Jonas sought to move the Bombers through the air, but the alert Edmonton secondary snagged four of his errant passes. Jonas put the ball in the air 39 times and completed 15.

HERRON MISSED

The Bombers had only 132 yards along the ground as they felt the absence of premier running back Mack Herron, dismissed from the team after being arrested in the off season on drug charges.

In Vancouver, it was the judicious play-calling of Lancaster that made the difference, with the 34-year-old signal-caller mixing his plays well to baffle the Lions.

His passes were delivered with pinpoint accuracy and his wide receivers, especially Eber, were often yards clear of any defender.

The Edmonton and Saskatchewan defences, the subject of much speculation before the games, came up well under fire, especially the rookie-laden Roughriders.

The Roughriders allowed B.C. only 15 first downs and allowed the Lions inside the Saskatchewan 15-yard line just once, late in the fourth quarter when the stumbling home club managed to reach the 11 before running out of steam.

TWO INTERCEPTIONS

Their pass defence, featuring three first-year defenders, picked off two Don Moorhead passes and allowed B.C. just 13 completions for 168 yards.

The Roughriders, on the other hand, had 20 first downs with 215 yards along the ground and 145 through the air. Lancaster was good on 11 of 18 passes with back-up Bob Pearce completing one of four.

"I thought our defensive team played a real fine game," said head coach John Payne, at the helm of the Roughriders for his first Canadian Football League game.

"We really came up tough in our end of the field and that was the difference in the game."

Next game in the WFC is Thursday, when the Roughriders travel to Calgary to take on the Stampeders in the season opener for the Alberta club.

Ottawa Players Treated Roughly By Fans, Argos

OTTAWA (CP) — The Lansdowne Park boo-birds had a field day Tuesday as Toronto Argonauts slithered to a 25-9 victory over Ottawa Rough Riders in the opening game of the Eastern Football Conference season.

Their main target was quarterback Rick Cassata, greeted at the pre-game introductions with a rousing round of catcalls. But by the end of the first half they were attacking most of the Ottawa offensive team.

Only alternate quarterback Frank DiMaggio drew cheers, but these quickly became tempered as he proved as unable as Cassata to mount an offence against the Argonauts Jim Stillwagon, Steve Smear and Jim Corrigal.

These three kept Cassata and DiMaggio running for their lives most of the game while the Toronto defensive secondary smothered Ottawa's receivers.

Corrigal was ejected from the game for arguing too strongly with an official, but that came late in the fourth quarter when there was little left at stake.

The Argos got two touchdowns—on a nine-yard pass from Joe Theismann to Eric Allen in the first quarter and on a 26-yard interception return by Tim Anderson in the third quarter.

Their other points mainly came from the kicking of Zenon Andrusyshyn who chipped in two converts, three singles and field goals of 13 and 33 yards. The other two Toronto points came when Cassata was trapped in his own end zone by Smear and Bruce Bergey in the second quarter.

Ottawa's only points, until the dying minutes of the game, also came on a rouge when Theismann was hit as he dropped back to pass, watched the ball skitter through a series of friendly and unfriendly hands and then return to him deep in the Toronto end zone where he was pinned.

Then, with fewer than two minutes remaining in the game, Cassata hit Wayne Giardino with a 10-yard touchdown pass which Gerry Organ converted.

John Rauch, new coach of the Argos, said: "Our defence kept the pressure on Ottawa. We moved the ball well, but we should have had more points."

"There's a few things we have to change . . . and there may be some personnel changes.

Don V. Ruck, National Hockey League vice-president, said in Washington Tuesday that half the NHL teams are not making money and predicted a bill to ban television blackouts would add to their woes. Ruck said he did not believe anyone had the right to see a game for free just because he couldn't purchase a ticket to a contest.

"What right does anyone have to see a game?" Ruck asked a congressional subcommittee. "I couldn't see My Fair Lady on Broadway and it was sold out a year in advance."

Reichardt Beats Old Mates

By The Associated Press

There wasn't enough money in Chicago to keep Rick Reichardt there, so he left for the greener pastures of Kansas City.

He thanked his new employers at the expense of his old employers Tuesday night by doubling home both runs in the Royals' 2-1 victory over the White Sox.

Elsewhere in the American League, Oakland A's nipped Minnesota Twins 4-3 in 11 innings; Baltimore Orioles topped Cleveland Indians 5-1; New York Yankees edged Boston Red Sox 5-4; Detroit Tigers took two from Milwaukee Brewers 6-5 and 9-3 and Texas Rangers knocked off California Angels 4-2.

In the National, St. Louis Cardinals thumped Montreal Expos 10-5; Ferguson Jenkins won his 10th game as Chicago edged Philadelphia 4-3 but the Phillies came back for a split by beating the Cubs 6-5 in a second game; Hank Aaron's 701st career home run didn't help the Atlanta Braves as Cincinnati swept a doubleheader, 9-5 and 13-11; Pittsburgh Pirates won their 10th game in 13 starts by beating New York Mets 4-1; Juan Marichal won his ninth of the year and his 236th career victory as San Francisco Giants whipped San Diego Padres 5-1, and Houston Astros edged Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2.

Reichardt, who quit the White Sox earlier in the season because of a salary dispute, got satisfaction from his homecoming.

"I wanted to do well, naturally. For one thing it was against my old team, and for another this club has a chance to win it."

Steve Stone struck out Reichardt three times to the delight of the Chicago crowd after Rick had delivered the first-inning, two-run double.

"The boos of the fans didn't bother me," Reichardt said, "but Stone did."

Paul Splittorff, who had shut out the White Sox twice earlier in the season on two and three hits, surrendered eight this time before needing ninth-inning relief from Joe Hoerner, another Royal who wasn't a Royal when the season opened.

"If we don't get in first place tonight, we'll be there one of these days, I guarantee you," said Royals' manager Jack McKeon.

That prophesy almost came true. Minnesota held a 3-2 lead over Oakland going into the eighth inning, and a loss would have dropped the A's out of first place in the West for the first time since July 3, putting the Royals on top.

But Bill North was walked by starter Dick Woodson, who had pitched four-hit ball into the eighth. The Twins sent in three pitchers, trying to keep North from advancing, but none succeeded.

Sal Bando laid down a sacrifice bunt against Ray Corbin, North moving to second. Then Eddie Bane got Reggie Jackson on a ground out, North racing to third. Bill Hands became the fourth Minnesota pitcher of the inning and he promptly wild-pitched North home.

YEARS - OF - SERVICE rule came under fire today from Jesus Alou, Houston outfielder, who was traded to Oakland A's for player to be named later. Alou said he had expected to be traded and others should also expect it because of Major League Players Association stipulation which says player in majors for 10 years or on one club for five gets a choice to approve or reject a deal. Alou is nearing 10 years in majors and was with Houston for almost five when trade came.

Warren Puts Royal Oak In

Gord Warren's two-hit pitching Tuesday night gave Royal Oak Sporting Goods a 4-1 win over CFB Esquimalt at Central Park and earned the club a Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League playoff berth.

The win moved Royal Oak four games ahead of fifth-place Mike's Sports Shop with four games each left to play.

It also lifted Royal Oak into a third-place tie with Bell's Men's Wear, edged 7-6 by Sooke Merchants at Sooke.

In Tuesday's other game, Six Mile House took advantage of two errors in the eighth inning to down Victoria Labatts 7-5 at Heywood Avenue Park.

Karpiuk Enjoys Happier Times

Karpiuk, who lost his first seven games, Tuesday won his third in a row, hurling a four-hitter to lead Greaves Movers to a 2-0 decision over Gorge Hotel at Lambrick Park.

Karpiuk had 16 strikeouts and gave up four walks and was fortunate to escape with the bases loaded when he gave up two hits in the sixth inning leaving two runners on.

Losing pitcher Rick Cook allowed only two hits, but one was a two-out double to Barry Cosier in the fifth inning which scored the two runs.

Lalonde Meets WHA Officials

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister Marc Lalonde will meet Thursday in Burnaby with officials of the World Hockey Association. He will discuss, among other things, the drafting of teen-age players by the professional hockey league.

The meeting will take place while the minister is in British Columbia for the opening of the Canada Summer Games.

He told the Commons this spring he would be meeting with representatives of the National Hockey League, the WHA and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to discuss the drafting of underage players.

The CAHA and the NHL have an agreement prohibiting NHL teams from signing a player to a professional contract before he reaches 20.

Lalonde said earlier there is nothing the government can do through existing laws to prevent similar action by the WHA in the future. But he hopes to negotiate a settlement satisfactory to all parties.

Host Club Wins

Host Carnarvon defeated Vancouver Little Mountain twice Sunday to win the Pony League (13-year-olds) invitational baseball tournament at Carnarvon Park.

Carnarvon, which had battled to a 7-7 tie with Vancouver Capilanos before darkness halted play in the seventh inning Saturday, finished off that game early Sunday, winning 8-7 in eight innings.

Then, Mark Pennell threw a five-hitter to lead Carnarvon to a 7-2 win over Little Mountain to leave both teams with one defeat each in the double-loss-elimination tournament.

Aussie Quartet In Net Tourney

Four Australians fresh from competing at Wimbledon, two Spaniards and a Mexican Davis Cup player will be in action here next week.

Foreign stars will be part of a high-class field in the annual B.C. Open tennis tournament being staged at the Racquet Club of Victoria from Monday to Saturday, Aug. 6-11.

The Aussies who played at Wimbledon are Dave Carter, Chris Kachel, Ken Laffey and Geoff Moore and the Spanish players entered are Juan Maria Tintori and Felix Riba.

Manuel Castenada of Mexico, a finalist in the men's singles two years ago, will be back to try to take the title won last year by American Chip Fisher. No entry has been yet received from Fisher, now ranked 19th in the United States, but officials expect him to compete.

In the open section of the tournament, there will be men's and women's singles and doubles, and mixed doubles.

Being held in conjunction with the open tourney are the Pacific Northwest veterans' championships, which will include junior veterans (35 and over) men's and women's singles and doubles and senior veterans' (45 and over) singles and doubles for both men and women.

Some of the leading Vancouver players will be involved in the Canada Summer Games tennis program, but large entries have been received in all events from U.S.

Victoria players who want to test their skills against touring players have until Thursday to file entries at the Racquet Club.

Field Hockey Selects Drop Two Verdicts

Victoria Selects, preparing for a visit late in August by an Australian touring team, twice held a strong Vancouver team to one-goal margins Sunday in an exhibition men's field hockey doubleheader.

The Victoria team was edged 1-0, on a goal by Calvin Wood, in the first game by University of British Columbia Thunderbirds at the University of Victoria.

Then, after holding the visitors to 1-1 at half time, Victoria Selects were nipped 3-2 by UBC in the second game as Bob Raine and Al Shaw scored for Victoria.

Birds First On Tour List

VANCOUVER (CP) — The University of British Columbia Thunderbirds will represent Canada when it becomes the first team to make a hockey tour of the People's Republic of China in December.

The two-and-a-half week tour of northern China, scheduled to begin December 5, will be part of a cultural exchange program that has sent table tennis and gymnastic teams on tour of both countries.

The team is expected to take 19 players plus coach Bob Hindmarch, a manager-trainer, and a representative of the university.

DOLPHINS, REDSKINS FAVORED

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Miami Dolphins and Washington Redskins have been made favorites to meet in the National Football League's Super Bowl by Reno oddsmakers. Miami is listed at 2 to 1 to repeat in the American Conference and Washington is a 3-to-1 choice to repeat in the National.

Miami beat Washington in the 1973 Super Bowl.

VICETTES CUT LOOSE IN PLAYOFF OPENER

Rosemary Fuller threw a four-hitter and her teammates produced ample hitting support Tuesday night as Vicettes crushed Stockers North Americans 18-2 at Hyacinth Park.

The game was the first in a best-of-three series to decide a berth in the B.C. junior women's softball championships. The second game is set for tonight at Hyacinth Park.

The second game of a senior "C" consolation playoff series will also be played tonight. MacDonald's Furniture edged Cosmos 7-6 Tuesday night to take a 1-0 lead in that series.

West Indians Rejoice

LONDON (Reuter) — Hundreds of jubilant West Indians invaded the Oval pitch here Tuesday and mobbed their players as the West Indies team completed a 158 runs victory over England in the first cricket test.

Though held up by a fine century by England newcomer Frank Hayes, the West Indies achieved their expected victory just after lunch on the final day of the match.

Pace-man Keith Boyce, who took all five wickets to fall Tuesday, shattered John Snow's wicket to end England's second innings at 255 and the West Indies broke a sequence of 20 tests without a victory.

Hayes, 26, batted with the assurance of a veteran to score 106 not out for England. He reached his centruy by flicking a full toss from Boyce for his 12th four, having then batted for 226 minutes.

He and skipper Ray Illingworth, who made 40, ensured a respectable England total by putting on 93 together for the seventh wicket in two hours.

The match was an all-round triumph for Boyce, who took 11 wickets for 127—the best match figures by a West Indies fast bowler against England—after scoring 72 in the West Indies' first innings. He claimed six wickets for 77 in England's second innings.

FRANCHISE AWARDED

CALGARY (CP) — Lethbridge Pronghorns have been awarded a franchise in the Alberta Junior Hockey League, replacing Lethbridge Sugar Kings, ousted for not complying with the league constitution.

Teamsters Win

Darrell Deane scored seven goals at Memorial Arena Tuesday night to lead Esquimalt Teamsters to a 19-6 win over Victoria Island Pacific Oil in the Vancouver Island Intermediate "A" Lacrosse League playoff opener.

The rest of the scoring for the Teamsters, who won the league title, was done by Ross McInstry, Wayne Weber and Steve Buckley, with two goals each, and Brian McKinnon, Rick Lapointe, Bob McKay, Dale Roberts, Rick Leggett and John Entzminger, with one goal each.

The second game of the series will be played at Bullen Park Thursday.

Earlier Tuesday night, Island Pacific Oilers nipped Peg's Delicatessen of Saanich 17-15 in the first game of the Island Intermediate "B" finals.

Oilers were led in that game by Gerry Shelly, who scored six goals and had two assists and Dunc Jacobs led Saanich with four goals and two assists.

WORLD'S NUCLEAR TRASH DUMPED ACROSS U.S.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The United States is becomming the radioactive dumping ground for much of the world because radioactive wastes from U.S.-built nuclear power plants are shipped back by foreign owners, the Los Angeles Times said today.

"Radioactive waste products already are in storage here from Japan, Canada and Italy and many other countries will soon join that list," the Times said.

The waste products remain in the United States under what the Atomic Energy Commission calls "perpetual care," the newspaper said.

The Times has been publishing a series of articles on the problems of storage and disposal of nuclear waste, which remain radioactive for many years, in some cases for centuries. It has charged there have been leaks at some facilities. The AEC conceded that some of the leaks did occur, but said they posed no health hazard.

The Times said the "international dumping ground" is the result of sales by U.S. firms of nuclear reactors to foreign countries. The U.S. builders specify in the conracts that the buyers must purchase fuel for the reactors from the firms, the newspaper said.

The fuel rods must be shipped to the United States for reprocessing, "and the waste remains here," the Times said.

Canada Out of Red, Excluding UIC Debt

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government reported its 1972-73 fiscal year income and spending Tuesday, and for the first time in three years, Canada was out of the red.

But the figures do not include a deficit of well over $1 billion in unemployment insurance payments which otherwise turn the $485 million surplus into a $474 million deficit.

Actually, the finance department reported the figures on both a budget basis—leaving out enemployment pay, old age security payments and a few other items—and on "national accounts" basis that does include them.

First the figures on a budget basis:

Canada's federal income was $16.6 billion and spending was $16.1 billion in the fiscal year ended last March 31, resulting in the $485 million surplus.

The biggest income item was personal income taxes totalling $7.1 billion, followed by $2.6 billion in sales and excise taxes, $2.6 billion in corporate income taxes, $1.2 billion in returns on investments and $1.1 billion in customs import duties.

Major items of spending were $2.9 billion for national health and welfare including health costs and family allowance payments, $2.1 billion in interest on the national debt and $2.0 billion for the armed forces and other spending connected with national defenee.

The national debt stood at $17.5 billion at the end of the fiscal year, the report said.

The figures on the "national accounts" basis:

Total income was $20.2 billion and spending was $20.7 billion for a $474 million deficit.

Government finance experts explained that the large rise in unemployment pay—which was sharply expanded in late 1971—along with some increases in old age pensions, were the primary reason for the difference in the two sets of figures.

Government sources declined to be quoted, but one said the recent expansion of the unemployment insurance system will almost certainly lead to higher unemployment taxes.

"The unemployment insurance fund isn't quite in the red yet, but it can't continue to support such high levels of benefits without a tax increase," he said.

So it may be little comfort to the Canadian taxpayer if the generally treasury shows a surplus and income taxes are unchanged, but the separate unemployment tax is sharply increased to prevent future deficits in the unemployment insurance fund.

Robin Wood's Artistry 'Delightful' on Piano

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

A conservatively chosen program from the standard piano repertoire brought Robin Wood to centre stage as solo recitalist in the University of Victoria summer music series Tuesday.

His delightful artistry and unifying presence in previous Mozart, Schubert and Brahms chamber ensemble concerts attracted an audience that overflowed the MacLaurin Auditorium.

With his customary ease of manner and lively humor, Wood added a few spoken program notes. But when he addressed himself to the opening work — Beethoven's Sonata in A major, Opus 2, No. 2 — it was with the total immersion of the true artist.

From a restrained, thoughtful beginning he provided a full-blooded yet sensitive interpretation of this moodily restless sonata.

Wood's power, control and range of dynamics, brilliant pedalling and keyboard facility were put to the test in the C major Fantasy of Robert Schumann and the F minor of Chopin.

It was interesting to find these two works side by side and to note the differences in spiritual and intellectual depth between the two pieces by composers who were contemporaries. The differences were vividly represented by the performer.

Chopin's music, and especially the charming mazurkas, are frequently wrenched in rubato and sentimentally pulled about because their true impulse and design is misunderstood.

Wood chose two — Opus 30, No. 4, and the familiar lilting Opus 17, No. 4.

These were presented with a perfection of taste, a firm yet flexible rhythm and delicacy of touch that was wholly satisfying.

The final group was Set I of Debussy's Images. And here again the texture and range of color were exquisitely controlled with the shimmering Reflets dans l'eau and the incredible brio of Mouvement to terminate the program.

Wood received an enthusiastic ovation and added two encores.

The recital will not be repeated this week as the chamber music concerts were. In its place on Thursday a recital of lieder and opera will be given by Catherine Young, soprano, with Winifred Scott at the piano.

This will take place in the MacLaurin Auditorium at 8 p.m.

Privacy Rules Urged for U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two separate moves are being proposed here to protect Americans against invasions of their privacy by "Big Brother" surveillance on the part of the government or others.

Sen. Sam Ervin (Dem-N.C.), chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee, introduced legislation Tuesday to outlaw spying on civilians by the military.

And a government advisory panel urged restraints on use of social security numbers and collection of information on individuals in computer data banks operated by government or private organizations.

Ervin's bill grew out of a three-year study by a Senate constitutional rights subcommittee which he heads. The Pentagon adopted regulations against military surveillance of ordinary civilians in 1971. But Ervin said disclosure of a White House domestic intelligence program during the Watergate investigation tells him that the potential for a return of the practice is there.

"The good faith of officials of the executive branch is not enough," Ervin said.

His subcommittee's report said: "At the height of the monitoring, the army engaged over 1,500 plainclothes agents to collect information which was placed in scores of data centers around the country. . . . It was not unusual to find in the army files details of one's membership, associations, remarks, published statements, attendance at meetings, personal finances, sexual activities, arrests, and personality quirks preserved in everlasting perpetuity."

Alabama to Reopen Voter Fraud Hunt

WASHINGTON (WP) — The first hard evidence that some of President Nixon's campaign money was used in a campaign to defeat Gov. George Wallace in 1970 has prompted the Alabama attorney general to revive his investigation of possible election fraud there.

Attorney General Bill Baxley said Tuesday he will press his investigation to determine who brought a reported $400,000 into the campaign with the avowed purpose of beating Wallace during the 1970 Democratic primary.

The transaction apparently is a violation of state campaign contributions law because nothing filed in state records shows a donation of that size to any candidate in the race, Baxley added.

Cut Ad Budget In U.S. Urged

The provincial government should reduce its budget for advertising British Columbia in the United States, Ed Mankelow, president of the B.C. Wildlife Federation said today.

"The money could be better spent on improving existing campsite facilities or providing new ones," he said. "It makes no sense bringing thousands of aliens with trailers to the province when we haven't got sufficient campsites for our own people."

He was commenting on a statement by Highways Minister Graham Lea who said he didn't think it was fair to British Columbians to allow Americans space in campgrounds, leaving Canadian campers to go looking.

Lea also said that in his opinion, the tourist who comes in his camper doesn't spend a great deal of money in British Columbia because all he buys are probably a few groceries and some gasoline.

An official for the travel industry department said $2.5 million is spent on promoting British Columbia.

"This includes everything," he said, "printing, promotional tours, plus advertising."

He said the department did not advertise in trailer or outdoor magazines.

"We select magazines of general interest," he said.

Mankelow said B.C. advertises itself.

"Visitors come here and tell their friends," he said. "Thus, your tourist population increases every year."

He noted that some British Columbians are of the opinion that "we are subdizing aliens with trailers or with boats."

"I won't go as far as to say that," he said. "It's a difficult question to determine, but certainly some campsites and marine parks are overcrowded with aliens."

Former city parks administrator said that too much park space is taken up with sophisticated trailers and campers.

"It seems to me too little attention is paid to the tenter and his needs," he said.

NEW MANAGER of B.C. Hydro's Island division is Gordon Roper who has been manager of the Fraser Valley region since 1968. Roper joined B.C. Electric in Victoria in 1949 and has held a number of positions in sales and engineering. He succeeds Alan J. Macdonald who is retiring.

Graft — Greed — Corruption

Crime Wave Oozing Over Us: RCMP Chief

A crumbling social order and a crime wave oozing over the country were part of the grim picture painted Tuesday by British Columbia's top RCMP officer.

Assistant Commissioner Gordon Cunningham, addressing the Kiwanis Club at its weekly luncheon at the Empress Hotel, said the rise in family breakdowns is causing the breakdown of the social order.

In the 1960's, said Cunningham, "we had in this country a disturbed, parading, protesting society, or some part of it at least, that were pretty well bent on smashing things to bits."

"Since then, since 1970, there's been a more insidious, seething, oozing type of crime to replace that — if it was crime," he continued.

"I'm talking about the graft and the greed and the corruption and the avarice", he said — all the things that go with prosperity.

Cunningham pointed to the $300 million worth of merchandise stolen each year in Canada, the drug situation, the epidemic of venereal disease, the amounts of liquor consumed, and especially the breakdown of family life.

"There is no way that policemen can turn this trend . . ." he said.

"These are conditions in which the people of this country are prepared to live." All a policeman can do, he said, is "keep it within reasonable bounds, but don't try to cure it."

"I wonder what was on your desk yesterday when you came into work," Cunningham asked his audience of businessmen and professionals.

On Cunningham's desk Monday was a list of all the offences the province's RCMP officers dealt with between Friday night and Sunday night.

The list is long. It includes 334 motor vehicle accidents, 372 liquor offences, two rapes, three arsons, 62 drug cases, 104 vandalism cases, 293 general thefts, 80 assaults, 137 family disturbances, 16 discharge of firearms, and more.

Total number of incidents listed was 5,571.

Cunningham reminded his audience that police hear of only one-third of the crimes committed, and solve only a third of those they do hear about.

The root of it all, he said, was family breakdown.

"If they keep breaking down, gentlemen, we're going to be in a lot more trouble than we are now."

"Somehow or other it's got to be stopped."

A few years ago Cunningham denied the suggestion that policemen were social workers. Today, he said, 70 to 80 per cent of police work is social work.

"There's no question we're social workers," he said.

Today's policeman needs moral fibre, "integrity till it's coming out of his ears, his whole system saturated with compassion, plus a sense of humor," he said.

An officer doing undercover work for months, "living with the scum of the earth", especially needs this moral fibre, he said.

Gallery Seeking Graham Pension

An appeal has been made by the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria for donations toward a special fund to provide a pension for retiring director, Colin Graham.

In a letter sent to 2,500 gallery members and others, president B.C. Butler says he has assumed responsibility for raising a fund large enough to ensure Graham a pension of at least $5,000 a year for life.

"This will require a capital sum of up to $60,000, to be administered by the Art Gallery Foundation which is shortly to come into being," he says, "The constitution of this new body was given final approval at our last meeting."

Butler says that Graham has been underpaid during his 23 years with the gallery. He notes his successor will receive almost double Graham's present earnings.

Butler hopes to raise the bulk of the $60,000 through approaching "a selected group of individuals" but hopes gallery members will contribute at least $10,000 toward the fund.

"I should like to hope that with individual member or family contributions of at least $5 each we could among ourselves make a total contribution of some $10,000 or even more toward the capital sum I have set as a target," Butler says.

Stupich At Hearing

Agricultural Minister David Stupich will give his government's position on deep-draft oil tankers at a Washington state hearing on the subject of deep-draft ports Friday.

The hearing in Olympia, Wash., is being conducted by the ecology committee of the state senate and house of representatives.

Committeee chairman Ed Luders invited the B.C. government to send a representative to the hearing because "the use of deep-draft oil tankers in the region is a matter of mutual concern."

'Purse Snatch' Rent Hike Hit

CALGARY (CP) — The city spends less money on old people than it does on stray dogs, Mayor Rod Sykes said.

He was commenting on his proposal, defeated 10-2 by city council Monday, to rescind rent increases for elderly people living in Metropolitan Calgary Foundation Lodges.

The increases, effective Oct. 1, will raise the cost of single accommodation by about $8 to $90 a month.

Elderly people living in accommodation for couples will pay $80 each, an increase of $5.

Ald. Barbara Scott, a member of the Metropolitan Foundation, said the increase was necessary to offset increased costs caused by higher wages and food prices.

She said the rent charged by the foundation is much lower than that charged for similar accommodation elsewhere.

Papers Signed Over

WINNIPEG (CP) — The archives of the Hudson's Bay Company — three centuries' worth of historical documents so valuable that experts won't put a price tag on them — were signed over Tuesday to the safekeeping of the Manitoba government.

Under an agreement between the company and the provincial government, the 50 tons of documents will be moved from their present resting place at Beaver House in London, England, to a special section of the new provincial archives.

Tory 'Stall' Hit

FAIRVIEW, Alta. (CP) — Western farmers have been hurt by the Progressive Conservative's manoeuvres to stall third reading of a crop insurance bill, federal Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said.

The bill would permit the federal government to pay one-half the premiums for crop insurance.

Speaking to 75 farmers and party supporters in the constituency of Peace River, he said the area's MP, former Conservative house leader Gerald Baldwin, was largely to blame.

Pump Units Razed

FOX CREEK, Alta. (CP) A fire at the Peace River Pipeline Co. pumping station near this northwestern Alberta hamlet destroyed at least three of the six pumping units, a company spokesman said Tuesday.

There was no indication of the cause of the blaze, which started Monday night at the automated facility. The flow of oil through the two pipelines leaving the plant has been shut off, but the spokesman said Edmonton refineries should not be affected because they get their oil from a number of other lines.

Bessborough Sold

SASKATOON (CP) — The Bessborough Hotel, built for Canadian National Railways in 1932, has been sold by the railway to a group of Saskatoon residents.

Purchase price and other details were not disclosed.

Stock Charges Aired

EDMONTON (CP) — A decision on a charge under the Alberta Securities Act against Albert Jaasma of Vancouver was adjourned to Aug. 31 by provincial judge Dean Saks.

Jaasma, president of Cosmopolitan Life Assurance Co., has entered a plea of not guilty to a charge, based on RCMP information, that he was not a registered broker or investment dealer when he traded securities of S and M. Industries Ltd. between January, 1972 and April, 1972.

SHIP POPS UP FOR THIRD TIME

PROVINCETOWN, Mass. (AP) — For the third time in nearly 200 years, high tides and shifting sand formations have exposed a British warship that ran aground after carrying redcoats to the battle of Bunker Hill.

The once-imposing HMS Somerset was looted by her colonial captors when she was wrecked on the Tip of Cape Cod in an early-November storm in 1778, three years after the Bunker Hill clash. Much of what was left was snatched by souvenir hunters when storms uncovered the 64-gun frigate in 1886 and again in 1924.

A few weeks ago, "the Somerset seems to have sensed it was time to reappear," said Edward Rowe Snow, author and New England historian.

When some of the estimated 30 feet of sand that covered the ship was carried away during summer storms, all that surfaced were jagged pieces of worn timber that vaguely suggested the skeleton of the Somerset.

"But there's still a terrific part of it left, and something must be done to save it," Snow said. He estimated moving it to high ground would cost $7,000.

But Edison Lohr, historian for the National Parks Service, said there is a question whether the remains are on national or Massachusetts shoreland, and "until we find out who owns the land, nothing much can be done about it."

By C. G. McDANIEL
AP Science Writer

URBANA, Ill. (AP) — Three hundred million years ago the earth's equator apparently cut diagonally across what now is the American Midwest. Part of the Soviet Union and the United States probably belonged to the same continent.

Evidence of what the earth was like before there was anybody around to write about it is being found in Midwestern coal fields, as well as the Soviet Union and parts of Europe.

Dr. Tom L. Phillips and his graduate students in paleobotany at the University of Illinois are studying coal balls to determine what plant life was like then.

Coal balls are petrified peat. Within them are fossil remains of plants which failed to carbonize and became coal. They have been preserved through eons.

These specimens are more likely to be found in slabs than balls and may be so large they cannot be moved intact. The first ones, found in England in the 19th century, were ball-shaped. Hence the name.

Phillips said in an interview that the remains of plants in the petrified peat resemble plants found today in the tropics, evidence that the Equator was once in a different position.

In those tropical swamps were several hundred species of plants, including tree ferns and club mosses, which Phillips said have the same characteristics as their modern tropical plant descendants.

"Stacked up in the coal is the history of what was going on in the swamp," Phillips said.

Coal balls with the same materials have been found in the Donetz Basin in the Soviet Union and in Great Britain, Germany, the Netherlands and Belgium.

"I can study Russian plants here by going to southern Illinois," Phillips said.

This uniformity further substantiates the theory of continental drift. Scientists have held that the position of the world's continents has not always been the same, that they float upon heavier materials within the earth.

A coal seam from what is called the Pennsylvanian Period extends in an arc from Oklahoma eastward and would connect with the continuation of the arc across the Atlantic if the continents were shoved together.

Mt. Doug Student Second

Duncan Scobie, a Grade 12 student at Mount Douglas, has been awarded the Governor-General's Bronze Medal for ranking second among scholarship students in B.C.

Scobie achieved an average of 98.5 per cent in Math 12 and Physics 12 scholarship exams.

The top-ranking student in the province was a West Vancouver student Garry Tarr, who achieved a 99-per cent average.

The three winners were among 2,998 students who entered the scholarship competition at the end of the 1972-73 school year.

Education Minister Eileen Dailly has announced that 1,800 of those students have qualified for scholarship compared to 1,460 last year.

She also said 15,475 Grade 12 students graduated from the academic and technical program out of 26,923 students registered in the program. The other students, she said, either failed a course or were registered for partial programs only.

College Adviser Named

Appointment of the fourth full-time member of the B.C. Education Commission was announced Tuesday.

Dr. Ronald Faris, a former B.C. teacher who is now a University of Saskatchewan professor, will be a special adviser to the commission with responsibility for college affairs.

Faris joins John Bremer, who is Education Commissioner on a three-year appointment; S. E. Espley, a department of education superintendent acting as executive-secretary to the commission; and a full-time commission secretary.

The 36-year-old native of Vancouver was chairman of the Saskatchewan Community College Advisory Committee and author of a report on educational communications policy.

New Group Set Up In Forestry

A long-range strategic and economic planning division has been set up within the B.C. Forest Service.

The role of the Forest Service will be the main concern of the new division, said John Stokes, deputy forest minister who announced formation of the planning section Tuesday.

A staff of 20 will work in the special studies division under manager R. D. Thomas, who is currently engineer-in-charge of the Forest Service's engineering division.

Besides studying the role of the Forest Service in relation to resource users, the division will investigate the internal economics and administration of the service.

Triple Post To Union Man

Angus Macdonald, a staff worker with the United Steelworkers of America, has been appointed to the full-time position of member of the Labor Relations Board, the Board of Industrial Relations and the Human Rights Commission.

Announcing the appointment Tuesday, Labor Minister Bill King said the 48-year-old Macdonald "has been involved in all aspects of labor relations and recently led and successfuly concluded industry-wide collective bargaining with the Metal Industries Association."

An Inland Sockeye Fishery

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal fisheries service wants to try an inland fishery for sockeye salmon—something that has never been done in British Columbia before.

The service is faced with the impending destruction of some Babine Lake sockeye salmon spawning grounds because of a serious overescapement. It is calling tenders to harvest fish as they enter the lake.

Ron MacLeod, manager of the fisheries' northern operations, said Tuesday a serious problem of logistics must be overcome before the fishery could be a success.

Babine Lake is midway between Prince Rupert, B.C., and Prince George, B.C., more than 400 miles north of Vancouver.

An inland fishery for sockeye has never before been tried in B.C., he said. The successful bidder would have to transport the catch to Prince Rupert, 305 miles away by road, and find a means to preserve the fish during the haul.

In addition, those fish caught would be of relatively low quality. Salmon do not eat after they leave the ocean to spawn and often finish their long journey upstream torn and bruised.

Such fish are used in the United States for pet food but MacLeod said the tenders will stipulate the Babine fish must be processed for human consumption.

An escapement of 200,000 had been expected, however the eight-day strike by fishermen combined with an unexpected record run of early Skeena River sockeye several weeks ago permitted 600,000 to escape, three times what the spawning grounds can handle.

DRAGGING LEGAL ON THIS ROAD

In conjunction with the local RCMP detachment and the Department of Highways, drag racing enthusiasts are holding quarter-mile races on Highway 101 to audiences exceeding 200 on selected Sunday nights.

Hostel Closes Doors

VANCOUVER (CP) — Pacific Hostel closed down Tuesday because of the provincial government's decision to withdraw financial assistance for its operation.

The hostel, which housed up to 200 single employable males at any one time, was closed because of Human Resources Minister Norm Levi's decision to withdraw support.

Levi told city council in May that individuals receiving accommodation in the hostel should be given cash allowances instead.

The facility had been operating on a cost-sharing basis, with the federal government picking up half the tab, the province absorbing 35 per cent, B.C. municipalities 11.25 per cent and the city 3.75 per cent.

The city's assistant director of welfare financial services, Bert Wynn, said the hostel was phased out of operation beginning earlier this month.

About 150 men had been staying in the facility until the phasing-out began and these were given cash allowances instead, in keeping with the minister's order, Wynn said.

They were not given assistance in finding alternative accommodation.

Tel Office Expansion Granted

VANCOUVER (CP) — Go-ahead to the controversial expansion of the British Columbia Telephone building in the 700-block Seymour was given Tuesday by city council.

Council, which had approved the expansion in principle in March, gave final approval on the basis no further extension of the building will be allowed and asked the company to incorporate a roof garden and liven up the street level to encourage pedestrian traffic in downtown Vancouver.

PICKETING DECISION RESERVED

VANCOUVER (CP) — Judge H. E. Hutcheon reserved decision Tuesday on a request for an injunction to ban picketing at the $50 million Royal Centre project at Georgia and Burrard.

Lawyer Morley Shortt, on behalf of Plumbers and Pipefitters Union Local 170, agreed that picketing will be suspended until the decision is reached.

Hugh Ladner, representing the owners and builders of the project, argued the picketing was lawful when it started July 20 but should have ended when a contract was terminated with Johnson Controls, one of five companies involved in the dispute with the plumbers and the only one working at the time at the Royal Centre.

Work was delayed about five days.

Ambulance Man Won't Be Deported

VANCOUVER (CP) — Quesnel ambulance driver Michael Stanley has not been ordered out of the country, a Vancouver immigration official said Tuesday.

And, if Stanely, a United States citizen, wants to continue working for Quesnel, he simply has to apply for an extension of an employment visa obtained July 23.

"I'm not sure what all the fuss is about," said Jim Pasman, director of immigration support services for the Pacific region.

"This man has not been deported. No action has been taken to order him out of the country."

Stanley said Tuesday he had understood from talking to a Prince George immigration official that he "would be asked graciously to leave" after his work visa expired Aug. 11.

Stanley has been in Canada intermittently since 1971, and steadily since mid-June.

"I guess there must have been a failure in communication," Stanley said. "If I can get a work visa, this pretty much solves the problem."

Pasman said the town of Quesnel asked for a three-week work visa for Stanely "and we gave him three weeks."

HIGHEST GOV'T PRIORITY FOR NORTHERN HIGHWAYS

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Highways Minister Graham Lea Tuesday described a $320-million federal-provincial highway development proposal as "gigantic effort" that will create new resource roads to the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

He annonuced the proposal Monday at what he thought was a closed meeting with the Prince George Chamber of Commerce and said Tuesday he was unaware that a reporter was with the chamber delegation.

Lea said the proposed project would include improvements to the Stewart-Cassiar highway which would make it "the main road to the Yukon" and a new highway between Fort Nelson, in northwestern B.C., and Fort Simpson, in the Northwest Territories.

"We feel the federal government should have the same share in northern highways as they have in southern highways like the Trans-Canada Highway," said Lea.

"Two of these roads, the Stewart-Cassiar and Fort Nelson-Fort Simpson, will more directly benefit federal jurisdictions than provincial," he said.

"I think the federal government will agree with us."

Lea said his disclosure of the proposal, which is to be taken to Ottawa "within two or three weeks" was "inadvertent and not intended to embarrass the federal government."

He said the Stewart-Cassiar and Fort Nelson-Fort Simpson highways are important to the economy of northern B.C. but that other, more-heavily-travelled roads such as highways 16 and 97 north "must also be of top priority."

White House Plotted Seduction

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — A White House undercover unit was involved in a plan to seduce women, then blackmail them into giving information about Senator Edward Kennedy, according to the Washington Post.

The scheme was to hire a good-looking man to seduce female friends of the late Mary Jo Kopechne, the secretary who drowned in a car accident while driving from a party with Sen. Kennedy at Chappaquiddick, Mass., in 1969.

PROBES VARIED

Other secret investigations ordered by senior White House aides during the first Nixon administration included probes into the lives of House speaker Carl Albert, Rep. Richard Poff (R-Va.), the Smothers Brothers comedy team and the producers of the anti-Nixon movie Millhouse, according to reliable sources.

Interviews with many government and non-government sources turned up 16 previously unreported White House investigations and additional details on six others.

SUITE RENTED

One of the most mysterious activities of Ulasewicz was the renting of a New York city apartment in late 1971. Ulasewicz received the rent money from President Nixon's former personal attorney Herbert Kalmbach, the sources said.

Ulasewicz has told government attorneys that the apartment was to be used as an office for a private detective agency.

However, sources said the apartment was furnished with velvet wallpaper and fur rugs, hardly the decor for a private detective agency. Government attorneys have been told that the apartment was to be used to seduce female friends of Mary Jo.

SECRET PICTURES

The scheme involved hiring a good-looking man to seduce the women in the apartment, have pictures taken secretly, and then blackmail the women into revealing details about Miss Kopechne and the party that took place shortly before the Chappaquiddick accident.

Ulasewicz has denied any involvement in the scheme.

Convicted Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt has testified in a closed-door session with government attorneys that he was told of such a plan.

Several sources said that Ulasewicz, a former New York city policeman who paid out more than $200,000 to the Watergate conspirators, has been involved in numerous investigations of the Chappaquiddick incident.

POSED AS REPORTER

On the weekend of the crash, Ulasewicz was sent to the accident scene to pose as a reporter, according to the sources. Ulasewicz' findings were sent back that weekend to former No. 2 White House aide John Ehrlichman, to Bebe Rebozo, a close friend of Nixon, and to Nixon, the sources said.

The investigations appeared to be mostly for political purposes, including digging up damaging material about Nixon critics.

Ulasewicz has appeared twice before the Senate watergate committee but has testified about the investigations only in vague terms.

The sources said that virtually all the orders for the Ulasewicz investigations originated with Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldeman.

DETAILS CONFIRMED

The sources said that additional investigations conducted by Ulasewicz included probes of:

—An assistant to Rose Kennedy, the mother of the late president Kennedy. The inquiry was into the death of the assistant's wife, who apparently died of a drug overdose.

—Dick Dixon, a comedian who looks like President Nixon. Senior White House staff members were "furious" over Dixon's imitations of the president, the sources said.

—Lanny Davis, a young aide to Sen. Edmund Muskie (D—Maine), who early in 1972 was regarded as the front-runner for the democratic presidential nomination.

—An apparently erroneus report that Donald Nixon Jr., the president's newphew, was involved with drugs in a hippie commune. Syndicated columnist Jack Anderson has reported that Ulasewicz persuaded Donald to leave a commune.

—The peace vigil in front of the White House. Theodore Brill, the student head of the Young Republicans at George Washington University, was paid about $750 from the president's campaign funds to spy on the vigil last year.

—Rabbi Meir Kahane, leader of the militant anti-Soviet Jewish Defence League.

Sources in the White House Senate Watergate committee and Justice Department said the most of the White House-sponsored investigations turned up little valuable political information.

One Government attorney described the effectiveness as follows: "The Ulasewicz investigations—like the Watergate bugging and Ellsberg burglary—were flops in large part . . . the overtones are of a police state and (are) horrifying, but the projects did little damage from what we can tell."

CHURCH BINGO BACK

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bingo is back at Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church school after acting attorney-general James Lorimer renewed the school's bingo licence.

The attorney-general's department had originally decided not to rene the licence because the church was giving away too much money in prizes.

But Lorimer said Tuesday, he had received assurances that the school would comply with lottery regulations which specify that 25 per cent of the proceeds must be used for charity.

In the April 1972-73 fiscal year the parish kept only 9.6 per cent of the proceeds.

Blueberry Cobbler— Warm from the Oven

Luscious, plump blueberries generously buried in this pinwheel cobbler treat. Serve warm topped with light cream, or with huge scoops of ice cream . . . makes your mouth water, doesn't it?

2 cups biscuit mix
½ tsp. cinnamon
¼ cup chopped pecans
⅔ cup milk
1½ tbsp. butter, melted
4 cups fresh blueberries, washed, drained
1 cup lightly packed brown sugar
¼ cup orange juice concentrate
Vanilla ice cream or light cream
2 tbsp. flour.

Butter a 9-inch square cake pan. Preheat oven to 425F. Combine biscuit mix, cinnamon and nuts. Add milk and stir until ingredients are just combined. Turn out on a lightly floured board and knead about 5 minutes. Roll dough to a rectangle about 8x12 inches. Brush with melted butter and spoon 2 cups of the blueberries over dough. Starting with long edge of dough, roll as for jelly roll, sealing edges of dough over blueberries. Cut roll into 9 equal slices. Spoon remaining 2 cups blueberries into prepared pan. Combine ½ cup of the sugar and flour, sprinkle over berries. Arrange pinwheel slices over fruit. Combine orange juice concentrate and remaining sugar. Pour over rolls and bake uncovered in pre-heated oven 25 to 30 minutes. Serve warm with vanilla ice cream or light cream. Makes 9 servings.

Hints to Cut Food Costs

What can be done to cut food costs? Much depends on the shopper, for if she knows how to shop wisely, her efforts will be worthwhile both in time and savings. Here are some budget-saving points that could serve as a useful guide.

- Substitute one vegetable or fruit for another if it means a saving, and IF your family will accept the change.
- Check out the various forms of food—fresh, canned, frozen, dehydrated for the best buy.
- Buy products when in season. It means better quality, and often lower prices.
- Take advantage of good buys in canned and frozen products, if ample storage space is available.
- Avoid buying excess perishable foods — even at bargain prices. Try lower priced brand products. Many private or less advertised brands may be similar in quality to national products, but less expensive.

Homespun Diet Rural Mainstay

By JIM NEAVES

If city housewives want to save money at the grocery store, they'll have to invest more time in their kitchens.

A survey of housewives in the rural areas of the three Prairie provinces shows that while they don't spend as much money at the grocery store, they make up for it by spending much more time in the kitchen than their city counterparts.

Homemade, wholesome and nourishing food still is the mainstay of rural diets unlike the pallid, tasteless concoctions of questionable nutritional value such as frozen TV dinners and so-called convenience foods available in city supermarkets.

As the cost of food continues to climb, most rural housewives don't complain because they feel adequate prices for farm produce are essential for the farmers' survival.

Rose Ann Deitz, a mother of three children whose husband Frank farms more than 2,000 acres at Loreburn, Sask., 65 miles south of Saskatoon, says food is essential and "I don't think it is high-priced in comparison with other things which all have gone up in price."

Dawn Erven, 34, who also has three children on a farm near Clanwilliam, Man., 40 miles north of Brandon, agrees food prices are higer, "but for the first time in a long while we are getting a good price for our cattle."

"I don't think food prices are too high, but I wouldn't ever want to have to buy all my food again in city stores."

Mrs. Erven worked as a bank teller in Winnipeg before moving to the farm after her marriage in the early 1960s.

Doreen Gray, who moved to a 480-acre farm with husband John in 1953 about 25 miles northeast of Athabasca, Alta., and now has five children, says while her weekly shopping bill has increased about $5 during the last year, she notices larger increases in footwear and clothing.

"Particularly in clothing for John and the boys, and shoes for us all, because I do all the sewing for the girls and myself."

All three said they had never had TV dinners in their homes.

Both Mrs. Erven and Mrs. Gray buy flour in 100-pound bags and although Mrs. Deitz said she does not bake often.

"I'm going to try some baking using pure, stone-ground flour that is being processed by one of our local farmers."

Mrs. Erven said she bakes all her own bread.

Mrs. Gray said she used a 100-pound bag of flour each month, baking three days a week making seven loaves and a batch of buns each day. During harvest or haying time, she helps in the fields and then has to buy some bread.

"I buy some in a pinch but then the family seems to have to eat twice as much of the commercially-made bread and it sure doesn't last as long as my own."

They make good use of freezers and have the advantage of raising their own meat or being able to obtain it from neighbors. There also is the advantage of their own gardens which produce vegetables and fruit in season.

"We kill our own beef and hogs and have our own chickens," Mrs. Erven said. "I've become a real good meatcutter.

"I don't buy any milk and we use about three quarts a day. I take cream to the creamery and it's much cheaper to buy butter through the creamery."

Mrs. Erven also buys fish from local fishermen in the winter and, "here again, it's much cheaper than buying it in the store."

Mrs. Gray, who lives in an area not served with electric power, has a refrigerator and stove operated by propane gas. They have a small generator which is mainly used for lighting and power for the washer-dryer.

For Mrs. Gray, the weekly shopping trip — "usually on a Friday because that's when the sales are on" — means a 50-mile round trip.

Mrs. Deitz has two choices, either a 10-mile trip into Loreburn or an 18-mile drive into the larger centre of Davidson.

Meet Well Planned

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — When a local branch invites a national organization to hold a convention in its home town, glad cries go up from the home team if the answer is yes.

Then there's a lull for a year or two.

About a year and a half before the convention is actually held, the organizing work slowly begins, piling up in an avalanche of detail by the time the great days acutally arrive.

Mrs. J. T. Davies says all 175 members of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire (IODE) in Prince Edward Island were involved before delegates began checking in. The order accepted Charlottetown's invitation three years ago. Mrs. Davies was organizing chairman.

They accepted so enthusiastically that nearly 500 delegates arrived when only 300 were expected, and P.E.I.'s committees had to keep producing more and more of everything.

COMMITTEES FORMED

Mrs. Davies said the first steps, taken about a year and a half ago, were to make reservations with hotels and the local chamber of commerce.

They had looked at registrations for previous IODE conventions to get an approximate attendance number.

Mrs. Davies said they had 16 committees, including accommodations, transportation, information and hospitality.

A chapter outside Charlottetown was asked to look after souvenirs and everyone sewed "Spud Island" potato bags to fill with the convention doodads, pads and pencils, tissue and matches.

An information committee collected menus, drew maps, made hair appointments and directed people to the liquor stores and handicraft shops.

The transportation committee came in for some unexpected effort when five minor accidents required emergency treatment.

ROSE TO CHALLENGE

Committeewoman Dorothy Johnson says they drew on local youth groups to provide entertainment at dinners and lunches.

"We tried to keep the entertainment young, nothing heavy."

They also drew on people who had worked in the Red Glove Revues the IODE had sponsored over several years to help raise money for the convention.

In the opening days, while the national executive was being welcomed at parties given in membees' homes, given in members' homes, ty room was operating to be sure early-arriving delegates had a place to meet friends.

Mrs. Davies said members and official hosts alike rose to the challenge of looking after the 200 extra delegates.

"When we went from here to Summerside, we had 50 cars and two buses. This is where the committees really outdid themselves.

"We just kept pulling cars up and filling them. Mayor Ross MacKenzie of Summerside received all 400 of the delegates. He had intended to have a reception but, with 400 milling in, the receiving was very informal, I assure you.

"We had planned a tour by double-decker bus and private car to the north shore, and 200 wanted to go. We had lunch at a new restaurant in Rustico, a little fishing village. They were a little surprised, as we were. We had expected about 70."

Mrs. Davies said they asked local delegates with cars to move to accommodation away from the centre of town. They shifted a lunch to a bigger dining room.

The final step, when the delegates leave, is to add up expenses, add up the money in the convention fund, and hope they come out even.

NARDIS of Dallas
Trunk showing this week at Miss Frith Fashions

Good news for Victoria women who look to Miss Frith for top designer items!

We are introducing a fresh new line from one of the continent's high fashion centres — NARDIS, of Dallas. This outstanding line, so famous in the United States, will be exclusive to Miss Frith in Victoria.

A week-long showing has been arranged of twenty-five specially selected models. These include daytime dresses, jacket dresses, pant suits, and floor-length dresses. They are the ultimate in good styling and quality workmanship.

The Nardis line is received with enthusiasm by well-dressed women wherever it is shown. Miss Frith is eager to show you the first ones to come to the Victoria fashion scene.

You are invited to view the collection, which will be displayed for one week on the mezzanine, and inspect them at your leisure. Come in Saturday, August 4th, 12 noon to 4 p.m., when all garments will be modelled for your viewing.

Many of the fashions you see will be stocked at Miss Frith's. However, those which are not may be ordered at your request, and will be delivered to you.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Non-Convulsive Epilepsy

Many years ago, I saw a woman who, in middle age, was still wetting the bed. She had so much trouble with this condition that she had to carry a rubber sheet with her whenever she went travelling. She had had three spells of enuresis (bed-wetting) in the six months before I saw her.

Because I know that enuresis is very often a familial problem, I asked her if anyone else in her family had the trouble, but she said she did not know of anyone. I have heard many stories in which there were other nervous difficulties in the relatives of bed-wetters, but this particular woman denied any bad heredity.

She had been carefully studied by urologists who had found nothing abnormal about her kidneys or bladder, so I had to look elsewhere for an explanation for her unusual problem. Knowing that some patients with minor forms of epilepsy have told me of wetting the bed into adulthood, I checked her knee-jerks (by striking just below her knee with a rubber hammer, I could learn something about how well her nervous system was working) and discovered that she had greatly exaggerated jerks.

After I made friends with her and had gained her trust, she confessed that her two children had wet the bed until they were about seven. Then she confessed that at times she had had brief depressions without any reason that she could see. She said she knew of no other persons with depressions in the family. She admitted that she had a very quick and violent temper, such as many epileptics complain of, and this bothered her a good deal. She said she slept poorly; she had some dizziness, also headaches associated with nervous tension and explosions of anger.

These symptoms fitted into the picture of a person with what I call non-convulsive, or seizureless, epilepsy, who may never have a grand mal seizure, or who had only a few "fever convulsions" in infancy, but whose life is made uncomfortable with a number of curious symptoms caused by an abnormal nervous system.

My suspicions were even more sure when she told me at last that she had an alcoholic brother who had grand mal epilepsy. I sent the woman for an electroencephalogram (a record of the electric currents constantly running through the brain), and sure enough, they were irregular and showed that she had a mild dysrhythmia (a sign of epilepsy). With Dilantin, an anti-convulsive drug, she was promptly cured of her enuresis.

Musician Breaks Dual Misconception

Concert pianist Mary Munn is blind . . . she was born without sight.

Nevertheless, in her long and successful career she has not let that fact cloud her thinking or deter her from reaching the top.

At no time has this been more evident than as she worked toward a doctorate of musical arts at New England University in Boston.

The degree was conferred upon her during convocation exercises in May.

Not only that, for a second time she ranked high enough in final exams to be elected to the music honor society Phi Kappa Lambda. First time was back in 1967 when she received her Masters degree from the same university.

In Victoria on a short visit, Dr. Munn told me something of how — and why — she started to work on her doctorate.

She was already recognized throughout Canada — as well as New York, London and Europe — as a concert artist of distinction. She graduated from McGill University, took her LRAM at Royal Academy of Music in London; had appeared in solo concerts and with outstanding symphony orchestras in England and Canada and had been a staff pianist with BBC.

She was established on both sides of the Atlantic as a serious and imaginative musician; whe was known in western Canada cities — including Victoria — as an outstanding teacher, and, in the mid-60s was on the teaching staff of the Mount Royal Conservatory in Calgary.

However, she heard of a music bulletin that expressed the opinion that many musicians with wide backgrounds were not concerned with further study.

There was also the prevalent idea that a blind person would encounter insurmountable difficulty in aspiring to a high music degree.

"I wanted to refute both beliefs," she says, "also to prove to other blind persons that it was not impossible."

So, this brilliant musician decided to go back to school and work toward a Masters degree "if a university would accept me."

With her friend and longtime companion, Miss Margaret Ryall, she went to Boston and applied for entry at the New England university.

"They said they would accept me . . . then, all of a sudden changed their minds. So, I challenged them to at least let me take the entrance examinations . . . then, if I failed, to toss me out."

The university agreed. Mary Munn passed with flying colors and in two years won her Masters.

She returned to the Calgary conservatory where she was promoted to faculty chairman and, a year later, to vice-principal.

It would have been easy at that time to call it quits. "But that would still not have helped the blind," Dr. Munn reminds you.

So, again she and Miss Ryall went down to Boston this time to study for a doctorate in musical history and composition.

During the next four years "it was work 17 hours a day, seven days a week . . . we did nothing else."

Courses included not only history but also performance. Which meant Dr. Munn had to do four recitals in Boston — two solos, one on chamber music and a fourth solo — "longer, harder and of higher standard which the university gave to replace a lecture recital in defence of my thesis, deleted because I was blind."

The history of music covered a period "from about the third century to modern times." Theory included harmony, counterpoint, analysis and orchestration. "In that last I had to know the range of every instrument and how to score."

Students going for a doctorate also had to have two languages as well as their mother tongue. "Lucky I knew basic French and German."

Also, in order to gain the degree, there had to be an outside minor subject, chosen by the university. "For some obscure reason they chose as my minor the architecture of Europe and the United States up to the 1850s."

Another facet of the course, was an essay showing comparison between the Library of Congress system of cataloguing and that of the Dewey decimal system.

Here, Dr. Munn, being blind, could not see proofreading signs she would be faced with in the examination.

"It looked as if I was going to be stymied," she says, "until an imaginative fellow student came up with the idea of reproducing the signs with pipe cleaners."

Dr. Munn

It worked. Only trouble, the examiner became so interested in these aids, he almost forgot what he was there to do.

The two women attended all lectures together. Miss Ryall took notes she later transcribed. Then she read them aloud, over and over again, until student Munn had them well anchored in her memory. Question periods came next. "until finally I was almost letter perfect."

Here Dr. Munn makes it clear, with quiet sincerity, that she is confident blind persons can reach the top in any field, provided all circumstances are right."

Those circumstances include "the help of a spouse, a relative or a true friend and companion, like Margaret, who is dedicated to giving all help possible, not only with studies but in sharing living responsibilities."

After a short holiday here (staying at Wayside House on Foul Bay Road) Mary Munn and Margaret Ryall will return to Calgary where the position of principal in the conservatory is now waiting for this outstanding musician.

Petals Ready for Potpourri

By HILDA BEASTALL

The art of drying and mixing scented petals and leaves for a dry potpourri goes back into ancient history, so that recorded methods are vague when it comes to quantities and curing periods. No two potpourris will smell the same.

This makes them individual achievements, according to what each person likes and can obtain.

Fragrant leaves and petals are gathered as they come to their peak in the garden, then dried and put away in covered jars in the dark until enough are collected to make jars or bowls of the finished mixture.

Starting now, begin to collect the flowers of your own most fragrant roses. Take the whole flower just as it reaches full growth, not in "opening bud" stage nor when just about to fall. Pull off the petals. Each blossom can usually be stripped in one motion, taking all the petals together in the fingers.

Spread the petals in a single layer either on a wire screen or on a large tray, to be dried quickly in a warm dark place.

Darkness helps to retain both color and fragrance. Temperature should be held between 70 and 90 degs. F. These conditions are not too easy to establish with today's living, but get them as near as possible. An open oven with lowest heat does very well.

Since rose petals take between 48 and 72 hours to become chip dry, you will want to turn off the oven at night for safety. That will be alright; stir the petals (or leaves) with the fingers so that each piece is separate and set the tray where the warm air of the house circulates over them.

As soon as one batch of petals is chip dry, put them into glass jars with caps.

Keep each kind separate for the time, adding more of the same to the jars as you prepare them during summer. Keep the jars in a dark cupboard.

Carnations and pinks, the lacy Dianthus Loveliness, any highly scented variety you happen to like, can be gathered for adding to your potpourri.

When all ingredients are dried, make up the mixture you wish. Several small glass jars with glass covers are good, for then you can enjoy different fragrances. Keep covers on except when wanting the fragrance. Even put the jars into a dark place.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: I quote from your column: "Dear Abby: My mother has been very sick for a year and a half. Her doctor says she could last another year or die tomorrow. My husband and I have put of taking any kind of vacation ever since mother's illness, and we really must get away. I'm afraid if we go, mother might die, and we'll have to turn around and rush home. Should we go or not?"

I'm glad you threw the problem right back into her lap, Abby. That's a decision everyone must make for himself. My own beloved mother suffered a series of strokes and was confined to bed, totally helpless.

My brother and I took turns staying with her for nine years, day and night, and neither one of us worried about vacation. When one of us would walk into Mama's room, the sunshine of her smile was "vacation" enough for us.

God called her home last Christmas.—No Regrets.

DEAR NO: Another has the same problem. Read on for her solution:

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the woman whose mother lingered so long with a terminal illness that she and her husband didn't dare to take a much needed vacation reminded me of my own situation.

We, too, had six years of the identical situation. Finally we made arrangements with a funeral home to keep mother's body until our return if she died while we were away. Then we felt free to go.

It turned out that mother passed away while we were home, so it wasn't necessary for the funeral home to grant our request. But for four years we went away on our vacation with a clear conscience, and heaven knows it was our salvation.—Marion.

DEAR ABBY: May I commend you for your understanding advice to "Heartsick Mother" whose beautiful 22-year-old daughter had an all-consuming interest in another girl.

You told the mother: "Let your daughter know you love her and accept her as she is. There is no more convincing proof of your love."

I hope she heeds your advice. My only son turned out to be a homosexual. I was heartbroken, but never let him know it.

Although I couldn't understand it, I accepted it. Today he has adjusted to it, has an excellent position in a distant state, and the respect of those he works for. And yes, he has a "special" friend.

Had I rejected him, he might have had many more problems. Before going to his present location, he wrote me a letter, thanking me for accepting him as he is. Neither one of us ever mentioned it again.

Thank you, Abby, for understanding. —No Name Please

CONFIDENTIAL TO JERRY: When your wife no longer cares how late you come home, it's later than you think.

Wine cookery has been popular for many years, but so far only a few homemakers have been using hard liquor to create interesting dishes.

The glossy and beautifully illustrated booklet Corby In The Kitchen is a recipe booklet packed with ideas for the imaginative use of spirits in gourmet cooking.

In the preparation of one unusual dish, Calves Liver Cira, whisky is called for. It might convert even those who always shunned liver into fans of this whilesome food.

Pork Chops With Whisky Stuffing is another taste sensation. The chops are baked in white wine and then topped with the zesty stuffing.

If you like the distinctive flavor of gin, you will love Chicken Livers flambee. Or if you prefer the unique taste of rum, Navy Bread Rum may be your choice. For this a standard yeast bread recipe is used.

Said to be a culinary first is the booklet's Peanut Butter Omelette. The batter is prepared with sherry and the omelette filled with a banana and plum sauce, fortified with rum and whisky.

NEW POST FILLED

The appointment of an associate deputy minister of labor, in charge of manpower development, was announced Tuesday.

Ranjit Azad, 45, will fill the new post and be responsible for the development of a comprehensive development policy on manpower utilization.

He will be requested by the department to recommend changes to the vocational school program in order to deal with heavy unemployment periods and will work in close liaison with the federal Department of Manpower and Immigrztion.

A Model Case of Overkill

By WAYNE HARDING
Times Staff

Paul Newman's film The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds is a model case of artistic overkill.

Trying to handle a poignant story about a mother who fails her children, the film-maker has chosen to use a kick in the groin where a punch in the mouth would have sufficed.

The heroine is something of a classic in the modern American theatre: A frowzy young-old woman who chews gum, chain smokes, knocks back whiskies, curses her children and the world and regrets the past. It's an ideal part for Joanne Woodward who interprets the role with great force.

Her characterization does more to retrieve what is poignant in the screenplay than do all the lingering shots employed by the director and all the cruel incidentals compounded by the author.

The point is that the mother fails her two daughters — one, doomed to be a tart; the other, a sensitive scholar — because she is unable to handle the raw deal life has given her.

The point is made early in the film. But Newman is not about to leave it. In the end the point seems pointless.

After the character has been drawn — about half an hour after the beginning — everyone knows how she will respond to the given events which confront her. Thus the incident when she kills her little girl's pet rabbit or when she appears drunk at a school ceremony or where she plans to landscape her garden in the middle of the night or the many others are redundant.

The only justification is to use up the budget and another hour of audience's life.

DRAFT DODGERS HELPED TO BECOME IMMIGRANTS

WINNIPEG (CP) — A $100,000 advertising and public relations budget to help U.S. war resisters acquire landed immigrant status in Canada was announced Tuesday by the Canadian Coalition of War Resisters and the National Council of Churches, U.S.A.

Most of the money, raised by the National Council of Churches, will be used to provide information and counselling in dealing with new government legislation.

Under the legislation, yet to be proclaimed, persons living in Canada without landed immigration status have 60 days beginning today to file application for the proper legal status.

Immigration Minister Robert Andras, speaking June 28 to the committee of immigration and manpower, said the government has no intention of taking punitive action against such persons living in the country illegally.

"We want the people involved to come forward, not so that we can get our hands on them, but rather so we can give them a proper start in Canada" he said then.

The amendment to the Immigration Appeal Board Act changes the criteria for acquiring landed immigrant status making compassionate consideration the central theme.

The major limitation of the bill is that people must make their application within the specified 60-day period. Failing to do so, those persons concerned will lose forever their right to apply for status from within the country and all appeal rights should they be caught living in Canada illegally.

Information centres for war resisters have been established through the program in Vancouver, Calgary, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Toronto, Ottawa, Regina, Montreal and Halifax.

EEC Joins U.S. In Space Work

BRUSSELS (UPI) — After 10 years of trying to run its own independent space program, Europe decided today to link up with the U.S. post-Apollo program.

Ministers of 11 European nations agreed after 13 hours bargaining to put up enough money to build the $370 million sortie lab, a key component in the $5.5 billion U.S. Spacelab project. Contracts between the U.S. government and the European Space Research Organization are to be signed Aug. 15.

Only 79 per cent of the money is guaranteed, minsters said, because Italy, Norway and Sweden were unable to give ironclad promises they could contribute their combined share of 21 per cent.

Because of this, the contract will contain a nullifying clause if the three nations fail to guarantee the funds by Sept. 18. But the ministers said they doubted this would happen.

Michael Heseltine of Britain said there was "too much momentum" for Italy, Sweden and Norway to back out now.

The European work will be carried out over the next eight years on Spacelab, which succeeds Skylab.

The ministers also agreed to set up a new European Space Agency by next April 1.

They gave the go-ahead for a maritime satellite to which Britain will contribute 56 per cent of the funds and a rocket to which France will supply 62 per cent of the funds.

Over the past decade, Europeans have spent more than $1 billion on co-operative space projects. They have nothing to show for it but six unsuccessful rocket launchings and a series of satellites put into orbit by U.S. rockets. German and British refusal to spend more on the rockets forced the rethinking that ended in today's agreement.

Envoy Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon intends to nominate career foreign service officer Roger Kirk as U.S. ambassador to the Somali Democratic Republic, the White House announced Tuesday. Kirk 42, has been deputy assistant director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency for the last year.

Gaslights Burn Again in Old Warsaw

By JAMES NELSON

WARSAW (CP) — The gaslights are burning again in the heart of old Warsaw, where horse-drawn carriages roll through the cobbled streets. The old town square is ringed with fine restaurants.

This is the part of Warsaw that Hitler ordered obliterated in the Second World War. All that remained were a few foundation stones in the rubble from which the Polish authorities have restored the splendor of the 1890s.

Away from the old town, modern edifices line the broad avenues, but they have been kept low so the historical reconstruction will not be overshadowed.

What impresses the Western visitor is the amount of money and ancient skills devoted here—and in a comparable way, in Leningrad—to restoring the past. It could scarcely have been done as a tourist attraction, since tourism is only beginning in Poland and Russia.

It is clearly an effort by the peoples' republics to preserve their niche in history.

The black-dressed woman wearing a black babushka has receded into the background. Girls wear short skirts, medium-high heels, and colorful dresses. Young men wear wide-cuffed strides and platform-soled shoes.

RESTORING PALACES

In Warsaw, work has begun on rebuilding the royal palace, which is to be restored to its decorative glory—in the capital of a country that has abandoned royalty.

Outside Leningrad the summer palace of the czars, burned to the ground and robbed of its treasures by the Germans, is also being restored. Reconstruction in Leningrad alone is costing a reported $9 million a year. The fountains have been turned on again among the gilt reproductions of classical statuary.

In old Warsaw, the Roman Catholic and Greek Orthodox cathedrals swarm with Saturday night crowds on their way to or from dining and the theatre. In Leningrad most of the churches have been converted into museums, but so too has the stock exchange.

The black market in hard currencies flourishes openly. Any cab driver will offer you 70 zlotys for $1, twice the normal rate of exchange.

MAY POSSESS DOLLARS

It is no longer illegal for Poles to have dollars, and they can spend them with no questions asked in state-run shops for the tourist trade. One guide who helped members of the National Arts Centre Orchestra here on their European tour this spring was just back from a two-week holiday in England, which she paid for from her dollar tips.

In Russia, the black market is still illegal and tourists are cautioned against any attempt at dollar dealings. One could quickly land you in jail.

A trimly-dressed young Russian said his friend wanted to buy a Japanese-made collapsible umbrella in the dollar shop, but only had rubles. Would a tourist oblige? He was politely turned down. He might have been a provocateur.

Within reason, the tourist can wander freely around downtown Warsaw, Leningrad or Moscow without a guide. An interpreter is essential, however, for any shopping or dealings with the post or telegraph offices.

A tourist, therefore, is well advised to go de luxe class, for which the Russian Intourist charge includes the services for an interpreter for six hours a day and of a car and driver for three hours a day.

Separate Canadian King?

LONDON (CP) — A British historian suggests the setting up of independent monarchies in Canada and other dominions as a means of countering republican influence.

Pursuing a theme raised in a letter to The Times last week by Lord O'Neill, a Northern Ireland, Dr. Simon Collier, chairman of the history department at the University of Essex, offers a "longer-range" alternative to O'Neill's suggestions of royal residences in the dominions.

"One of the younger princes, for example, could be educated in Canada and eventually occupy a separate Canadian throne," writes Collier in a letter to The Times published today.

"Canada would thus be enabled to assume the title of kingdom which the Fathers of Confederation wanted in 1867 but which was denied them by the then British government out of a pusillanimous deference to American republican sentiments."

Collier says the independent monarchy idea was first conceived by the Bourbon rulers of the Spanish-American empire in the 18th century but not implemented. He says it might be welcomed by "the many Canadians who see the attenuation of the present Commonwealth links as inevitable, but who nevertheless wish to preserve the monarchy as a unifying force and, perhaps more importantly, as a supreme symbol of their distinctiveness within North America."

Everest Assault

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — A 48-man Japanese expedition to Mount Everest plans an attempt to climb the world's highest peak this autumn along its untested southwest face. Teams from Japan and Britain that tried the southwest approach last fall were stopped by bad weather.

Event Cancelled

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian Indy, for Indianapolis-type cars, scheduled for Aug. 3-5, has been cancelled because of the inability to "provide a representative field," Harvey Hudes, general manager of the Mosport Park track, has announced.

INDIAN BONES NEAR BOSTON

BOSTON (AP) — Proof that Indians lived in the Boston area 4,600 years ago has been unearthed on an island in Boston harbor, The Boston Globe reports in a copyright story.

The newspaper says a human skeleton was found on Peddocks Island and determined through tests to be approximately 4,600 years old.

The newspaper says the skeleton was accidentally discovered by Josephine Walsh, an amateur archeologist, while she was digging for a rose garden.

The discovery was in April, 1971, and was kept secret for fear of an influx of relic hunters to the area. The newspaper says the excavation site has since been covered.

The skeleton was that of a man, about 50 to 60 years old.

Onion-Watching Game All Set to Start

Onion watching is a gardeners' game played in late July and early August. The stakes are a crop of well ripened onions which will keep after being lifted from the garden.

These notes apply to garlic, shallots and whatever variations of onions you grow excepting chives and leeks. These two last vegetables continue normal growing.

During July the onions (and garlic and shallots) have been getting larger. We call this "sizing up." Each kind and variety of onion has an ultimate maximum size. You will have been moving soil away from the bulbs each week to have them fully exposed to sunshine as an important part of the maturing process. Now the bulbs are sitting on the soil surface with only fibrous roots as anchors.

Outer skins gradually toughen, becoming thinner and drier. Leaves may be green or losing their color to a yellowing.

Most important at this stage is to be sure that no more water reaches those fibrous roots. If it does, they pick it up and start growing again.

You may have planted your onions in alternate rows with other vegetables, perhaps hoping for pest control. With watering still necessary for everything else in the vegetable garden you may have to look upon the onions as everyday vegetables to use freely while still fresh.

Onions which start new growth after a drought period at the roots, soon develop a softening of the neck part of the bulb. In fact the whole centre of the onion from the roots up to the top, again begins to grow. This is why rotten centres develop in onions after being dug for storage. The centres are not mature.

If your onions are not in an isolated section where water cannot reach the roots, you can do a few things to attempt ripening.

One is to pull each onion sharply by the leaves in one direction. This will break many of the fibrous roots on one side, thus preventing the taking up of moisture. After five or six days pull the onions sharply to the other side.

Yellowing of the foliage should be soon noticeable as a further indication of ripening. Lifting and drying outdoors in sunshine will complete the job. Turn the onions several times each day, taking them into a dry warm place at night.

If a shower occurs while the onions are still in the ground, take them up at once, spreading them to dry wherever light and dry air will reach them, putting them outdoors in sunshine as soon as possible.

Onion watching does not cease when the crop is lifted. Frequent inspection is needed to detect the slightest softening, for a rotting onion indoors is only less unsavory than a combination of rotting cabbages and potatoes.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Back in 1937, a young man won the Spingold Team-of-Four Championship, in which year he was also the winner of the McKenney Trophy (awarded annually to the player who wins the greatest number of master points during the year). He also won the McKenney Trophy in 1940. In 1938 and 1940, he captured the Life Masters Pairs Championship. Also a winner of the Vanderbilt Cup Championship (in 1940) and a double winner of the Life Masters Individual (in 1940 and 1950), this man is described in the Official Encyclopedia of Bridge as "... for many years, one of the leading American players."

The man I am referring to is Morrie Ells, of Oceanside, N.Y. Back in 1956, he retired from top-echelon tournament competition. He did not return to play again until the National Championships of 1972, held in Lancaster, Pa., this past fall. That he has not lost his touch can be observed in this deal, which was played in the team-of-four event. He was the South declarer.

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Three of ♠.

West's opening lead of a spade was taken by East's ace, and the ten of clubs was returned. Had Ells played the ace, he would have gone down, for West could then not have been prevented from subsequently winning a second club lead with his king. A diamond return by West would now have made a winner out of East's king.

But Ells allowed the club ten to win. A club continuation was captured by Ells' ace. After trumps were drawn, the club jack was played, West's king winning. On dummy's fourth club, Ells was now able to discard his losing diamond.

Had the six outstanding clubs been divided 4-2, Ells, as a last resort, would have taken the diamond finesse. But, as he put it, "two plus chances are better than one." When I asked him, "Why two plus chances?" he answered: "West might have had the doubleton K-Q of clubs. I have a 'plus' whenever he has this specific combination, and I don't play my jack on the first club lead. Actually today it would not have mattered if I played my jack on the initial club lead. But it just couldn't be the right play."

Uncle Andy had addressed the stamps to Steve, so the boy took what he fancied before giving the rest to his sister.

"You kept 10 more than half what you'd have had if you'd given me 10 more than half of what you kept," she declared. "But it's okay."

Steve grinned. "You're smart," he told her. "I gave you 10 more than half what you'd have had if I'd kept 10 less than half what I gave you."

Havana Visit

MOSCOW (AP) — Two Soviet destroyers and a submarine now on a training cruise in the Atlantic will call at Havana and other Cuban ports beginning Aug. 4, Tass news agency reported.

MLA EXPECTS MORE JUDGES TO RESIGN

Alex Fraser, Social Credit MLA for the Cariboo, said more resignations of lay judges in British Columbia can be expected following the resignation last week of Williams Lake lay judge S. S. Leith.

Fraser said Judge Leith had been working six days a week for a salary of $600 a month and had cited a lack of pay raises as cause of unrest within the profession.

He said the B.C. government has failed to grant about 100 lay judges, those without law degrees, salary increases commensurate with those awarded professional court judges who receive about $26,000 annually.

Haddad Link To Jet Sought

By JIM HOAGLAND
Washington Post

BEIRUT — Western security agencies are serching for clues that the hijacking and destruction of a Japan Airlines jumbo jet last week was organized primarily for cash by Wadi Haddad, the Palestinian radical who has masterminded the most spectacular acts of Middle East air piracy.

No evidence is available of any involvement by Haddad, a 45-year-old dentist and leader of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine. But Western sources say enough elements of Haddad's style are present in the Japanese jumbo case to make him a prime suspect.

The motivation of the four surviving hijackers, reportedly now under arrest in Libya, is still not clear. But Western diplomats suspect that it was a mixture of profit and politics, with the main emphasis on money.

The fact that the hijackers, three Arabs and one Japanese, made no clear public demand adds to the suspicion by diplomats that they may have privately demanded a multimillion dollar pay-off from Japan Airlines.

The payoff evidently fell through because of a communications breakdown that left the hijackers in the dark on Japanese efforts to get together the ransom. The hijackers, who had held 138 passengers and crew hostage for 87 hours, took the plane to Benghazi, Libya, where they blew it up, perhaps in retribution.

The leadership of all important Palestinian organizations have denounced the hijacking, and Western sources active in counter-terror efforts take the denunciations as genuine. The Palestinian leaders are reported to be seething over the indiscipline and bungling of the allegedly free-lance group, which called itself "The Sons of the Occupied Territories."

The official Libyan news agency condemned the case Saturday as "an immoral and inhuman act which harms the Palestinian cause," indicating that Libya may punish the four air bandits. If there is a link to the popular front, this would increase the chance for punishment, since Libya's president Muammar Kaldafi has tangled verbally with the PFLP often.

The secrecy surrounding the motivation of the hijackers makes it resemble the hijacking of a Lufthansa jumbo jet to Aden in March, 1972.

SCANDAL CALL GIRL FINED

LONDON (AP) — Norma Levy, the call girl at the centre of the sex scandal that rocked the British government, pleaded guilty to three counts of influencing prostitutes and was fined $562 today.

The magistrate, John Phipps, said three charges resulted from Mrs. Levy agreeing to manage a friend's "organization" for a couple of weeks. The charges had no bearing on the government scandal.

Mrs. Levy, 26, was identified as the prostitute photographed in bed with Lord Lambton, then the British air force minister. He resigned. The Lambton investigation forced the resignation of Lord Jellicoe, government leader in the House of Lords. He admitted dealings with call girls.

Both Lambton and Jellicoe said they were not blackmailed. Both said there were no security leaks as a result of their relations with call girls.

Returned ICCS Officer Sorry Canada's Out

There's little chance of peace in Vietnam now that Canada has pulled out, a returning Victoria serviceman said Tuesday.

Major Derek Bamford, 46, of 3665 Dartmouth, one of the 215 Canadians who returned from peacekeeping duties in Vietnam Tuesday, pulled no punches at an impromptu press conference at Pat Bay Airport.

"I'm sorry in a way that Canada withdrew," he said, "We got the operation going and I'm not sure they can keep it going without the expertise we provided."

Bamford appeared grim and filled with a silent anger as he faulted the Hungarians, Indonesians and Poles that worked with the Canadians on the International Commission of Control and Supervision.

Asked why he was defying orders to remain mum on politics, he said:

"We were told we were not to discuss polities, that we were to stick to the facts. I'm talking facts and opinion based on facts."

He added that he didn't care "if my masters chew my ears for this".

Bamford said, unlike the other members of the ICCS, the Canadians had gone to Vietnam determined to be fair and impartial.

"We had a sense of frustration and impatience," he said. "We tried very hard to be neutral. It became very difficult.

"It's very hard when they tell you black is white. This is proven. They came over with a game plan. We didn't. We set out to be referees."

Bamford said hundreds of investigations of incidents had been carried out and facts twisted when the other ICCS members wanted them to be.

"A bridge was blown up, without doubt by the Viet Cong," he cited as an example, "yet the others said it collapsed and fell down by itself.

"They were very chummy socially but when the gloves are off and there's work to be done there's a complete change."

Bamford said without the Canadians the ICCS would never have got off the ground.

"We forged ourselves out onto team sites and made do. The others followed. We had to do everything—transportation, communications, logistics."

Asked about the death of Capt. Charles Laviolette of Quebec City in April, Bamford said he and his companions were "very, very angry" over the incident.

"Sure, the helicopter was off course," he said, "It was a pilot error. But you shouldn't die because of it. Who hasn't made a pilot error?"

In spite of all the frustration, Bamford said the ICCS had not been a complete failure.

"It bought time and allowed passions to cool," he observed, adding that while there had been land attacks there had been no bombing during the past six months.

Oak Bay Gets Grant

Bids for clearing the site for Oak Bay's proposed sports complex near Oak Bay Junior Secondary School will be considered at Monday's council meeting, Mayor Frances Elford said today.

All the land has been assembled for the complex at a cost of $438,000.

Elford was elated at an announcement by Minister of Recreation and Conservation Jack Radford that Oak Bay will get the $333,000 it applied for under the province's $10 million community recreation facilities fund.

"We are right on schedule," she said. "Now that we have this government confirmation, we have been justified for going full ahead with our planning."

She said Vancouver architect Jim Carlsberg will have working drawings of the complex ready for tender in mid-September.

Clearance of the site would start very soon, Elford said.

"That is the date that 100-per-cent forgiveness federal money for on-site labor becomes available," she said, "and this is the date we are aiming for."

Oak Bay MLA Scott Wallace said he was "delighted" at Radford's announcement.

Wallace had spoken out earlier when the government said it would give no indication until today on which municipalities would receive grants from the fund.

When the government indicated that there were applications for more money than was in the fund, Wallace had expressed doubts that Oak Bay, one of the first to apply, would have its bid approved.

"If I implied earlier that I was doubting their word in this regard," Wallace said, "then I regret that implication."

Curtis Worried About Emphasis

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis said today he is concerned about an over-emphasis on recreation facilities when a $6 million capital projects referendum goes to retepayers in November.

Although capital works to cure longstanding municipal deficiencies in roads and drainage were the original basis of a long-term borrowing program, latterly attention has been diverted somewhat toward a proposed second ice surface.

The rink had had "more attention than it warrants," Curtis said.

Public works such as road and drainage development would still receive the largest share of funding.

Curtis said these are of "less spectacular nature but are still very important."

He said he had "fewer than five" letters on the subject, but each writer expressed concern that voters would lose sight of the importance of works projects in flood-prone Saanich.

The couoncil still considers the referendum essentially for public works undertakings, with a recreation element included.

"I think it will be seen when the thing is put together that it is in perspective," Curtis said.

Aldermen and senior administrative staff are still compiling the referendum in a series of private meetings expected to end this month.

Ald. John McDonald, chairman of a special referendum information committee, said he hoped a fact sheet or pamphlet describing costs and projects in detail would be ready for distribution to ratepayers in mid-September.

Man Nabbed In Slaying

TORONTO (CP) — John McBeth Finlayson, 37, wanted in connection with the strangulation of nine-year-old Kirk Deasley, was arrested Monday in Burlington, Ont., and returned here by Toronto Homocide detectives.

The boy's mutilated body was found Friday in a downtown hotel. He did not return home Thursday after telling his mother he was going to a supermarket to earn money by carrying parcels.

his style old style

Remember? He was all bronze, biceps and ten feet tall — and no bully kicked sand in your face while he was around. Yesterday's heroes had a style all their own — and a beer all their own: Old Style. And it's still going strong today, still slow-brewed and naturally aged for honest, old-time flavour. Help yourself!

Old Style SLOW-BREWED AND NATURALLY AGED.

Divorce For Burtons

Liz Taylor wouldn't comment on breakup of marriage

ROME (UPI) — A couple of good-looking, highly eligible millionaires came on the marriage market today.

As soon as certain formalities are completed, Elizabeth Taylor can seek a sixth husband and Richard Burton a third wife.

For the famous lovers who announced their intention of seeking a divorce Tuesday have often said they could never be content living alone again, since they have known the happiness of a devoted family life.

If anything ever happened, they used to say, they would want the surviving partner to get married again. And unless the unpredictable pair make up or divorce then remarry each other, they will certainly take other partners.

Burton and Miss Taylor are in Rome, where their romance began nearly a decade ago during the filming of "Cleopatra," but announcement of their divorce plans was made in New York by their attorney.

The announcement did not give a reason for the split — and did not mention Burton's drinking, which a spokesman said contributed to a brief separation by the pair earlier this month.

The bustup apparently occurred Monday night when Miss Taylor left the roman villa owned by actress Sophia Loren and her producer husband, Carlo Ponti, and checked into the grand hotel there. Burton, a spokesman said, remained at the villa.

"They are very amiable toward each other and . . . no third party exists in either case," said Aaron Frosch, their attorney.

Even dedicated Burton-Taylor watchers were surprised by the divorce announcement.

Typical of them was a close friend and business associate who said he was convinced the marriage broke up becaue of "excessive wear and tear."

"Every marriage has its frictions, but these are magnified when you live together, work together, play together and are in each other's pockets 24 hours a day," the friend said.

"There is absolutely no other man or woman involved. Nor is there any financial strain.

"If you put their blessings down on paper it would be hard to think of a couple less likely to seek a divorce.

Woman Kills Pet Wolves

NEW YORK — A 70-year-old woman who lived with two cats has been charged in the poisoning deaths of two wolves used to promote legislation to protect endangered species.

Police would not identify the eyewitness who gave them information that led to the arrest Tuesday night of Pauline Hallinger. They said Miss Hallinger had been charged with criminal mischief and burglary.

The wolves, Clem and Jethro, were found dead Sunday. Autopsies showed they had been fed chicken containing strychnine.

The two wolves had toured the U.S. and Canada for three years and been petted by three million children.

SALISBURY, England — Capt. Mark Phillips, Princess Anne's fiance, has been cleared of a reckless driving charge.

The court ruled that a collision he was involved in last April was caused by the absence of lane-marking lines on a newly-resurfaced highway.

GLASGOW — Two of Charlie Chaplin's young children may be preparing to follow their famous father on to the stage or into films after putting on a weekend show at a Scottish Highland resort.

Annie Chaplin, 13, wrote the script for a murder mystery called The Witch, and she and her brother Christoper, 11, starred in its production at a hotel in Nairn.

MOUNT HOLLY, N.J. — Jerry Garcia, lead guitarist of the Grateful Dead rock group, was placed on one-year conditional probation Monday on charges of possession of narcotics.

LONDON — Singer Janie Jones, accused of trying to promote pop songs through sex bribes, lost a bid to get out of prison on bail.

A judge at London's Old Bailey Court ruled she must stay locked up until her trial in September because police thought she might frighten witnesses if allowed to go free.

Police told the Old Bailey judge that before her arrest, Miss Jones had tried to scare two of the girls out of giving evidence. One girl collapsed in fright and had to be taken to a hospital.

WASHINGTON — Sen. John Stennis (Dem.-Miss.), wounded seriously in a Washington street holdup Jan. 30, has been formally discharged from Walter Reed Army Medical Centre but he will not resume his full duties in the U.S. Senate for several weeks.

Stennis, 72, had been able to leave the hospital for brief periods during his treatment. A spokesman for the senator said his progress toward full recovery "continues to be excellent."

Dief Takes Stand With Robins

OTTAWA (CP) — An irate John Diefenbaker Tuesday called on the government to step in and put an end to the "scandalous" shooting of robins in New Brunswick.

With federal permission, blueberry farmers in the province have been shooting robins which feast on their crops. One grower said he destroyed 7,000 birds last year.

Diefenbaker said in an interview Tuesday that this year's slaughter will begin in August when the robins begin migrating and "it must end before it begins.

"It's scandalous that we would ever think of the wholesale desfruction of these song birds. it's terrible."

He said the federal government should withdraw permits to kill migratory birds and work with provincial governments concerned to establish a program of compensation for farmers whose crops are damaged.

MOM SENDS SON BACK TO JAIL

REYNOSA, Mexico (AP) — A mother sent one of her sons back to jail Tuesday after he escaped with 15 other prisoners by drilling a hole through an adobe wall.

Gergoria Cuevas de Perez said her son Anselmo telephoned her shortly after the jailbreak Monday and said he was hiding on a bank of the Rio Grande, the border between the United States and Mexico.

"I called a cab and went over to see him and told him he had better go back to jail," Mrs. Perez told reporters. "I would rather see him in jail than being killed by police if he were captured again."

Police said Anselmo Perez, serving a three year term for robbery, then returned to jail on his own.

Way Smoothed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representative Mario Biaggi (Dem. N.Y.) said Tuesday he has introduced legislation that would make it easier for a serviceman to return to civilian society. The bill would grant the men and their families medical, post exchange and commissary privileges for a 60-day period immediately following their discharge from the armed forces.

'Spirited' Protest Over Tree Removal

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Mrs. Mary Youlden is not one to let sleeping spirits rest — not if they can help her do battle with council.

Having seen a story mentioning the lack of haunted buildings in Saanich, Mrs. Youlden has offered to call up the ghosts of fallen warriors and sic them on municipal hall in retribution for past indignities to Memorial Avenue.

"I was one of the protesters," she said, recalling steps begun by the municipality some 15 years ago to fell the columns of stately trees along Shelbourne Street north of Cedar Hill Cross Road.

"They (the council) absolutely ruined Shelbourne," she added.

Technically, she objected to council's decision not to call the thoroughfare Memorial Avenue.

But Mrs. Youlden, and many others, thought it bordered on sacrilege to chop down the leafy limbs planted in memory of soldiers who never came back from the wars.

What is equally disturbing to her was the removal of a stone cairn in Memorial Gore, a triangular plot of grass at Shelbourne and Cedar Hill Cross Road where Remembrance Day services were held.

The stone now juts out of the lawn fronting the municipal hall some two miles away.

And though the issue is now as dead as the men the trees memorialize, it still rankles Mrs. Youlden beneath the humor she displays.

"I have called upon the ghosts to rise up and protest at the municipal hall," she said.

"If they hear winds whizzing past the hall, they'll know what it is, and they'd better watch out," she warned aldermen.

Asked if she has powers of a medium or witch, Mrs. Youlden replied:

PLANS FOUND

Condominium Guidelines Laid Down

Former Oak Bay reeve Allan Cox was vindicated Tuesday.

He suffered obvious embarrassment when, at a council meeting July 23, he admitted that no plans were available for Hampshire House, due to be converted from apartments to condominiums.

The embarrassment stemmed from the fact that Cox, representing Hampshire House owner Paul Hansen of Utah, was reeve when the property was built.

Tuesday, building inspector Bill Skead, back from holidays, reported that plans and full specifications were filed in his department.

Nobody could find them in his absence.

Developers who want to convert apartments into condominiums or build new condominiums in Oak Bay will have to disclose facts that show their margin of profit.

This requirement is one of the regulations laid down Tuesday when council approved a set of guidelines governing condominium conversion and construction.

The prospectus which council will require every developer to produce must contain "a financial statement of acquisition and-or construction."

Approval was given Tuesday to the conversion of Hampshire House, 1159 Beach, to condominiums, providing that guidelines were met where applicable and conditions laid down by the building inspector were met to bring the building up to standard.

Ald. Brian Smith said the regulation requiring developers to disclose what they paid for property was no different than one set out in the Real Estate Act on acquisitions of five lots.

"Why should suites be any different than five lots?" he asked. "I realize Mr. Hansen (Judge Paul Hansen of Utah who has bought Hampshire House) declined to give his costs at our last meeting. I think he should."

Emphasizing that it was not council's intention to sit in judgement on developers' profit-making, Smith said this information should be made available to prospective unit buyers so they can make their own judgement.

Smith said he had investigated the record of Hampshire House and found that little had been done to the property since it was last sold five years ago, yet its value had risen by $1 million.

Ald. Douglas McLelland was the only alderman to vote against adoption of the condominium guidelines.

He felt that a study should be made on parking needs for people living in condominiums. He was told that condominiums would have to conform with zoning for apartments in the area.

He reiterated there was no data available on whether condominiums generated more or less traffic than apartments.

Only buildings made of noncombustible materials will be permitted to convert from apartment to condominium use. An exception will be two-storey buildings, excluding basements, that were built not more than five years before an application is received.

After today, the council may require the names and addresses of tenants who have left a building prior to an application for it to be converted. They can also call a public hearing on the proposed conversion.

In the case of Hampshire House, which has 33 suites, 13 tenants had left after Hansen took over the property.

Several tenants who have been badgering council to give its permission to convert, originally asked council's help to stop the conversion.

Some have admitted they changed their minds when there was a threat that Hansen would make Hampshire House co-operative, rather than a condiminium.

The guidelines approved Tuesday also provide for:

—Applications to be made in writing by the registered owner, accompanied by a fee based on five cents per square foot of floor area;

—Full plans and specifications of the building to be provided.

—Particulars of services such as water and electricity to be spelled out in the prospectus, as well as details of how they will be metered and paid;

—Details of all encumbrances, such as mortgages, to be included in the prospectus;

—A prospectus stating whether a caretaker's suite or quarters is to be part of the common property;

—Tenants to be given written notice of conversions not less than four months in advance, plus one month for each year of occupancy.

From now on, an application to convert won't be approved if the occupancy of the building has been reduced by the owner to a level substantially below the normal occupancy.

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.

He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me: thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

Wednesday Movies and Specials

Movies

The Night Stalker (xxx), on 8 at 8. Terror in Las Vegas is the subject of this new film made especially for television. Darren McGavin, Carol Lynel, Simon Oakland and Ralph Meeker star.

Ellery Queen: Don't Look Behind You (xx), on 13 at 8. Based on a popular 1949 novel by Frederick Danny and Manfred Lee, this dramatic spoof has Peter Lawford playing an amateur detective; with fine support from Harry Morgan and E. G. Marshall.

The Devil and Miss Sarah (xxx), on 4 at 8:30. Better than average western made for television in 1971 with Gene Barry as an outlaw with psychic powers. Also starring James Drury and Janice Rule.

McGAVIN
. . . in Night Stalker

Coast to Coast Tradition, on 2 at 10:30. An introduction to the Canada Summer Games opening in New Westminster.

Streets of Laredo (xx), on 11 at 11. William Holden, William Bendix, Macdonald Carey and Mona Freeman star in this "classic" western about the Texas rangers made in 1949.

The Patsy (xx), on 7 and 12 at 11:30. A raft of top name stars in a comedy around Jerry Lewis as a bellboy who gets into show business.

A Kiss Before Dying (xx), on 2 and 8 at midnight. A 1956 mystery melodrama with Robert Wagner, Jeffrey Hunter and Joanne Woodward about a man who murders when his plan to marry into wealth fails.

Guest in the House (x), on 13 at midnight. Anne Baxter, Ralph Bellamy and Ruther Warrick play in a 1944 drama about a mentally ill girl in a happy family life.

Specials

What's the Big Idea?, on 9 at 8. First of a series of discussions and interviews. This week's moderator is Doris Kearns, who leads the discussion on why women have not really been as successful as they would like.

Musical Encounter, on 9 at 9. Anna and Dana Oshiro play Haydn in a debut performance featuring young musicians from Hawaii with established artists.

Man Buildings, Man Destroys, on 9 at 9:30. Peru's ecological mistakes are the subject of this continuing series on the environment and man.

CBC Radio Highlights

August 1

7:03 (FM) Themes and Variations—A program about the making and performing of music, flexible enough to devote a whole show to one musical event, or to cover several events in the same amount of time. Although it emphasizes live music, it also includes interviews, documentaries, discussions, and quizzes. Commentator is musicologist Dr. Timothy McGee. Tonight: Chansons Madecasses (Ravel) (Mary Morrison, soprano; Robert Aitken, flute; Marion Ross, piano; Ian Hampton, cello).

8:03 (AM) Concern—"Koestler". An item by freelancer Norman Moss of London. A discussion of The Roots of Coincidence, correlating ESP with quantum physics. Bruce Marsh interviews medium Ena Twigg.

9:00 (FM) Music of Today—Host and commentator: Norma Beecroft. First of a series of programs of music from the 1972 Festival of the International Society for Contemporary Music: Spiegel I, II, III, V and VII (Cerha) (Austrian Radio Symphony Orchestra conducted by Friedrich Cerha).

10:30 (AM) That's the Way It Goes—A situation comedy series in a small town with regulars Jane Mallett, Barbara Hamilton, David Hughes and Judy Sinclair.

10:03 (FM) Ideas—The Nature of Human Intelligence: Can intelligence be increased? Among those heard are science fiction writer Isaac Asimov, and Edward de Bono, author of Lateral Thinking.

11:03 (AM) The Bush and the Salon—"The Island of Quadra and Vancouver", by Tom Arnett and Grayce Lincoln. Nootka Sound, a waterway between Vancouver Island and Nootka Island is a very small area on the map of Canada, yet twice this sound and the land closest to its shores became the focal point of a dispute that almost threw all of Europe into war. Inhabited by a small Indian band, the area determined whether the west coast of North America would become Spanish or British. This story tells of the meeting in 1792 between Captain George Vancouver and Don Bodegary Quadra, the Spanish general, on the occasion of the British takeover of the area from the Spanish. Narrator is Ruth Springford with Chris Wiggins as Captain Vancouver and Frank Perry as Don Bodegary Quadra.

Camper Tax Urged

Americans should be taxed about $5 at the border for bringing campers or trailers into British Columbia, provincial Conservative leader Deril Warren said today.

A similar charge should be levied against Canadians from other provinces bringing campers into B.C., he said.

The money would be earmarked specifically for development and maintenance of provincial campsites and parks.

He was commenting on a statement this week by Highways Minister Graham Lea that British Columbians should be given priority in provincial campgrounds.

Lea denied that he publicly said American campers should not be allowed to cross the border.

Warren said it is clear that banning American campers or giving them a lower priority would not be a desirable solution to the problem of crowding in provincial campsites.

What was needed was more campsites.

These additional sites should be financed by visitors and not by British Columbians, who are already paying for campsites through taxation.

Warren said his border tax proposal was based upon a study by the Liard Regional District in northern British Columbia.

He said the Liard study showed that tourists travelling in campers spend only $3 per day and that the cost of servicing these tourists through highways and campgrounds was much higher.

Warren said, based upon that report, he is urging a study to determine the revenues that could be produced by a border tax and whether such a tax would be constitutional and acceptable.

"The study might show that the fee should be $3 or $5," he said.

The fee should prove acceptable to American visitors, he said, because they are used to paying entrance fees when they drive through some of their national parks.

The money goes to upkeep of the parks. In the same way, entrance fees to British Columbia would go to development of parks and campsites.

In Victoria, Brian Small, manager of Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce, said he would favor a study on the question of a border fee but tended to oppose the plan.

Small said people who complain about American tourists taking over campsites would be the first to complain if they didn't come and the prosperity of B.C. declined.

He said tourism is a $500 million a year industry and it should be encouraged, not restricted.

"If Canadians were given priorities at campsites, the word would soon go out across the United States and they wouldn't come to B.C."

Queen's Back for New Visit

Babies and Boy Scouts were among the crowd of people of all ages and sizes who gathered at the Ottawa airport Tuesday to greet Queen Elizabeth. In Canada on a five-day visit with Prince Philip, most of her time will be taken up with ceremonies in connection with the Commonwealth Conference. Today, however, she opened the Lester B. Pearson building—new headquarters of Canada's external affairs department — with a tribute to the late former prime minister as a great statesman.

Berlin Wall Stands As Ulbricht Tribute

Times News Services

BERLIN — Walter Ulbricht, 80, the spade-bearded East German Communist leader whose monument is the Berlin wall, died today of heart failure.

Ulbricht had been reported in ill health—including having a stroke July 19 — since he was replaced as party first secretary by Erich Honecker in May, 1971. He retained his post as chairman of the state council, making him titulary chief of state, until his death and remained a member of the party's central committee and politburo.

His grinding toughness undoubtedly made him the most hated man in postwar Germany. But it also allowed him to hold power longer than any of the original Soviet bloc titans of the immediate postwar era, including Josef Stalin himself.

His staying power brought with it stature and influence in the Communist world. Ulbricht was regarded as one of the prime movers behind the Soviet invasion of Cechoslovakia in August, 1968.

The two years since Ulbricht's retirement as Communist party first secretary have seen a long, touchy trail followed to agreements on organizing travel across the frontier, the status of Berlin and finally a treaty on governmental relations.

But the guarded border has, if anything, been strengthened against defectors by East Germany. Its concrete-pylons now bear robot machineguns that fire knee-high when a false step trips a wire — a mechanical weapon Ulbricht never had — and human guards still shoot to kill at defectors and win decorations for it.

Ulbricht's passing will force no change in East German foreign or domestic policy, the lines of which have long been taken out of his hands, western diplomats said. These sources said they expected neither a softer stand toward the west nor less militancy in East Germany's view that it is a separate and sovereign state.

PRICE FROZEN ON DEATH SHROUDS

Since the 1971 war, Bangladesh has suffered a shortage of cloth in addition to other commodities. Opposition politicians had charged that persons starving to death were denied a decent burial because of a shortage of cloth for shrouds and the high prices of the cloth available.

Authorities said today persons buying shrouds would have to produce a death certificate from a doctor, along with the name, address and other particulars about the deceased. They said the detail would determine the amount of cloth to be sold at a fixed rate.

Music: On Rye

Rye has deep roots in Saanich outdoor recreation projects — grass, that is, not whisky.

A strong, deep-rooted strain of perennial rye grass planted only three weeks ago will enable music lovers to lounge comfortably on a sloping sidehill at Cedar Hill Community Centre for an outdoor concert of Victoria symphony orchestra Sunday afternoon.

Saanich parks administrator Bert Richman said his department plants quick-rooting rye grass on playing fields if there is haste to get them into use and if heavy wear is anticipated.

This type of rye dies out and allows the slower, more hardy grasses planted with it to take over, Richman said.

Including wild grass on the upper part of the slope which parksmen have mowed, about two acres of green have been provided. Up to 5,000 persons could be comfortably seated in the space, Richman estimated.

Mayor Hugh Curtis said he hoped residents and visitors alike would support the concert in this "ideal setting" overlooking the south end of Cedar Hill golf course. It was "an extremely worthwhile experiment" to invite the symphony to perform, with the prospect of further concerts in future seasons.

New City Solicitor Facing First Poser

A priority task facing Victoria's new city solicitor will be to find a way of blocking further development on the site of the View-Quadra highrise, Mayor Peter Pollen said today.

Jakob de Villiers starts work Sept. 1 as city solicitor and Pollen said one of the legal department's first assignments will be to "initiate some type of action to eliminate this problem."

Vancouver developer George Mulek has not applied for a building permit to tackle the 19-storey second phase of the complex, which was approved by a previous city council.

Pollen said if the permit application does come in he considers it should not be granted due to the long delay involved, which has left the present structure a blight on the city scene.

He also said he is considering asking the provincial government to pass enabling legislation "so that we can cope with this situation."

Meanwhile, he said, the city has informed Mulek that it proposed to repair street and sidewalk damage caused by the construction, and to "send him the bill."

Concurrent Term For 1970 Robbery

Jon Donald McDermott, who said he staged seven bank holdups so he could write a book leading to prison reform, was sentenced today to eight years on a charge of armed robbery.

Victoria provincial court Judge William Ostler ordered the sentence be served concurrently with a 12-year sentence, also ordered by Ostler, April 16, 1970.

McDermott, 30, pleaded guilty to the charge July 11. At that time Ostler said he was concerned that if a 12-year oncurrent sentence was imposed now, it might hurt McDermott's chances for parole.

Ostler said today additional rehabilitation for McDermott was unnecessary and "if 12 years were imposed now that would mean, in effect an additional three years."

The 12-year sentence ordered in 1970 was for six counts of armed robbery but a seventh charge, for which McDermott was sentenced today, was worded incorrectly.

When McDermott pleaded guilty to the seventh charge he told the court he had been out from William Head prison on work passes for 180 days and that he had been teaching school.

McDermott, eligible for parole in April, 1974, wants to be allowed to go to university in January, 1974.

Homes From Pope

ROME (AP) — Hundreds of Romans left shanties they have occupied for years Tuesday and moved into new homes provided by Pope Paul VI. The Pope had the 99 apartments built as an encouragement to city authorities to resettle Rome's tens of thousands of shanty dwellers. The pontiff sold a Vatican building in downtown Rome and invested the profit of $1.7 million in the project.

Students' Views Sought by Board

Some task force members will be touring Nanaimo, Port Alberni and Campbell River while others stay here.

They plan to interview participants in the University of B.C. leadership conference, participants in journalism conferences, and people involved in student organizations, as well as other students.

The Victoria stay is the start of a provincial tour for the seven-man task force, which was appointed by Education Commissioner John Bremer to make feasibility studies and get student views on education.

Off-Campus Housing Off Sharply

The list, which normally has about 700 places on it, is down to 200, she said.

Mrs. Baker is looking for householders willing to offer room and board, or a self-contained unit or basement suite to a student in September.

Deckhand Pay Hiked

OTTAWA (CP) — A 28-month collective agreement covering crews on federal government ships has been signed between Treasury Board and the Public Service Alliance of Canada, the government announced Tuesday.

The settlement, covering 2,650 workers, will raise pay for an east coast deckhand to $616 a month from $480 and salaries to west coast deckhands to $716 monthly from $558. The contract extends from Sept. 25, 1972, to Jan. 26, 1975.

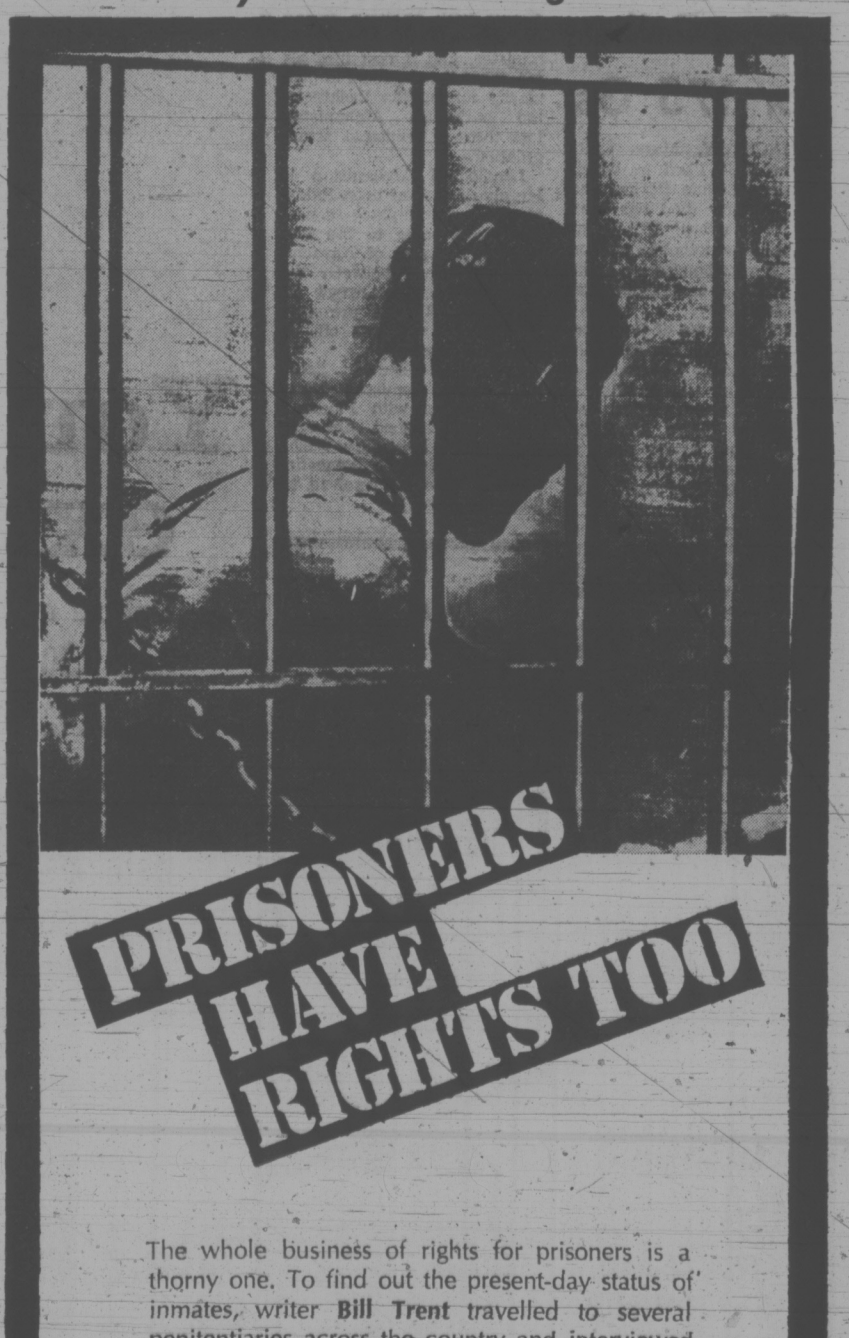
This Saturday In Weekend Magazine



The whole business of rights for prisoners is a thorny one. To find out the present-day status of inmates, writer Bill Trent travelled to several penitentiaries across the country and interviewed Canada's commissioner of penitentiaries. His revealing report, complete with pictures, appears this Saturday in Weekend Magazine.

Also in Weekend: Robert Stall talks to — and dusts with — the cleaning ladies in the House of Commons in Ottawa. Dr. Conrad Swan, a Canadian genealogist and historian, tells Michael Cope what it's like to be a member of Britain's College of Arms, in charge of pomp and pageantry. Audrey Gostlin warns that because prices are rising rapidly now is the time to buy that winter coat. Douglas How recalls part of his boyhood in the Maritimes. Margo Oliver presents appealing recipes featuring melons, and there are unique animal illustrations by Quebec artist Jeannot Ruel. It's all there for your reading pleasure — in Weekend Magazine this Saturday.

Pashtunistan 'Gun' Points Both Ways

Washington Post

KABUL — "Pashtunistan," said the polished, French-speaking Afghan, is a double-barrelled gun, with the barrels pointing in opposite directions. Whoever pulls the trigger will blow his own head off."

The Afghan was thinking of the implications for Afghanistan itself. But the Pashtunistan issue, a longstanding territorial dispute between Afghanistan and neighboring Pakistan, has broader implications for the entire south and central Asian region.

If Afghanistan's new president, Mohamed Daud, presses the Pashtunistan claim, as he has indicated he would, Pakistan would face the possibility of dissolution. The Pakistanis, having lost half of their country in the 1971 Bangladesh war, are understandably concerned.

If the Pashtu-speaking tribesmen of Pakistan's northwest frontier province, under Daud's urgings, were to step up their fight for autonomy, Pakistan would almost certainly respond with its armed forces.

The tribesmen, often estimated to number up to seven million, do not recognize the Afghan-Pakistan border and would establish their own Pashtunistan. Since most live in Pakistan, that country would be the big loser.

Afghanistan's rag-tag army is no match for the Pakistanis, so the Afghans would have to turn to their two major allies, India and the Soviet Union.

Although the Russians would be unlikely to become actively involved, Indian might. Ever since Pakistan was partitioned out of British Indian 26 years ago, Pakistani leaders have feared an Indian-Afghan pincer movement. Should such a squeeze begin, Pakistani President Zulfiqar Ali Bhutto would turn to his friend the Shah of Iran.

The Shah, who is buying billions of dollars worth of sophisticated American military hardware, has already promised Bhutto that he would come to his aid if Pakistan were attacked.

The Shah's interest is not simply idealistic. Besides wanting to establish Iran as the major power in the Persian Gulf, he shares a concern over another dissident tribal people who occupy parts of Iran, Afghanistan and Pakistan — the Baluchis.

Once Iran was drawn into a regional flareup, the United States and Soviet Union — and possibly even Pakistan's major diplomatic backer, China — could become involved.

Diplomatic observers in Kabul concur that the Pahtunistan dispute has the potential to erupt with an explosion disproportionate to its importance.

Daud pressed the territorial dispute with Pakistan during his 10-year stint as prime minister, and it cost him his job. What Daud gained in popularity among the Pashtunistan partisans, Afghanistan lost through economic strangulation.

Landlocked Afghanistan is largely dependent upon Pakistan as a marketplace as well as transit route to the sea, through the port of Karachi. When relations between the two countries collapsed in 1961 under Daud's pressure, Afghanistan was cut off. It faced bankruptcy.

Ex-king Mohamed Zahir Shah soon dismissed Daud and relations with Pakistan were re-established. Although the king could not allow Pashtunistan to die as a domestic political issue, he resolved to settle it peacefully.

Gangsters' Car Sells For 175 Gs

PRINCETON, Mass. (AP) — The 1934 Ford in which gangsters Bonnie Parker and Clyde Barrow died has been sold for a record $175,000 at an antique automobile auction here. It was bought by Peter Simon, 22, a casino operator from Jean, Nev.

The bidding started at $75,000 and lasted about 20 minutes. One bidder used a long-distance telelphone call to place his offer from Nebraska.

The car has 160 bullet holes, blood-stained seats and shattered windows and windshield. It has not been restored since authorities ambushed Bonnie and Clyde in the car in Arcadia, La., 39 years ago.

In the more than 20 years Toddy owned the car it brought in more than $2 million in publicity and exhibition revenues.

Bomb Found

JERUSALEM (AP) — A letter bomb mailed from the Israeli-occupied West Bank of Jordan was intercepted Monday by Israeli postal workers and turned over to police for disarming. The explosive was mailed from the town of Nablus and was addressed in Arabic.

NEW SCREEN KEEPS MOVIES FOR PATRONS ONLY

By BOB THOMAS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A new screen will be tested this summer to help drive-in movie theatres avoid legislation preventing X-rated films from being seen from streets outside the theatres.

Cities in several states, including Montana, Massachusettes and South Carolina, have approved or are considering laws which would curtail drive-in offerings, and theatre executives fear the practice will spread.

"What could we do, build a 30-fooot fence around our drive-in?" asked one executive. "That would not only cost a fortune; the ecologists would attack us for creating eyesores."

The problem was viewed as a major one in the industry since drive-ins contribute 25 per cent of movie income in the United States.

The drive-in committee of the National Association of Theatre Owners (NATO) took the matter to the research centre of the Association of Motion Picture and Television Producers.

The new screen, which took a year to develop, will be tested this summer at the Century Drive-in Theatre near the Los Angeles International Airport.

Robert Selig, chairman of NATO's drive-in committee, explained:

"Dr. Wilton Holm, director of the research centre, and chief scientist Petro Vlahos came up with the concept for a containment screen made of nickel, coated with chromium. The screen is made up of two-foot square moduls which are cast from dies by an electroforming process.

"The casting creates a series of lenticulations or bumps which control and turn the image inward. From outside the theatre, the screen will look black."

The new screen was developed with $100,000 loaned by drive-in owners and is estimated to cost between $15,000 and $20,800, plus installation.

"That's expensive," Selig admitted. "But when you put that expense against the endless legal costs of fighting legislation, it's not bad."

PRISON REPAIRS CAN'T KEEP PACE

McALESTER, Okla. (UPI) — The head of the state corrections department said Tuesday inmates are wrecking the Oklahoma State Prison faster than it can be repaired and that he had received authorization to remove all 1,700 convicts from the state's largest penitentiary.

Corrections director Leo McCracken said the prisoners would be removed as soon as other institutions could be found to house them.

The Oklahoma Board of Corrections authorized the temporary evacuation of the prison and took other steps to reduce the number of prisoners assigned to the facility in moves designed to prevent recurrence of the weekend insurrection in which three inmates were killed.

McCracken said the evacuation was necessary to repair smashed locks in the prison cell blocks destroyed during the 43-hour, 10-minute rebellion. The revolt caused $20 million damage to the facility.

"They are doing more damage in the nightime than we can repair in the daytime," McCrackin said.

'Wrath of God' Murder Mistake

OSLO (UPI) — An extremist Israeli group called "The Wrath of God" liquidated a 30-year-old Arab in Norway last month in the mistaken belief he was one of the leaders of the Black September Movement, the Olso newspaper Aftenposten reported today.

The mistake assassination was believed to be part of a secret and deadly war being waged throughout the world by Israeli and Arab undercover agents, a war that is known to have taken more than a dozen lives in six different countries. The dozen are the known dead; the fate of some agents is a matter of speculation even to their own masters.

Court Order Modified

HOUSTON (AP) — A United States federal judge has modified a July 27 order temporarily restraining an attempt by the Canada Development Corp. (CDC) to acquire 10 million shares of Texasgulf Inc. at $29 a share.

U.S. District Court Judge Woodrow Seals signed a modified order Monday which permits depositories for the CDC to continue to receive and hold any shares or tenders proffered to them, provided the shares or tenders be held pending further instructions from the court.

Churchill Made Deal on Poland

LONDON (AP) — Wartime papers of Sir Winston Churchill made public today show that he agreed in 1944 to Soviet domination of Poland in exchange for Joseph Stalin's support of British interests in the Far East and the Mediterranean.

The documents show that Churchill feared that the Nationalist Chinese, with United States backing, might seize Hong Kong.

The revelations appear in previously-secret reports on the visit by Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden to Moscow in October, 1944, after failing to get agreement from President Franklin Roosevelt on the future of Britain's East Asian empire.

Churchill apparently was prepared to concede Soviet hegemony over Poland, the ally that took Britain into the war, if Stalin would back Britain's efforts to regain Hong Kong and remain the leading power in the Mediterranean. Stalin agreed.

The papers were released 18 months after other wartime documents kept on the secret list for 30 years. Officials said the delay was due to the disorder in which the papers were found. But one section of the file dealing with "political conversations" between Churchill and Stalin was missing, and officials said they could not explain the disappearance.

The report of the Moscow talks also put a new light on one item in Churchill's war memoirs. The memoirs suggest that he tried to get the Polish government-in-exile in London to fly to Moscow for talks on the future of Poland. The new papers show that Churchill told Stalin the anti-Communist Poles could be forced into accepting a fait accompli if they were brought to Moscow once Russia and Britain had made a deal.

The papers show Stalin and Churchill also agreed to spheres of influence in the Balkans. The Soviets were to get the dominant position in Romania, Hungary and Bulgaria while Britain was to be dominant in Greece.

Influence in Yugoslavia was to be shared equally.

$1 Subsidy Not Expected To Increase Dairy Prices

OTTAWA (CP) — Dairy farmers, who receive annual subsidies of about $125 million, have been granted an additional $1 subsidy for each hundred pounds of manufacturing milk they sell under measures announced Tuesday by Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan.

The increase goes into effect today, and will come about by a temporary increase of 56 cents for each 100 pounds of manufacturing milk sold, together with a three-cent-a-pound increase in the guaranteed price for skim milk powder and a 20-cent-per-hundredweight reduction in a levy collected from dairy farmers to offset costs of selling powdered milk on export markets.

Whelan said in a news release that the action "will not increase the cost of milk products to the consumer." It was taken because of a wet spring that hurt dairy farmers and the unusually high cost of feed grain and protein used to keep dairy cows content.

SLIDE KILLS 4

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Four children, all from the same family, were killed early today when a landslide pushed four houses into the harbor at Harbour Breton on Newfoundland's south coast.

Dr. M. C. Sharma, director of The Cottage Hospital in the fishing community, said three other persons were in the hospital, not for treatment of injuries but because "they have nowhere else to go."

Dr. Sharma said in a telephone interview from Harbor Breton the four children, all under the age of 10, were the only persons killed when a rainsoaked cliff slid into the houses around 3 a.m.

He said all other persons had been accounted for.

Three of the houses were occupied and one was under construction beside the harbor.

Stephen MacDonald, one of several residents awakened by a loud roar, was among the first at the scene and said he helped recover the children's bodies.

2-Cent Gas Hike Looms

Imperial Oil is expected to increase gasoline and fuel oil prices two cents per gallon in B.C. this month following similar hikes announced Tuesday for eastern Canada.

Imperial also announced it will immediately begin to pay 1.14 cents per gallon more for the western Canadian crude oil it uses to produce galoline.

Retail price increases in western Canada are expected to come into effect when the company judges that it has begun to refine the higher-priced crude oil.

In Vancouver a company spokesman said the increased cost of crude oil would have to be recovered but the company could not say when the price would go up.

Other sources indicated it would be within the month.

Imperial operates a retail outlet at Hillside and Shelbourne. At present the gasoline prices are 52.9 cents regular, 57.9 cents premium.

These prices are would go to 54.9 and 59.9.

The company charges 26.3 cents for fuel oil in Victoria. This is would level out at 28 cents even.

The company warned that this would not be the end of price increases, because of the rapidly rising world price for crude oil.

Imperial, largest oil company in Canada, imports Venezuelan oil for its refineries in Quebec. The price of western Canadian crude is altered to match the Venezuelan price to keep wholesale gasoline prices about equal in the company.

The company said new royalty rates which come into effect today in Venezuela would produce even more increases in the price of crude oil in Canada.

The company would not speculate on the effects over the long term, but the development suggested retail price increases in September could be expected to follow the two-cent hike expected this month.

The last national retail price increase was in May, when it went up one cent across the board.

No Bomb Halt

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall refused today to order an immediate halt to U.S. bombing in Cambodia, although he hinted he might do so if the decision were his alone.

With the court in summer recess, Marshall said he felt he had to take a broader view to reflect the over-all position of the entire court which in the past has sidestepped a direct ruling on the legality of the Indochina War.

Marshall acted on an appeal by Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, (D-N.Y.), and four air force officers who won an order in a federal district court in New York last week for an immediate bombing halt, but then saw an appeals court suspend the order.

The Holtzman group still did not give up after Marshall's ruling, saying they would talke their case to another justice, William O. Douglas, who they presumably felt would look more favorably on their effort.

They were asking Marshall to set aside the appeals court stay of the district court judge's order for an immediate bombing halt — rather than on Aug. 15 as scheduled.

Marshall said that if the decision were his alone, he might well conclude that U.S. military operations in Indochina were unconstitutional, as the Holtzman group contends.

But the justice made clear that was the extent of what he was ruling on — whether the appeals court decision would be vacated. He concluded, "I would exceed my legal authority were I, acting alone, to grant this application."

Rail Union Hits Western Rebels

Times News Services

A vice-president of the striking rail union is on his way West today in a bid to force rebel workers taking part in a wildcat strike against Canadian National Railways back to work.

Union spokesmen in Montreal Tuesday night angrily decried the walkout by about 5,000 workers after their "legal" strike ended saying it is wrecking plans for selective strikes against the two national railways in various parts of the country.

"There is no indication we are losing control of the situation. In fact, there is some indication the strikers in Vancouver and Edmonton may be reconsidering their position," one union man said.

However, continuing effects of the strike were felt in widespread areas not directly hit by an authorized Quebec walkout, Tuesday and today.

On Thursday the strikes will move into Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

In Prince Edward Island, provincial officials attempted to resolve a dispute that threatened to cut ferry service to the province, a service that unions agreed earlier would be maintained.

Switchmen employed by Canadian National in Winnipeg decided to begin a 48-hour study session today to protest layoffs resulting from the rotating strikes.

The railway said between one-third and one-half of the Winnipeg local's 300 members have been laid off since the strikes began.

About 900 persons are out of work in Canada because of strikes elsewhere.

The railway companies say the layoffs are necessary because of reduced work loads, brought on by the regional strikes.

The unions have said the layoffs are unjustified, and that the railways are "antagonizing" the workers in an attempt to precipitate a national strike, which the unions fear could bring on a federal back-to-work order.

This method has been used twice in the last 25 years to end national rail strikes.

In Vancouver, a union official at strike headquarters said the attitude among the workers was that if they were not "going back together, we'll stay out together."

More than 1,000 workers at Vancouver and an undetermined number at other B.C. points remain off the job and other workers refused to cross picket lines.

Union spokesmen in Vancouver said 80 per cent of CP Rail workers returned to work Tuesday and some were to be laid off until freight volume built up again.

$150,000 A DAY FINE

NEW YORK (UPI) — International Business Machines Corp., today was fined $150,000-a-day for contempt of court until it turns over to the federal court documents demanded by the Justice Department in order to press an anti-trust action.

Judge David Edelstein found IBM guilty of contempt and ordered the fine in a pre-trial proceeding.

Justice Department lawyers had asked for a fine of 5 per cent of IBM's daily earnings, an estimated $177,000-a-day. The company's lawyers had suggested a token fine of $100 a day.

Edelstein's order stated flatly that the court would not issue any stay of the order and attorneys in the case said a civil contempt order against a corporation in a pre-trial action cannot be appealed.

Beef Pinch In U.S.

Times News Services

Major wholesale beef suppliers in New York city followed a national trend and closed for the day today because of a shortage of beef.

Elsewhere thousands of meat packers were out of work as the shortage spread across the U.S.

Panic buyers hoarded meat in home freezers, meat distributors reported they were sold out by Tuesday, butchers turned away customers — and even the White House was turned down by its beef supplier.

The U.S. consumer was faced with prospects of eliminating from family menus hamburger, steak, meatloaf, meatballs and roast beef — and eating instead cheese, pork, fish, poultry and lamb chops.

One agricultural expert said the big cities will "suffer like hell."

New York appeared to be already suffering. The major wholesale suppliers of beef to the city' supermarkets

Money Reform Prospects Good

By HOBART ROWEN
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A new international monetary system to replace the one created at Bretton Woods 29 years ago emerged as a real prospect Tuesday at a friendly and cooperative session of the free world's finance ministers at the International Monetary Fund headquarters here.

Several responsible sources indicated that basic details could be drafted and approved by the spring of 1974.

Moreover, the new system might be put in place by a totally new treaty or agreement which would leave the door for membership open to Soviet Russia, the Peoples Republic of China, and other socialist countries.

Many intricate problems of substance and negotiation still lie ahead, including the role of gold, and how to define (and perhaps re-name) the Special Drawing Rights which will become the standard of the new system, replacing the dollar.

But a new mood of compromise was clearly emerging. French Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing said that "the recent monetary crisis appears to have convinced everybody of the need for more co-operative action. There is no longer the inclination to let things get settled by themselves."

Rally Violence Just 'Great'

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — H. R. Haldeman said today he accepts responsibility for a memorandum last February that said "we should tie all 1972 demonstrations to McGovern and thus to the Democrats as part of the peace movement."

Haldeman, the former White House chief of staff, conceded that he wrote "great" and "good" on a 1971 memorandum informing him that violent demonstrators were expected at a Charlotte, N.C., appearance of President Nixon and Rev. Billy Graham.

The two memos were disclosed at the Senate Watergate hearings by Senator Lowell Weicker (Rep.—Con.) who said:

"We need to get our people to put out the story on foreign or Communist money that was used in support of demonstrations against the president in 1972," it began.

"We should tie all 1972 demonstrations to McGovern and thus to the Democrats as part of the peace movement.

"The investigation should be brought to include the peace movement which leads directly to McGovern and Teddy Kennedy. This is a good counter-offensive to be developed."

The references were to Senator George McGovern (Dem.—N.D.), the 1972 Democratic nominee for president, and Sen. Edward Kennedy (Dem.—Mass.).

This was the second time in two days Weicker and Haldeman had clashed.

Tuesday, the hundreds of people crammed into the hearing room fell silent all at once as the senator and the witness regarded one another in something less than mutual admiration.

Across that breath-holding hush, the glare exchanged bespoke what more than 5,000 pages of transcribed testimony has not quite captured — the deep divisions carved by the scandal and the clash of philosophies it has come to represent.

"Who set the example for what happened?" Weicker

VITAMIN A, D ON DRUG LIST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Food and Drug Administration ordered today that high doses of vitamins A and D be placed on a prescription-only basis. It also laid down plans for other general restrictions on sale of vitamins.

The order on vitamins A and D takes effect in 60 days. The FDA issued a final order on the matter, the most controversial of its proposals. The other restrictions will take effect at the end of 1974.

The FDA said there was evidence that vitamin A in heavy doses can cause pressure inside the skull that may mimic the symptoms of a brain tumor, and may also cause retarded growth in children. Vitamin D in high doses has also been known to retard mental and physical growth in children, the agency added.

The other major rule says that any vitamin, food supplement or food containing more than 150 per cent of the recommended daily allowance of any vitamin shall be classified as a drug.

Once classified as drugs such products may continue to be sold over the counter the way cough medicines and aspirins are now. But they will be subject to review by the FDA as drugs and some may later be put on a prescription basis or banned entirely.

'The Little Chief Will Fight'

By LINDA HUGHES

Frank Calder said today he was fired from the provincial cabinet for "something political" rather than for personal reasons as outlined earlier by Premier Barrett.

In an emotional statement to the press this morning, the former minister-without-portfolio who looked after Indian affairs, said an incident last April in which he and his girlfriend were picked up by Victoria police is not justification for firing.

"I can't figure it out. There must be something deeper than that. I would size it up as something political — it is not personal," he said.

The incident has been blown out of proportion by the premier, he said, adding that "the Little Chief will fight," if the issue continues to be blown up.

Calder's statements followed a special press conference called by the premier, in which Barrett described the reasons and sequence of events which led to Calder's firing Tuesday.

He revealed tre tough stand he has taken on the matter of cabinet ministers' personal lives.

"On July 4, I had heard a rumor that Mr. Calder had been involved in an incident," Barrett said.

(The incident, revealed in Victoria police reports, occurred in the early hours of April 27 when a Calgary woman whs charged with being "in the care or control of a motor vehicle while impaired." Calder, a passenger in the car parked on Menzies Street, was held overnight by police for being in a state of intoxication in a public place, but was not charged.)

On July 5, Barrett said, he telephoned Calder and asked if the rumor was true. Calder said no.

"I then received a report from the attorney-general — because I had asked him to check out the rumor — that the rumor was indeed true," said the Premier.

"I made appointments for Mr. Calder to come to my office on July 20 and July 27. He didn't show on either occasion."

Barrett said Tuesday was the first time he talked to Calder directly about the incident.

"I made it very clear to Mr. Calder that he could resign. There was no response. Rather than delay, I made it very clear to him that I would be asking for his resignation — if that was not forthcoming, then we would pass the order in council..

Calder told reporters the reason he had denied the incident during Barrett's telephone call, was because he was in a room with close per-

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

You don't have to be born on the Prairies to play the Winnipeg futures market — but it helps.

"We only have a few customers who play the futures market," said an official of a major Victoria brokerage house.

"And I believe they are all from the Prairies. It helps if you know something about flax and barley and rapeseed."

But being an expert in agriculture is no guarantee of success in the futures market.

While major Victoria investment houses have a man on staff who specializes in the futures market, there is no rush to recruit new business for that type of trading.

"In a sense we try to discourage people from the futures market. They can make a fortune quickly but they can lose quickly, too. We warn them that they should not consider the futures market unless they have at least $5,000 that they can afford to lose."

On the other hand, investors can take a flyer on the stock market with only a couple of hundred in their pocket.

For example, a miller might want a load of wheat in October and another load in December. However, the farmer wants to sell all his wheat at harvest time.

The farmer and miller would sign a contract, a futures contract, for the December order to be filled at a fixed price now, but the wheat would be stored in a mutually agreed neutral place until delivery date in December.

The farmer has his money and the miller has his guaranteed supply of wheat in December.

More frequently, however, a middleman will buy up the contract from the farmer at harvest time and sell it later in the fall to the miller.

The contracts often change hands many times between harvest time and delivery day.

The name of the game is to avoid having a futures contract in your possession on delivery date unless you are a miller.

The investment community tells stories about an investor who forgot about the futures contract in his drawer and came home one day to find a load of wheat on his front lawn.

In recent years, the more common situation is to receive a frantic phone call from a railway official wondering what to do with a full boxcar that must be emptied that day.

In most cases, investors are out of the market before delivery date, having sold their contracts to millers or other wholesalers.

The futures market is as much of a gamble as being a farmer. Hailstorms, rail strikes, demand, oversupply—all affect prices on a day to day basis.

To minimize the incredible gains or losses that can occur, future markets put limits on price fluctuations in any day.

For example, at time of writing the price of flax was $10 per bushel. In a day's trade, the closing price can be no higher than $10.20 or lower than $9.80 for a 40 cent range.

If the closing price was $10.20, the next day's range would be $10 to $10.40.

Because of this restriction, it takes at least three days to be wiped out.

A flax contract is 1,000 bushels.

At $10 per bushel, one contract costs $10,000, of which $500 in cash must be put up by the investor. The brokerage house pays the rest. If the price falls to $9.50, the broker sells the contract and gets his money back. The investor is wiped out.

Usually, a flax purchase will be 10,000 bushels, worth $100,000. The investor puts up $5,000.

As noted, it would take three days to lose all $5,000. Or he could double his money in three days.

Because the Canadian Wheat Board controls prices in this country, there is no futures trading in wheat on the Winnipeg futures exchange.

Winnipeg deals in barley, flax, rape, cattle and gold.

In Chicago, a similar commodities market also handles wheat, soybeans, pork bellies, potatoes, silver and plywood.

Hudson's Bay Oil

Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Co. Ltd. has reported net earnings of $16.8 million for the six months ended June 30, an increase of $4.3 million or 35 per cent from the same period in 1972.

Earnings per share were 88 cents, compared with 64 cents last year.

Net earnings in the second quarter were $9.6 million, or 50 cents a share, compared with $6.7 million or 35 cents a share for the second quarter last year.

Revenue during the second quarter increased 28 per cent over the same period last year and totalled $32.5 million.

Canada Permanent

Canada Permanent Trust Co. has reported net operating income of 95 cents a share for the six-month period ended June 30, up from 88 cents for the same period in 1972.

Assets grew by 9.4 per cent or $150 million during the 12-month period to the end of June, totalling $1,761 million.

A prepared release said higher interest rates could have an adverse effect on net operating income in the second half of 1973 but "a satisfactory increase in annual profit from 1972 levels is projected."

Union Gas

Union Gas Ltd. reports net earnings of $2.16 million or 14.2 cents a share for the first quarter of its fiscal year compared wih $3.13 million or 20.7 cents a share for the comparable period last year.

Sales for the quarter, which ended June 30, were $34.41 million this year and $32.17 million last year.

Rising supply costs and mild spring weather were cited as the main reason for the drop in earnings in the report to shareholders.

Canada Packers

Canada Packers Ltd. reports profit of $3.86 million or 64 cents a share for the 13 weeks ended June 30 — the first quarter in its fiscal year — compared with $2.8 million or 47 cents a share for the corresponding quarter of the previous year.

First-quarter sales totalled $343.83 million this year and $254.63 million last year.

Dofasco

Dominion Foundries and Steel Ltd. reports net income for the six months ended June 30 of $25,700,000, or $1.61 a share, up from $17,200,000, or $1.07, a year ago.

Sales during the period rose to $264,400,000 from $216,300,000.

Scott Paper

Scott Paper Ltd. reports net profit for the first half of this year at $969,904 or $1.21 a share compared with $928,025 or $1.16 a share in the first half of 1972.

Second quarter sales were $13,443,363 compared with $12,309,081.

Arthur Armstrong, president, said all the company's product sales increased in the first half, showing a growth in consumption of sanitary papers in Canada and an increase in Scott's penetration of the market.

Husky Oil

Husky Oil Ltd. of Calgary has announced net earnings of $7,696,000 or 77 cents per share for the first six months of 1973, compared with $4,274,000 or 41 cents for the corresponding period last year.

Husky Oil president James Nielson attributed the "significant improvements in earnings" to increased production levels with higher prices for crude oil and to improved volumes and profits from steel operations.

B.C. FIRM BUYS $2M ONT. LAND

MARKHAM, Ont. (CP) — Young Associates Ltd., a Vancouver property development firm that manages 10 shopping centres in Canada, has purchased for $2,060,000 — with a $20,000 down payment — the fair grounds in this community just north of Toronto.

The land, zoned for agricultural use, was owned by the Markham and East York Agricultural Association.

Ira Young, president of the Vancouver firm, said application would be made to the local planning board and town council for a zoning change on the 30-acre site that, since 1854, has been home to a three-day fall fair.

"It could either be for highrise apartments, commercial, residential, or a combination of both," he said.

SLIDE KILLS 4

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Four children, all from the same family, were killed early today when a landslide pushed four houses into the harbor at Harbour Breton on Newfoundland's south coast.

Dr. M. C. Sharma, director of The Cottage Hospital in the fishing community, said three other persons were in the hospital, not for treatment of injuries but because "they have nowhere else to go."

Dr. Sharma said in a telephone interview from Harbour Breton the four children, all under the age of 10, were the only persons killed when a rainsoaked cliff slid into the houses around 3 a.m.

He said all other persons had been accounted for.

Three of the houses were occupied and one was under construction beside the harbor.

Stephen MacDonald, one of several residents awakened by a loud roar, was among the first at the scene and said he helped recover the children's bodies.

2-Cent Gas Hike Looms

Imperial Oil is expected to increase gasoline and fuel oil prices two cents per gallon in B.C. this month following similar hikes announced Tuesday for eastern Canada.

Imperial also announced it will immediately begin to pay 1.14 cents per gallon more for the western Canadian crude oil it uses to produce gasoline.

Retail price increases in western Canada are expected to come into effect when the company judges that it has begun to refine the higher-priced crude oil.

In Vancouver a company spokesman said the increased cost of crude oil would have to be recovered but the company could not say when the price would go up.

Other sources indicated it would be within the month.

Imperial operates a retail outlet at Hillside and Shelbourne. At present the gasoline prices are 52.9 cents regular, 57.9 cents premium.

These prices are would go to 54.9 and 59.9.

The company charges 26.3 cents for fuel oil in Victoria. This is would level out at 28 cents even.

The company warned that this would not be the end of price increases, because of the rapidly rising world price for crude oil.

Imperial, largest oil company in Canada, imports Venezuelan oil for its refineries in Quebec. The price of western Canadian crude is altered to match the Venezuelan price to keep wholesale gasoline prices about equal in the company.

The company said new royalty rates which come into effect today in Venezuela would produce even more increases in the price of crude oil in Canada.

The company would not speculate on the effects over the long term, but the development suggested retail price increases in September could be expected to follow the two-cent hike expected this month.

The last national retail price increase was in May, when it went up one cent across the board.

No Bomb Halt

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall refused today to order an immediate halt to U.S. bombing in Cambodia, although he hinted he might do so if the decision were his alone.

With the court in summer recess, Marshall said he felt he had to take a broader view to reflect the over-all position of the entire court which in the past has sidestepped a direct ruling on the legality of the Indochina War.

Marshall acted on an appeal by Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, (D-N.Y.), and four air force officers who won an order in a federal district court in New York last week for an immediate bombing halt, but then saw an appeals court suspend the order.

The Holtzman group still did not give up after Marshall's ruling, saying they would take their case to another justice, William O. Douglas, who they presumably felt would look more favorably on their effort.

They were asking Marshall to set aside the appeals court stay of the district court judge's order for an immediate bombing halt — rather than on Aug. 15 as scheduled.

Marshall said that if the decision were his alone, he might well conclude that U.S. military operations in Indochina were unconstitutional, as the Holtzman group contends.

But the justice made clear that was the extent of what he was ruling on — whether the appeals court decision would be vacated. He concluded, "I would exceed my legal authority were I, acting alone, to grant this application."

Rail Union Hits Western Rebels

Times News Services

A vice-president of the striking rail union is on his way West today in a bid to force rebel workers taking part in a wildcat strike against Canadian National Railways back to work.

Union spokesmen in Montreal Tuesday night angrily decried the walkout by about 5,000 workers after their "legal" strike ended, saying it is wrecking plans for selective strikes against the two national railways in various parts of the country.

"There is no indication we are losing control of the situation. In fact, there is some indication the strikers in Vancouver and Edmonton may be reconsidering their position," one union man said.

However, continuing effects of the strike were felt in widespread areas not directly hit by an authorized Quebec walkout Tuesday and today.

On Thursday the strikes will move into Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

In Prince Edward Island, provincial officials attempted to resolve a dispute that threatened to cut ferry service to the province, a service that unions agreed earlier would be maintained.

Switchmen employed by Canadian National in Winnipeg decided to begin a 48-hour study session today to protest layoffs resulting from the rotating strikes.

The railway said between one-third and one-half of the Winnipeg local's 300 members have been laid off since the strikes began.

About 900 persons are out of work in Canada because of strikes elsewhere.

The railway companies say the layoffs are necessary because of reduced work loads, brought on by the regional strikes.

The unions have said the layoffs are unjustified, and that the railways are "antagonizing" the workers in an attempt to precipitate a national strike, which the unions fear could bring on a federal back-to-work order.

This method has been used twice in the last 25 years to end national rail strikes.

In Vancouver, a union official at strike headquarters said the attitude among the workers was that if they were not "going back together, we'll stay out together."

More than 1,000 workers at Vancouver and an undetermined number at other B.C. points remain off the job and other workers refused to cross picket lines.

Union spokesmen in Vancouver said 80 per cent of CP Rail workers returned to work Tuesday and some were to be laid off until freight volume built up again.

$150,000 A DAY FINE

NEW YORK (UPI) — International Business Machines Corp., today was fined $150,000 a day for contempt of court until it turns over to the federal court documents demanded by the Justice Department in order to press an anti-trust action.

Judge David Edelstein found IBM guilty of contempt and ordered the fine in a pre-trial proceeding.

Justice Department lawyers had asked for a fine of 5 per cent of IBM's daily earnings, an estimated $177,000 a day. The company's lawyers had suggested a token fine of $100 a day.

Edelstein's order stated flatly that the court would not issue any stay of the order and attorneys in the case said a civil contempt order against a corporation in a pre-trial action cannot be appealed.

Beef Pinch In U.S.

Times News Services

Major wholesale beef suppliers in New York city followed a national trend and closed for the day today because of a shortage of beef.

Elsewhere thousands of meat packers were out of work as the shortage spread across the U.S.

Panic buyers hoarded meat in home freezers, meat distributors reported they were sold out by Tuesday, butchers turned away customers — and even the White House was turned down by its beef supplier.

The U.S. consumer was faced with prospects of eliminating from family menus hamburger, steak, meatloaf, meatballs and roast beef — and eating instead cheese, pork, fish, poultry and lamb chops.

One agricultural expert said the big cities will "suffer like hell."

New York appeared to be already suffering. The major wholesale suppliers of beef to the city' supermarkets

Money Reform Prospects Good

By HOBART ROWEN
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A new international monetary system to replace the one created at Bretton Woods 29 years ago emerged as a real prospect Tuesday at a friendly and co-operative session of the free world's finance ministers at the International Monetary Fund headquarters here.

Several responsible sources indicated that basic details could be drafted and approved by the spring of 1974.

Moreover, the new system might be put in place by a totally new treaty or agreement which would leave the door for membership open to Soviet Russia, the Peoples Republic of China, and other socialist countries.

Many intricate problems of substance and negotiation still lie ahead, including the role of gold, and how to define (and perhaps re-name) the Special Drawing Rights which will become the standard of the new system, replacing the dollar.

But a new mood of compromise was clearly emerging. French Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing said that "the recent monetary crisis appears to have convinced everybody of the need for more co-operative action. There is no longer the inclination to let things get settled by themselves."

Rally Violence Just 'Great'

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — H. R. Haldeman said today he accepts responsibility for a memorandum last February that said "we should tie all 1972 demonstrations to McGovern and thus to the Democrats as part of the peace movement."

Haldeman, the former White House chief of staff, conceded that he wrote "great" and "good" on a 1971 memorandum informing him that violent demonstrators were expected at a Charlotte, N.C., appearance of President Nixon and Rev. Billy Graham.

The two memos were disclosed at the Senate Watergate hearings by Senator Lowell Weicker (Rep.—Con.) who said:

"We need to get our people to put out the story on foreign or Communist money that was used in support of demonstrations against the president in 1972," it began.

"We should tie all 1972 demonstrations to McGovern and thus to the Democrats as part of the peace movement.

"The investigation should be brought to include the peace movement which leads directly to McGovern and Teddy Kennedy. This is a good counter-offensive to be developed."

The references were to Senator George McGovern (Dem.—N.D.), the 1972 Democratic nominee for president, and Sen. Edward Kennedy (Dem.—Mass.).

This was the second time in two days Weicker and Haldeman had clashed.

Tuesday, the hundreds of people crammed into the hearing room fell silent all at once as the senator and the witness regarded one another in something less than mutual admiration.

Across that breath-holding hush, the glare exchanged bespoke what more than 5,000 pages of transcribed testimony has not quite captured — the deep divisions carved by the scandal and the clash of philosophies it has come to represent.

"Who set the example for what happened?" Weicker

VITAMIN A, D ON DRUG LIST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Food and Drug Administration ordered today that high doses of vitamins A and D be placed on a prescription-only basis. It also laid down plans for other general restrictions on sale of vitamins.

The order on vitamins A and D takes effect in 60 days. The FDA issued a final order on the matter, the most controversial of its proposals. The other restrictions will take effect at the end of 1974.

The FDA said there was evidence that vitamin A in heavy doses can cause pressure inside the skull that may mimic the symptoms of a brain tumor, and may also cause retarded growth in children. Vitamin D in high doses has also been known to retard mental and physical growth in children, the agency added.

The other major rule says that any vitamin, food supplement or food containing more than 150 per cent of the recommended daily allowance of any vitamin shall be classified as a drug.

Once classified as drugs such products may continue to be sold over the counter the way cough medicines and aspirins are now. But they will be subject to review by the FDA as drugs and some may later be put on a prescription basis or banned entirely.

'The Little Chief Will Fight'

By LINDA HUGHES

Frank Calder said today he was fired from the provincial cabinet for "something political" rather than for per. nal reasons as outlined earlier by Premier Barrett.

In an emotional statement to the press this morning, the former minister-without-portfolio who looked after Indian affairs, said an incident last April in which he and his girlfriend were picked up by Victoria police is not justification for firing.

"I can't figure it out. There must be something deeper than that. I would size it up as something political — it is not personal," he said.

The incident has been blown out of proportion by the premier, he said, adding that "the Little Chief will fight," if the issue continues to be blown up.

Calder's statements followed a special press conference called by the premier, in which Barrett described the reasons and sequence of events which led to Calder's firing Tuesday.

He revealed the tough stand he has taken on the matter of cabinet ministers' personal lives.

"On July 4, I had heard a rumor that Mr. Calder had been involved in an incident," Barrett said.

(The incident, revealed in Victoria police reports, occurred in the early hours of April 27 when a Calgary woman was charged with being "in the care or control of a motor vehicle while impaired." Calder, a passenger in the car parked on Menzies Street, was held overnight by police for being in a state of intoxication in a public place, but was not charged.)

On July 5, Barrett said, he telephoned Calder and asked if the rumor was true. Calder said no.

"I then received a report from the attorney-general — because I had asked him to check out the rumor — that the rumor was indeed true," said the Premier.

"I made appointments for Mr. Calder to come to my office on July 20 and July 27. He didn't show on either occasion."

Barrett said Tuesday was the first time he talked to Calder directly about the incident.

"I made it very clear to Mr. Calder that he could resign. There was no response. Rather than delay, I made it very clear to him that I would be asking for his resignation — if that was not forthcoming, then we would pass the order in council..

Calder told reporters the reason he had denied the incident during Barrett's telephone call, was because he was in a room with close per-
